UK Muslims halted Disneyland trip raised with PM

■ British family 'livid' after being barred from Los Angeles flight

Labour MP Stella Creasy has called on the prime minister to challenge the US after a UK Muslim family was barred from boarding a flight to Los Angeles.

The family of 11, from Ms Creasy's Walthamstow constituency, had planned a holiday to Disneyland but were stopped at Gatwick Airport on 15 December.

Mohammad Zahid Mahmood said his family was given no reason why US officials had refused to allow them to board.

'growing problem'

US officials said travellers were not barred based on religious beliefs. Downing Street said David Cameron would respond to the issues raised.

Ms Creasy has written to the prime minister urging him to press the US authorities on what she said was "a growing problem" of British Muslims being barred from the US without explanation.

She said she had "hit a brick wall" in her own attempts to get answers from the US embassy.

"It is not just the family themselves who are livid," Ms Creasy told the Guardian. "The vacuum created by a refusal to provide any context for these decisions is fuelling resentment and debate," she said.

She told the BBC she was aware of four other UK cases of Muslims who were denied entry to the US.

"Nobody knows why these people were stopped. We do know what the common denominator is between them. All of us agree we've absolutely got to be vigilant about tackling terrorism, and we've got to be clear prejudice hasn't got a part to play in that," she added.

Mr Mahmood, who was travelling with his brother and their children, aged eight to 19, had planned to visit their elder brother in southern California and go to the theme parks.

He said UK Border officials told them at the departure lounge that they were not allowed to board the plane, despite all having authorisation to travel under the US Visa Waiver Programme

Mr Mahmood said: "We checked in, there were no problems. Just before the final check to get into the lounge we were singled out.

"A man from UK Border Force came and said, 'I'm sorry you can't board this flight. We received a call from Washington DC that we can't allow this family to board the flight'."

Mr Mahmood said he had educated his children "to live in this country peacefully" and had been invited to speak at local schools about Islamophobia.

He added that it seemed like it had been a clear case of discrimination.

'Humiliated, alienated'

"Because I have a beard and sometimes wear Islamic dress I get stopped and asked questions. I feel that is part of the deal of flying. I understand that," he said.

"The fact that we were the only ones who were of Asian or Muslim appearance, it seemed embarrassing that we were the only ones taken out of the queue. For the children to take this in is very difficult."

He said the airline Norwegian had told them they would not be refunded the £9,000 cost of their flights.

They were also forced to return everything they had purchased at Gatwick's duty-free shops before being escorted from the airport, he said.

He also told Sky News that the family felt "humiliated, alienated, because the way we were dealt with was just out of the ordinary. Everyone's eyes were on us, it was embarrassing".

A US Customs and Border Protection spokesman said: "The religion, faith, or spiritual beliefs of an international traveller are not determining factors about his or her admissibility into the US.

"In order to demonstrate that they are admissible, the applicant must overcome all grounds of inadmissibility."

The spokesman also said there were 60 categories of inadmissibility, including health-related, prior criminal convictions, security reasons and immigration violations.

Ginger extremist jailed for Harry throne plot far-right fanatic dubbed the 'ginger extremist', who plotted terror attacks to kill "large proportion of the population" as well as a killing of Prince Charles so that Prince Harry could become King, has been detained indefinitely under the Mental Health Act.

The would-be terrorist was convicted in September and sentenced this Tuesday.

The red-headed man claimed feeling victimized because of the color of his hair and said the IRA were his idols, because he believed they too were ginger.

Mark Colborne, also known as the 'ginger Aryan', had purchased ingredients to make cyanide and had written his plans to murder the prince so that a ginger person could be crowned king in a diary.

"I would sacrifice my life for one shot. Kill Charles and William and Harry become king. Kill the tyrants," he wrote.

Colborne held racist and neo-Nazi beliefs. He apparently hated travelers, black people and anyone who he did not define as Aryan. He was also a fan of the Norwegian mass murderer Anders Breivik

The suspect bought ingredients for poison online and had stocks of plastic dust masks, syringes and latex gloves, the court heard. The box containing his writing racist and ingredients for making poisons was eventually discovered Colborne's half-brother.

When sentencing Colborne to indefinite detention in a mental facility, Judge John

"Boring" Andy Murray kicks off holiday season with Personality award

TENNIS superstar Andy Murray may not be the warmest British sportsman you'll ever meet but he is certainly feeling the love this holiday season.

The Scottish ace picked up his second Sports Personality of the Year award in Belfast on Sunday night beating Kevin Sinfield and Jessica Ennis Hill.

Murray became only the fourth person to win the BBC award twice following boxer Henry Cooper and F1 drivers Nigel Mansell and Damon Hill - after first winning in 2013.

He finished a clear first in the public vote, with rugby league veteran Kevin Sinfield second and heptathlete Jessica Ennis-Hill narrowly beating boxer Tyson Fury to third place

And Murray showed a rare touch of humor by telling the audience he had never been to Worthing, the Sussex town which featured in his self-deprecating acceptance speech.

"A friend sent me a message the other day with an article saying, 'Andy Murray is duller than a weekend in Worthing', which I thought was a bit harshon Worthing," he said after collecting the trophy.

Olympic title

The result came as a surprise to nobody after the Scot led Britain to their first victory in the Davis Cup team tennis in 79 years.

As well as success in his career Andy had a red letter year in his personal life too having wed his teenage sweetheart Kim Sears in April of this year.

Next year Murray, 28, who is set to become a father, will attempt to defend his Olympic title and seek a third Grand Slam triumph.

"The scheduling will be difficult next year but it's exciting," he said.

Murray has just returned from a training camp in Dubai and will seek a first Australian Open title in Melbourne in January, while his wife Kim is expecting their first child.

'time and effort'

"That becomes my number one priority. In February, me and my wife's lives will change forever, and I'm sure that will be in a positive way," he said.

Lucky Leicester fan nets £5,000 after cheeky £5 top of the table bet

I have full belief in my team going all the way and can't wait for next year now - Keval Nakeshree

A LEICESTER City fan who put an optimistic £5 bet on his team topping the Premier League at Christmas netted £5,000 on Sunday.

Keval Nakeshree, 38, took a 1,000-1 punt at the start of the season on Jamie Vardy and his teammates.

Many pundits were tipping the Midlands outfit for the drop after the club replaced popular manager Nigel Pearson with Claudio Ranieri.

But the Foxes have out-foxed everyone and lead Arsenal by two points going into the holiday season.

If Leicester City maintain their staggering form and win the Premier League, Keval, from Gloucester, will be laughing all the way to the bank.

He will land a further £33,000 with another £5 each way bet, also placed in August.

He said: "I have full belief in my team going all the way and can't wait for next year now. If they are still top around February, I will start thinking about what to do with the money."

Keval is spending his winnings on a family trip to Disney World in Florida.

Ladbrokes said: "This has to go down as one of the most incredible winning bets of all time."

Veteran footballer and BBC broadcaster Jimmy Hill dies at 87

- Hill's agent confirms death after long battle with Alzheimer's disease
- Made his name with Fulham before becoming long-serving Match of the Day presenter

The former football player and Match of the Day presenter Jimmy Hill has died aged 87, his agent announced on Saturday.

The Londoner, who made his name playing for Fulham in the 1950s, enjoyed a second career distinguished as a broadcaster. He died after suffering from Alzheimer's disease for a number of years.

In a statement, his agent, Jane Morgan, said: "It is with great sadness that Bryony Hill and the children of Jimmy Hill have announced that Jimmy passed away peacefully today aged 87 after a long battle with Alzheimer's disease. Bryony was beside him."

Hill ensured his name would be forever written into English football's record books when, as head of the PFA in 1961, he fought to abolish the maximum wage, which had been pegged at £20 per week, allowing his teammate Johnny Haynes earn the first £100-a-week pay packet in English football.

After finishing his career playing managed Coventry City in the 1960s before moving into broadcasting. The current Coventry manager, Tony Mowbray, paid tribute to Hill on the club's official website.

'forward thinker'

He said: "Everyone at the club is in a state of shock and deep sadness at hearing the news of Jimmy's death. History tells us that without the efforts of Jimmy, both on the pitch and off it, Coventry City's future will have been extremely different from what it is today.

"There are very few examples which can contend with the amount Jimmy achieved at the club during such a small amount of time. He was a forward-thinker and a revolutionary who was determined to take Coventry and football forwards.

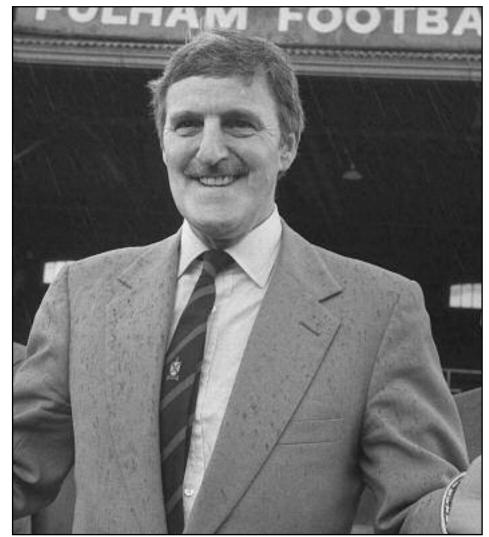

"The changes he made gave the club, the city and the supporters an identity and a club they can be proud of, and for that, the club will be eternally grateful."

600 appearances

Hill was the head of sport at ITV between 1968 and 1972, a spell which including fronting the coverage of the 1970 World Cup in Mexico. He moved to the BBC in 1973 where he became the host of Match of the Day before Des Lynam took over the reins in 1989.

He made more than 600 appearances on the show as both a presenter and analyst. The BBC director general, Tony Hall, said: "For generations of fans Jimmy Hill was an authoritative voice as both a presenter and analyst. He was committed to innovation in every aspect of the game, including broadcasting and always believed supporters came first. His influence lives on in the programmes we enjoy today."

The BBC director of sports, Barbara Slater, added: "Jimmy Hill was an iconic and unique figure and we are all deeply saddened by the news. He was one of the great innovators and a huge talent, a man ahead of his time."

pud 'delicious' 46-year-old Christmas

A 46-year-old Christmas pudding has been unearthed during a house clearance - and declared "delicious" by food experts.

The pudding, which was made for a festive wedding in 1969, was donated to the University Nottingham's microbiology department to see if it was still fit to eat.

Experts steamed the dessert for five hours to ensure it was safe before testing it.

Professor Christine Dodd, from university, said: "It was a little dry, but had a very good flavour. It was sealed in a traditional way and looks fine."

The pudding - which fruit, contains breadcrumbs and brandy among its ingredients was discovered by a family clearing out the kitchen of a late relative's home in Nottingham.

They donated it to the university with the message: "Oh and don't forget there might be a silver sixpence in there! Probably best not to microwave!

"Good luck with your tests and a merry Christmas to all - we look forward to hearing whether we should have served them Christmas Day!"

Madonna and Ritchie locked in legal battle over son Rocco

■ 15 year-old refuses to go home to mum

Madonna and former husbande Guy Ritchie have found themselves in the midst of a residence battle after one of their two teenage sons refused to return from London to the US to be with his mother.

The Material Girl singer appeared in Manhattan Supreme Court Wednesday morning, telling a judge that her son had informed her that he would prefer to stay in the UK with his film-director dad.

The 57-year-old pop diva, who is currently in the middle of her Rebel Heart world tour, asked Justice Deborah Kaplan to force her ex-husband to send their 15-year-old son, Rocco, to New York.

An attornev representing Mr Ritchie responded that the teen 'has expressed very clearly that he does not want to return to New York,' the New York Daily News reported.

Kaplan ruled that Rocco Ritchie must return to New York and talk to his mother before deciding which parent he prefers.

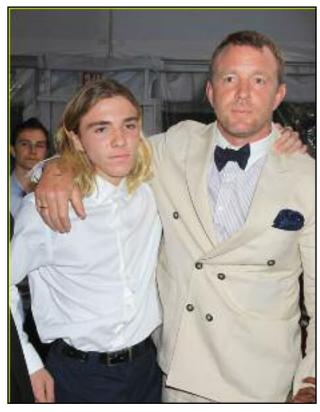

The 15-year-old will be represented in the custody case by his own court-appointed attorney, Justice Kaplan decreed.

Lamps lit up with tears during nuptials, reveals friend Piers

■ Footballer weds TV presenter in 'tasteful, stylish' ceremony

Footballer Frank Lampard shed a tear during his weekend wedding to Christine Bleakley, according to friend Piers Morgan.

Lampard tied the knot with Bleakley at an intimate ceremony on Sunday attended by showbiz friends and family in London's West

Speaking on his popular breakfast show Good Morning Britain, Morgan described the "stylish" wedding to his breakfast co-host Susanna Reid.

"It was very emotional night for Frank, he was very tearful in his speech, very moving," said Morgan.

He recalled how he had been present the night the couple met at the Pride of Britain Awards.

He said he told Lampard that Bleakley was "way above your league, mate", but he was proven wrong as the pair ended up falling in love.

The couple said "I do" at St Paul's Church in Knightsbridge and then headed to a reception at Manchester City and exclusive London's venue The Arts Club.

Morgan also revealed that invites had only been sent out to guests about 10 days ago.

He told Reid: "It was a lovely, tasteful, stylish wedding. No one got invited until about 10 days ago, so out of the blue we all got invited, so it was lovely, about 140/150 people - a few Chelsea players like John Terry and Didier Drogba there, but actually it was a lot of their families."

The ex-Chelsea, West Ham ace, who this summer swapped the Premier League for Major League Soccer at New York City FC, returned to London for the nuptials.

The couple were joined by friends from the world of entertainment and sport, including Ms Bleakley's This Morning co-presenters Schofield and Holly Willoughby.

Marriage hits the buffers for F1 ace and model girlfriend

■ Celebrity couple blame hectic schedule for breakup

FORMULA One star Jenson Button has split from his model wide Jessica Michibata less than a year after getting married.

The pair tied the knot last December in Maui, Hawaii last December after meeting at a hotel bar in 2008.

The 35-year-old McLaren ace proposed to the the model on Valentine's Day last year with a ring worth £250,000.

Jessica, 31, confirmed their marriage last New Year's Eve, tweeting: "We're excited to see in the new year with family and loved ones."

The couple parted on amicable terms, according spokesman for Button.

He said: "Jenson and Jessica have decided to go their separate ways and it is very amicable.

"There is no-one else involved."

Α source Japan-born Michibata found the relationship "difficult to maintain" due to the pair's hectic schedules.

They said: "After getting married, life continued much as it had before. Nothing changed for either of them.

"They had their respective careers and met up when they could. But over the course of this year the meetings became less and less frequent.

'ongoing discussions'

Just last week Button bemoaned an extension of the gruelling F1 calendar, saying: "It's difficult for mechanic or engineer to have a relationship right now, so 21 races is going to be tough.

"I hope it doesn't grow in 2017."

He had previously revealed the trouble he said and Jessica had spending any time together when he admitted: "We don't see each other now any more than before we were married."

He said in interview earlier this year: "Jessie still works a lot in Japan. She enjoys her job, she models, she had a television show and has done a Japanese

"She enjoys working, which is great, but it obviously means that we don't see each other very often."

Attention has now turned to Button's estimated £35 million fortune as it is reported there was no prenuptial agreement set in place.

The racing star's representative "There are ongoing discussions between them about money, but it's too early to say how it will pan out."

Meet a Member: Johny Pach

Meet Johny Pach from London who moved to LA five weeks ago to pursue a career as a TV host. Johnny was drafted to the Sunshine State by V Channel, to launch his brand new show "Showbuzz".

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

The TV Network were based here, they paid my visa and offered me a big contract. It all started back in February, when I got flown out to host a big fashion show at Four the Stars Fashion House on Melrose Avenue. A few TV networks came to see me in action including V Channel and E!. I was on top form that night, which caused V Channel to ask me to come for an audition on the Monday, just before flight home ...randomly they were looking for a British TV Host at the exact same time I was in LA.

What do you miss most from home?

I do not really miss working at home anymore. I worked full time as a business development manager for two big direct response marketing agencies in Liverpool Street, as well as doing all of my TV hosting work week nights weekends. The intense pressure and stressful life in work was unbearable, working in London from Jan - Feb are the most depressing months of the year and everybody around you is so negative. I said to myself two weeks into living here that I will never ever work in London again. Working in Hollywood is an amazing experience, you are working your dream to be the biggest global TV host there is, everyone is so friendly, laid back, creative and positive and massively helps in your working environment. My team at V Channel are incredibly helpful, always creating amazing ideas and they have allowed me and my experience to shine through on my own TV project show.

The only thing I miss from back home is my family and friends, but with the help of Skype and Facetime I can be in contact all the time.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so why?

My first impression was 'wow! The people are so lovely, wanting to talk to and share experiences everyone is so chilled out, look amazing and are naturally happy - this is the environment I have missed all my life.' It hasn't changed – it's just got better and better, you could be talking to a person in a coffee shop randomly and the next thing you know you're working on a new TV pitch music show with this person. I feel the law of attraction is so naturally strong here, you can plug a thought into the universe of 'I want to meet this person' or 'I need this in my life right now' and honestly an hour later you are speaking to the person who has the best solution for you. You can just feel the healthy, positive here energy Hollywood is verv homely and comfortable, it helps you settle in.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

Money seems to have a different value over here. For starters the actually physical money looks like something off of a Monopoly board. You seem to spend a lot quite quickly as soon as you arrive here (moving can set you back about OVERNIGHT SUCCESS? Johny Pach arrived in Los Angeles just five weeks ago £10,000 in your first offer before you fly month) - but when you have overcome that big expenditure, you will find opportunities flooding in that will maintain you money

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

wise in your specialist craft. There doesn't seem to be any stress of money

here as compared to London.

The biggest thing I would recommend is to have a stable contract anywhere and try to save at least £10,000 so you have money here. Be patient, people work hard here but it's a lot slower pace in London, so as long as you lay the right bricks, be patient your project or job opportunity will work out. Just go for it!

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

Curiosity House: first installment is well worth exploring

Exclusive interview with Lauren Oliver and a review of her novel about four special kids solving a mystery at a bizarre museum

Rating: ★★★

"The idea for the series came from a series of strange, vellowing postcards I unearthed from a stall at one of bouquinistes Paris' [booksellers]," says The Shrunken Head author Lauren Oliver. "All of them purporting to show bizarre objects, including a three-legged duckling and embalmed, breathing salamander. That had once been on display at Mr. Dumfrey's Dime Museum of Freaks, Oddities, and Wonders."

Rich in detail that will keep you reading, The Shrunken Head is the first book in the Curiosity House series. A young adult book, I wouldn't give it to a child under ten as there are murders in the story. The museum in the book features live performances Odditorium and a Hall of Worldwide Wonders where bizarre items are on display. The story is filled with quirky characters. The exploration of the odd museum will engage children and adults. The book takes place in the 1930s in New York.

At Dumfrey's Dime Museum of Freaks, Oddities, and Wonders, live and work four orphans with unusual abilities. Pippa is a mentalist. Thomas can squeeze himself into small spaces. Max, a girl, is an amazing knife-thrower. Sam is the world's strongest boy. The bizarre museum is owned and operated by Mr. Dumfrey. After a shrunken head on display at the exhibit goes missing, there accidents and murders. The four kids will have to learn to work together to solve the mystery.

Oliver's "anonymous" co-author of the book is actually her father, a relics collector, true crime writer and professor of American literature and popular culture at Queens College.

"This was my first time collaborating with another author," says Oliver. "The most surprising thing to me was how easily the collaboration flowed, and how well we worked together. He is not known for his great love of people." Oliver says her co-author did most of the research, including collecting photos and documentation on New York at that time, especially the location of its subways and hospitals.

"I love the Curiosity House series because it's a true ensemble book," says Oliver. "Tom, Pippa, Max, and Sam are all equally the main characters, and they're joined by a cast of zany and very vivid adult characters who make the world feel very alive. Also, it's funnier than my other books."

Besides Curiosity House: The Shrunken Head, Oliver wrote The Spindlers, Liesl & Po. Before I Fall and the Delirium series are New Times international bestsellers. Before I Fall purchased for adaptation for the big screen and shooting began 19th November in Vancouver. Directed by Ry Russo Young, it stars Zoey Deutch.

"My life has completely, materially, unilaterally changed as a result of writing my books," says Oliver. "It is filled with travel and fan interaction. I get to basically go to work in my pajamas. I've met many of my literary heroes, from Jeffrey Eugenides to Lemony Snickett. I've toured in places as varied and far-flung as Malaysia, the Philippines, Toronto, and Sydney."

Oliver is currently

working on a screenplay and the sequel to her next YA novel, Replica, that publishes next September.

Oliver is based in Connecticut and New York, although she spends a lot of time in Los Angeles. She was born in Queens, New York.

There's nothing like an empty Los Angeles...

SEASON'S GREETINGS MY BREEPS!

Welcome to Ghost Town LA - that week during Christmas everyone's away - well not everyone but an awful lots of Brits either back to motherland or to places that are warmer and dryer than LA.

It's actually a really week for a stay-cay! For instance it really is a true 20 minutes to get to the beach from Hollywood, What about that Costco run you were putting off? Five minutes from Hollywood and guess what? Everything is dirt cheap - especially if you want to stock up on Christmas cards and wrapping paper for next year. - The bars and restaurants tend to be quieter so those last minute reservations at Cecconi's or Osteria Mama are easy to come by! - It's also a good time to do Runyon Canyon and actually focus on the exercise and not the throngs of gorgeous wannabes speed-hiking past you.... although admittedly sometimes that's been fun! seriously, consider doing all those chores that have sat on your to-do list since July - like getting the roof fixed. Yep, El Nino is barreling towards us and we are in store for one of the wettest Januarys and Februarys on record. Now don't get me wrong, we complain when we don't have enough rain and beg everyone to have really ugly lawns because we are afraid we may run out of actual drinking water. Then we complain when it's too wet - which creates potholes all in the roads....

Here come the awards..

Awards season is fast approaching with the Golden Globes and SAG awards already announced - a fair few Brits in the crowded races there, which we always like to see. Idris Elba has two nominations, one for his TV work in "Luther" and in the Netfix pic "Beasts of No Nation". Best of luck to him, along with Eddie Redmayne for "The Danish Girl", Dame Helen Mirren for the "Woman in Gold" and again for playing Hedda Hoppa in "Trumbo". Another nomination double for Mark Rylance for "Bridge of Spies" and "Wolf Hall" as well as nods for Christian Bale, Kate Winslet, Sir Ben Kingsley, Damien Lewis, Patrick Stewart, Dame Maggie Smith, and all the cast of Downton Abbey. Not forgetting some of this year's best feature film directors - featuring a master, Ridley Scott for his work on "The Martian". Best of British to them all and to the numerous other Brits recognized for their work in all the technical categories.

Toscar time

Speaking of awards, the BiLA's renowned Toscars are back for their 9th annual gala. This year the bash is produced by Kim Morgan Greene and Devin Hamilton Participation tickets have gone on sale eventbrite.com – just search for Toscars 2016.

I can't wait to see what the teams come up with this year - it truly is one of the funnest times you'll have and you'll make some life-long friends! I was involved in last years winner - "Big Birdman" with Scott Kaske taking home the Best Whactor

LA: so empty at Christmas you can (almost) indulge those skateboard fantasies.

TOSCAR TIME: last year Scott Kaske got the Best Whactor nod for "Big Birdman" statue. I got best Supporting Whactor, we also picked up Best Scribbles, Best Director and last but not least - best film. What a fun night it Finally Breakfast Club is still up and running at Cecconi's Robertson/Melrose every tuesday and on the 31st we are all gathering at The Pikey on Sunset at 2pm to celebrate the British New Year at 4pm. No cover just come join us.

Cheers and see you next year! Craig Young

Is "costume envy' driving 'Harry' Potty?

Daniel Radcliffe will forever be THE face of Potter Harry the franchise.

It doesn't matter how many other movies he makes or what else he does. With a new movie set in the same world on its way there are a few different ways you might expect Radcliffe to react.

He could be dismissive of this new kid on the block trying to ride his coat tails, or he could play the part of the successful veteran, trying to help the new kid make something of himself. It turns out neither is the case.

Even though he's left his glasses and magic wand behind, Radcliffe's still got a severe case of "costume envy" when he saw the new wizard in town - fellow Brit, Eddie Redmayne.

It turns out Radcliffe is actually jealous of Redmayne's stylish wardrobe on the highly anticipated Harry Potter spinoff film Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them which is currently filming in the U.K. Mostly he's jealous of the wardrobe.

"Oh f— you, Eddie, in your brilliant costume – I got jeans and a zip top for 10 years and you've got a great coat already?" he joked to NME magazine about Redmayne's Who-esq Doctor wardrobe.

Due for release in 2016, the film, written by J.K Rowling, is set in the same magical world of the Potter films but in New York instead of the U.K., and 70 years before Harry's story begins.

As I recently revealed, the Oscar-winning Redmayne, 33, plays eccentric wizard Newt Scamander, who wears a dapper, teal, three-quarter length coat over a wool suit, accessorized with a wand.

I can feel Radcliffe's pain. Getting to wear fun and interesting costumes has got to be one of the best parts of being an actor. It can really help you feel more like the character you're playing. Many of the characters within the Harry Potter movies got to wear unique outfits, but Harry, along with Ron and Hermione rarely got to their school uniforms or fairly standard street clothes.

This is still the Harry wear anything beyond Potter world right? I wonder why the guy the franchise is named after wasn't styled as cool as Eddie's character!?

Spice Girls reunion in crisis!

The Spice Girls' 20-year reunion tour is in crisis because Mel C refuses to take part without Victoria Beckham.

Oo-er!

Posh has told her four former bandmates she is too busy with her fashion empire to take part in the prompting reunion, Sporty Melanie Chisholm, to dig her heels in and declare she will go ahead only "if all the cogs are in place".

A source told The Sun this week: "This means good management, good tour promoters and good sponsorship to maximize revenue. To fulfil this Mel believes the band has to be the original five-piece and Victoria needs to be involved."

A spokeswoman for Mel C declined to comment.

Meanwhile Mel Emma Bunton, Geri Halliwell, and are "bickering" over a top name to manage next year's live shows, planned to mark 1996 hit "Wannabe".

There are fears the delay could lose the band gigs and sponsors.

The last time I saw the girls perform as five piece was at the Staples Center in Los Angeles back in 2007... I think they did a pretty good job too.

I do hope Victoria comes to her senses...after all, if it wasn't for the band she wouldn't be famous, then she wouldn't have met David and therefore she would not have her fashion empire!

Time something back to the fans who put you there, Mrs. Beckham!

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS:

If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying of all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

Note: Because the Beneficiary reserves the right to bid less than the total debt owed, it is possible that at the time of the sale the opening bid may be less than the total debt

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. their title credentials last night by recording a 2-1 victory over Manchester City at the Emirates.

And Pearce, who spent three years at the Etihad as a player and manager, has impressed been Arsenal's consistency in the league this season and believes the lack of stability at Manchester United and Chelsea has put the back-to-back FA Cup winners in pole position to be crowned champions at the end of the campaign.

"What Monday's result shows, is that Manchester City are too inconsistent to win the league this season, and that Arsenal are the most stable football club in the country at the moment." Pearce told talkSPORT.

"They've won the FA Cup for two years running, their stadium is outstanding, their training ground is outstanding, and their bank balance is outstanding and they have consistency with the manager.

"I think it is Arsenal's title to lose at this moment, especially with all the other teams around them falling away a touch, with Chelsea being in semi-crisis and the unrest at Manchester United.

"I think Wenger, with this group of players, could be on the verge of creating another dynasty at the club."

Legendary coach Don Howe dead aged 80

Former England international and coach Don Howe has died at the age of 80.

The full-back played for West Brom and Arsenal, earning 23 England caps, before establishing himself as a renowned coach for club and country.

Howe helped Arsenal to a league and FA Cup double in 1971 and spent four years as West Brom boss before returning to the Gunners as coach and manager.

He also coached under former England managers Ron Greenwood, Sir Bobby Robson and Terry Venables.

Arsenal chairman Sir Chips Keswick said Howe had been "enduring a long battle with illness", but added it was still a "shock to learn the news".

Howe played every game in the 1958 World Cup and was then a key part of Robson's coaching staff as England reached the semi-finals of the 1990 World Cup, before also supporting Venables as his side made it to the last four of Euro 96.

Former Gunners goalkeeper Bob Wilson said Howe was "a fine player but truly he was one of the greatest ever coaches in football".

FA chairman Greg Dyke described his death as a "great loss for English football".

Dyke added: "He is widely regarded as being in the vanguard of coaching in England, and I know that his loss will be keenly felt amongst the coaching fraternity in particular and not least by [current England boss] Roy Hodgson, who was close to Don."

Hodgson said: "I found myself privileged to say

Van Gaal feels the heat

■ Under-fire United boss walks out of press conference after emotional, five minute rant

UNDER-FIRE Louis Van Gaal appears to be cracking under the strain of turning round Manchester United's fortunes, delivering an angry and emotional monologue before storming out of a press conference that lasted less than five minutes this week.

After a week when his job has come under intense scrutiny from fans and the media and Jose Mourinho touted as a replacement, Van Gaal hit back – and bizarrely started by asking for apologies from reporters who he accused of ignoring the facts.

Asked for a response to Arsene Wenger's claim that the Dutchman's treatment has been disrespectful, Van Gaal said: "Has anybody in this room not a feeling to apologise to me? That's what I'm wondering.

"I think I was already sacked, I read. I have been sacked. colleague (Mourinho) was here already. What do you think happens with my wife or my kids? Or with my grandchildren? Or with the fans of Manchester United? Or my friends? What do you think?

a lot of times and also Arsene Wenger is saying something about that. So you think that I want to talk with the media now.

"I am here only because of the Premier League rules. I have to talk with you. But I can only see when I say something that you use my words in your context.

"And I want to say only I have tried to lift the confidence of my players. I have done everything this week.

"I held evaluation meetings with the players with members of staff, I held a Christmas lunch, I made a speech and I feel the warmth and support everybody Carrington, this AON training complex.

"But I didn't feel that in the media and of course I can imagine that you can write about that subject.

"We are not in a good position but four weeks ago we were first in the Premier League and in four weeks' time we can be back in that position again."

When it was pointed out to him that the speculation over his future was inevitable given United's poor run, "They have called me he refused to agree. And

Title 'Arsenal's to lose'

■ Pearce hails 'outstanding' Gunners and tips Wenger to create another dynasty

FORMER Manchester City manager Stewart Pearce has tipped Arsenal to win the title this year, saying they have the strongest and most consistent squad in an unpredictable title race.

The Gunners, who last lifted the league trophy at the end of the 2003-04 season, are currently in second place in the table and trail surprise leaders Leicester by two points.
