■ Former England footballer Johnson facing lengthy jail term after conviction on sex charge

Ex-England footballer Adam Johnson has been found guilty of one count of sexual activity with a girl aged 15.

The jury at Bradford Crown Court found Johnson guilty of a charge of sexual touching, but not guilty on a charge relating to another sexual act.

The former Sunderland player had previously admitted grooming the girl and one charge of sexual activity.

Judge Jonathan Rose has warned Johnson he faces jail and told him to "say goodbye to your daughter".

In a statement, Johnson's victim said she had been through the "hardest year" of her life. She said meeting her hero felt "surreal" at first but she now feels "used and let down" by Johnson.

She said: "I have had to face so much abuse after he claimed his innocence and I was made out to be a liar.

"What happened in his car has turned my life upside down.

"There are people who have made assumptions about me and this has been hard to deal with... Him being found guilty shows everyone I was telling the truth."

'Significant sentence'

The judge said his preliminary view was that the case falls into the category of a five-year prison sentence with a range of four to 10 years.

He said: "The defendant must understand there is a very high probability of a significant custodial sentence."

The judge told Johnson he would be released on bail so he could get his "affairs in order".

He said: "You can say goodbye to your daughter. A prison sentence will mean you will not see her for some time."

Johnson, 28, showed no emotion as the verdicts were delivered and he has been granted bail until his sentencing, which is due to take place in two to three weeks.

DENIAL: : Former Sunderland player Johnson adnitted kissing the teenager but claimed the encounter 'went no further'

Johnson met up with the girl on 30 January 2015 after agreeing to sign football shirts for her, the court heard.

'infatuated'

The player admitted kissing the teenager but told the jury the encounter in his Range Rover "went no further".

However the girl told the court the former winger "put his hands down her pants" and she performed an oral sex act on him.

The jury, which had been deliberating since Tuesday morning following a three-week trial, cleared Johnson over the oral sex claim but convicted him by a 10-2 majority on the sexual touching charge.

Johnson was sacked by Sunderland after admitting on the first day of his trial that he had kissed the girl. He began communicating with the girl at the very end of 2014 while his partner, Stacey Flounders, was heavily pregnant with their first child.

The victim, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was a Sunderland season ticket holder and was "infatuated" with Johnson.

Johnson told the jury that when she sent him a friend request on Facebook he recognised her as a Sunderland fan.

After he accepted the request he began a communication which involved 834 WhatsApp messages in little more than a month before the exchanges moved on to SnapChat and were not recorded.

During the trial, prosecutors accused Johnson of delaying his cont. on page 2, col. 1 admission to the lesser offences until the start of his trial so he could still play for Sunderland, from whom he earned £60,000 a week.

'unimaginable ordeal'

Johnson told the court the club knew he had kissed the girl, but in a statement issued after the verdict Sunderland denied the claim

The club said it played no part in Johnson's plea decisions and only became aware he had kissed the girl when he admitted it in court, at which point they sacked him.

Sunderland's statement said: "Had the club known that Mr Johnson intended to plead guilty to any of these charges then his employment would have been terminated immediately.

"Indeed, upon learning of the guilty plea on 11 February 2016, the club acted quickly and decisively in terminating Adam Johnson's contract without notice.

"This has been an extremely difficult time for all involved. The victim and her family have endured an unimaginable ordeal in the last 12 months and we trust that they will now be allowed to move on with their lives without further intrusion or public scrutiny."

Cameron rails against Scottish 'one party state'

Only the Tories can challenge the SNP and prevent Scotland becoming a "one party state", David Cameron said on Friday.

In a speech to the Scottish Conservative conference, the prime minister portrayed the SNP as Scotland's establishment party.

And he outlined what described as the SNP's "litany of failure" while in power at Holyrood.

Opinion polls suggest the Conservatives are in a race with Labour for second place ahead of May's Holyrood election.

The SNP is widely expected to secure second successive majority in the Scottish Parliament in the election on 5 May, with the party having also formed a minority government between 2007 and 2011.

One seat

The Nationalists won all but three of Scotland's 59 seats at Westminster in last year's general election, with Labour, the Conservatives and Liberal Democrats winning just one seat each.

In his speech to delegates at the one-day conference in Edinburgh, Mr Cameron claimed that Labour's "collapse" in Scotland meant the country was "in danger of becoming a one-party state".

CAMERON: said the SNP was 'spendthrift, out-of-touch, dogmatic and inept."

He added: "We are the party that can challenge the SNP - now the only party that can challenge the SNP.

"They've been in power for nine years - they are the establishment."

'Layer of bureaucracy'

highlighted He "stagnating" school attainment figures, "falling" numbers of college students, "cuts" in the help for poorer university students and "unfulfilled" spending on the NHS as being among the SNP's "litany of failure" in government.

And the prime minister added: "There's even the absurd Named-Person policy, which ensures every child is allocated a guardian - even if they have parents; even if they have no need for this extra layer of bureaucracy.

"Well I'll tell you who needs a guardian someone to keep them in check - it's the SNP.

"And it falls to us, the Conservatives, the only party fit to expose these spendthrift, out-oftouch, dogmatic, inept Nationalists for what they really are."

The conference also heard from Defence Secretary Michael Fallon, who renewed his attack on Labour over its divisions on Trident.

Scottish And Conservative leader Ruth Davidson called on the SNP to commit to a new NHS funding guarantee in her address to delegates.

Ms Davidson said NHS budgets should increase by the higher of either 2% or all of the additional Barnett formula funding to Scotland, as a result of increased spending on the NHS in England.

She added that health spending in Scotland increased by only 1% in real terms between 2010 and 2015, compared with a 7% rise in England.

In Brief:

Omagh bomb case collapses

The case against the only remaining suspect charged with the 1998 Omagh bombing has collapsed.

Northern Irish prosecutors withdrew charges against Seamus Daly, a bricklayer from the Irish Republic, after a witness contradicted his previous testimony. The Real IRA attack, in which 29 people died, was the biggest single atrocity in Northern Ireland's Troubles. The case's collapse could now pave the way for Daly to challenge a 2013 civil court ruling that the evidence against him was overwhelming.

Poll watch

48% of people want Britain to remain in the EU; 52% would vote to leave in the referendum. However, when the poll's results are adjusted to take into account how likely respondents are to vote, support for leaving rises to 54%. 26% of people say Boris's decision to back the Out campaign has made them more likely to vote to leave.

36% of British people have a favourable opinion of socialism, 33% while capitalism favourably. Support for socialism is much higher in Germany, where 45% regard it favourably, compared to just 26% for capitalism.

Madonna and Ritchie chided by judge over custody dispute

Madonna and her exhusband Guy Ritchie have been urged by a judge to resolve the custody dispute over their son.

When the couple divorced in 2008, they agreed that Rocco would live with his mother.

However, the 15-yearold has recently been living in London with his father and in December he ignored a court order to fly back to New York and return to his mother.

State Supreme Court Justice Deborah Kaplan implored the singer and film director to settle the issue after their lawyers said a deal reached late on Tuesday had fallen apart.

"No one is disrupting his household other than the inability of the parents to reach a resolution," Judge Kaplan said. "If they cannot resolve this matter then eventually the court will."

Judge Kaplan scolded Madonna and Mr Ritchie for taking the matter to court, saying that Rocco had stated his wish to resolve the matter "in the most private way possible".

"Frankly, both parties here have chosen to live their lives in a very public way, and may welcome the exposure, but the child has not," she said.

"I urge them to consider what is the best interests of their son which may be to remove him from the spotlight."

None of the three appeared in person at the Manhattan hearing, with both parents calling from overseas.

Lawyer Ellen Sigal, representing Rocco, told the judge that, while he was enjoying his London schooling, he was having "a very difficult time" due to the custody arrangements.

"Having this order over his head has been very stressful for him," she said.

Hall's wife flogs million pound home and finally walks away

- Hazel Hall ends relationship after 58 years of marriage to paedophile star
- Disgraced BBC presenter Hall is said to be 'devastated by the break-up

Paedophile TV presenter Stuart Hall has been dumped by his wife after she sold their house and moved 200 miles away from him.

Hazel Hall, 77, has called an end to their 58-year marriage after enduring the humiliation of the disgraced BBC star's conviction and jail sentence for abusing 13 girls, some as young as nine years old, in 2013.

Hall, 86, is said to be 'devastated' by the news which comes just a week after their couple's £1.2million four-bedroom mansion, in Wilmslow, Cheshire, was sold for £995,000.

Hazel put the property, which includes a swimming pool, on the market after it was revealed that four of Hall's victims were fondled there while they had speech lessons, The Sun reported.

Disgraced star Hall is now living at a bail hostel in Oldham while his wife is said to be living with their daughter Francesca in north London.

"very difficult"

A source said: 'Initially Hazel wanted to stick by him but once his jail term was increased, she got used to being without him and decided it was

Scottish Secretary David Mundell revealed he felt like he had "gone 15 rounds with Mike Tyson" the day after he announced he is gay, but described the reaction as "very positive".

Mr Mundell, the first openly gay Tory Cabinet minister, made a statement on his website in January in which he said resolving to go public this year was "one of the most important decisions of my life".

In an interview broadcast on Thursday, the MP for Dumfriesshire, Clydesdale and Tweeddale said he made the decision for his own personal happiness.

Speaking on ITV Border's Around The House, Mr Mundell said: "I think everybody has to do what's right for them.

"I feel that even more strongly now, you know, there are people who aren't out and I don't think you can say automatically 'you must come out', you've got to do what's right for you, what you feel comfortable with.

"But I can look back and think, you know, of what I'd created in my own mind as to how difficult it might be and I've said I thought it would be more difficult than standing up at the Despatch Box in the House of Commons against my 56 SNP colleagues, which most people would think is a pretty daunting thing.

"In fact it wasn't, at the end of the day in that sense, although I did find it very very emotionally draining.

"I felt, the day after, that I'd gone 15 rounds with Mike Tyson in terms of my state and it took a little bit of time just to build back up to some sort of personal equilibrium in that sense and I feel I'm at that point now."

for the best.'

Hall who was recently seen walking close to his hostel arm-in-arm with another woman, has said going 'from being a national treasure to the bottom of the pond has been very difficult'.

However, a relative of Hazel showed little sympathy for his situation.

They said: He treated her so badly over the years. Once he was locked up, it was the final nail in the coffin.'

Hall will be on the Sex Offenders' Register for life. After initially insisting he was innocent, he later pleaded guilty to indecently assaulting girls aged from nine to 17 between 1967 and 1985.

He was handed a 15-month jail sentence, which prompted such outrage it was doubled on appeal. Months later, while Hall was in prison, two more women accused him of historic abuse.

In May 2014 he was convicted of one more abuse charge and handed a further 30 months' in jail.

■ Number of abuse victims 'could be as high as 1400'

Three brothers from an affluent Pakistani Muslim family have been jailed after a years-long campaign of grooming and then abusing possibly hundreds of local girls near their Rotherham home.

Last week, a judge spoke of damage "unimaginable proportions", of stolen childhoods and broken lives – before sentencing Arshid Hussain 35 years in jail; his brothers, Basharat and Bannaras, to 25 and 19 years respectively; their uncle to ten years; and a white accomplice, Karen MacGregor, a charity worker who had helped procure the girls, to 13 years.

In court, they were described as behaving "like a pack of

Trump in bizarre Diana claim

Donald Trump has never been lacking in confidence. The US Presidential hopeful confidently once declared that he could have slept with Princess Diana, despite her being a bit "crazy". In 1997, just weeks after Diana's death, Trump was interviewed by the "shock jock" Howard Stern, who asked: "You could've gotten her, right? You could've nailed her." Trump replied: "I think I could have." In another interview a few years later, the two men returned to the topic.

"She was supermodel beautiful, she had the height, she had the beauty, she had the even hesitation."

Downton star reveals 'spy' mother

Hugh Bonneville has revealed that his late mother worked for MI6.

Speaking Desert Island Discs, the Downton Abbey actor said that she worked for the spy agency for more than 30 years without mentioning it to her family. "We used to drop her off at her office in Lambeth. I opened the newspaper one day and it said: 'Century House, MI6 building, to be sold'," he recalled. "I looked at the photo and said: 'Mum, look, that's your office.' And she said: 'Mmm, yes, dear.' I said: 'You're a spy.' She said: 'No, I'm not a spy, dear.'" Bonneville said he was never able to find out anything more about her work. "All I know is she didn't have special umbrellas, or knives coming out of her toecaps, or anything like that."

Driving around in their sports cars, promising affection, gifts and excitement, they won the children's trust before assaulting them, then trafficking them across the country. The girls were gang raped, beaten, burnt and even urinated on.

shocking failures

Predictably the British press were outraged, with the Daily Mail claiming the case didn't just reveal the depravity of those on trial, but it also underlined the shocking failures of the authorities in Rotherham, who for 20 years either turned a blind eye to the Hussain brothers' vile enterprise, or colluded in it. Police had detailed intelligence underage girls were being systematically exploited, but failed to act. In court, one of the Hussains' victims said that police officers had once come across her performing a sex act on Bannaras in a car and that they saw what was happening and then walked off.

'sexual predators'

Others are accused of actively protecting the Hussains, and taking part in the abuse. In total, the Independent Police Complaints Commissioner received complaints against 92 officers. Nor does the council emerge well. Girls living in care were impregnated by known criminals, and men were found in their rooms late at night – yet no action was taken. The council's former deputy that leader, a relative of the Hussains, is alleged to have been aware of the brothers' crimes.

> According to Yasmin Alibhai-Brown Independentm The as many as 1,400 girls in Rotherham were exploited over a 16-year period with thousands more victims in other towns.

"The numbers would shoot up even higher were we to count the sisters and wives of these men. Sexual predators from traditional Pakistani families, and many other minority communities, don't just prey on white girls: they think all women and girls are low life. So let's keep fighting for the victims of street grooming; but let's not overlook the girls forced into marriage, and beaten and raped in their homes."

Life term for Match.com rapist

■ Man who sexually attacked seven women he met through popular dating site receives minimum term of 12 and a half years

"sexual predator" who raped five women and attacked two more after meeting them on internet dating site Match.com has been iailed for life.

Jason Lawrance, 50, of Liphook, Hampshire, used two profiles to meet his victims from five English counties, Derby Crown Court heard.

He must serve at least 12 and a half years before being eligible for parole.

Gregory Judge Dickinson, said he was "devious, manipulative and highly dangerous to women".

Lawrance committed three attacks months after marrying his wife who he met via the site.

assaults took place between June 2011 and November 2014 in Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire, Northamptonshire and Cambridgeshire.

self-Lawrance, builder, employed was found guilty on women, but was keen to Wednesday of five counts of rape, one count of attempted rape and one count of sexual assault following a twoweek trial.

'Enjoyed rape'

Sentencing him. Judge Dickinson said: "I am compelled to the dreadful conclusion that you enjoyed raping women.

"After these terrible crimes you acted as if nothing had happened.

"Given the chance you will rape again. I do not know when it may be safe to release you into the community."

The court heard Lawrance's parents and three children were "devastated" by his convictions, however his wife is standing by him.

During the trial, jurors were told Lawrance used two pictureless profiles keepitstraighttoday and straightmanlooking - to contact several thousand talk to them offline.

Derbyshire began investigating in November 2014 after officers received a call from a woman who said her friend was raped by Lawrance

Officers found that in June 2011 he drove a woman down a remote country lane near Crick Northamptonshire and raped her in the back of his van

Two years later he sent a woman a message saying "Boo! xx" 24 hours after attempting to rape her at her house in Spalding, Lincolnshire.

The jury was told he had consensual sex at a woman's house in Buxton, Derbyshire, in November 2013, but the following day raped her despite her "screaming hysterically".

He then sent her a text message reading: "When you were crying out for me to stop I couldn't, I'm so mad at myself

MONSTER: Police said Lawrance contacted women who were divorced or widowed, and many were lonely and vulnerable.

xxx" and another saying "I was disgusted with myself for hurting you. I am so sorry. I am too rough for you xxx xx".

A year later, in 2014, he raped two women in hotel rooms in Leicestershire and Cambridgeshire.

'Preyed on women'

Judge Dickinson said Match.com and police could learn lessons from the case after it came to light that four victims had previously reported his behaviour to the website but his profile was not removed.

Police said they hoped the case would get safety messages across for people using online dating sites.

Det Ch Insp Allison

Rigby, from Derbyshire Police, said: "Jason Lawrance is a prolific, serial rapist who preyed on women."

Police said he contacted women who divorced or widowed, and many were lonely and vulnerable.

During the trial it also emerged Lawrance was arrested by Lincolnshire Police in 2013 after one of his victims reported she had been raped at her home.

He was released on bail after officers said they had "insufficient evidence" to charge him.

Det Supt Rick Hatton from the force said they were constantly improving how they investigated rape and offences, sexual and said the against Lawrance was strengthened once more victims came forward.

Match.com spokesman said the company had the "most heartfelt concern" for the victims and it had a "zero tolerance policy" for reports of serious offences.

The firm said it had been unable to initially remove Lawrance's profile because abusive messages had been sent outside their website.

Their statement said members were encouraged to communicate within site where they have the technology to "spot unacceptable behaviour".

RYLANCE: Best Supporting Actor for "Bridge of Spies"

Rylance leads the charge on good night for British movie talent

MARK RYLANCE topped the bill in an impressive performance for British talent at Sunday' night's Academy Awards.

The much-respected veteran of stage and screen got the nod for Best Supporting Actor for his turn in the Tom Hanks thriller Bridge of Spies. The victory was something of an upset for the 56-year old, who is best known on these shores for his starring role as Thomas Cromwell in the acclaimed television series Wolf Hall, which aired on PBS last year.

And Rylance cut a slightly dazed figure accepting his award, as if he couldn't quite believe his luck, telling the audience: "I've always just adored stories, hearing them, seeing them, being in them. "So for me to have the chance to work with, I think, one of the greatest storytellers of our time, Steven Spielberg, it's just been such an honour."

Other notable British successes the night included a best documentary feature win for Amy, a film about the late singer Amy Winehouse, and for Jenny Beavan, who won for best costume design for Mad Max: Fury Road and in an ironic twist, was perhaps the most dressed down winner of the night, sporting a leather jacket from Marks & Spencer rather than the usual slinky evening gown. British singer Sam Smith picked up the Oscar for best original song and dedicated it to the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender community. Smith, 23, co-wrote Writing's On The Wall with fellow Briton Jimmy Napes for the latest James Bond movie, Spectre. An emotional Smith took to the stage with Napes and said: "I stand here tonight as a proud gay man and I hope we can all stand together as equals one

The British team of Andrew Whitehurst, Paul Norris, Mark Ardington and Sara Bennett took home the prize for visual effects for Ex Machina and Shan Christopher Ogilvie, from Stevenage was one of the two producers for Stutterer, a 12-minute British drama that won the Academy Award for best live action short film.

However there was disappointment for three better known British nominees: last year's winner Eddie Redmayne, who was nominated for best actor for The Danish Girl, lost out to The Revenant's Leonardo di Caprio, while Charlotte Rampling, nominated for 45 Years, saw the Best Actress statuette instead won by Brie Larson for Room. Elsewhere six-time nominee Kate Winslet, nominated for best supporting actress for Steve Jobs, was pipped by Alicia Vikander for the Danish Girl.

I'M VERY PROUD of my sister. Not only is she a great person she is ALSO a personal trainer in Navy, who loves dark chocolate and has two squares every day.

Is that so wrong? NO! People are often surprised to see her eating chocolate so often, but there's really no mystery to how she "gets away" with it, while staying so lean (she always has abs!) Two squares is a very small portion with only 105 calories. She has a daily calorie intake of about 2000 per day, so the chocolate is only about 5% of her total calories. That even leaves her room to fit in a weekend treat meal as well!

The fact is, weight loss is achieved with a calorie deficit, and weight is maintained by staying in energy balance, not by banning any specific food. But with the rigid traditional dieter's way of thinking, it would be unheard of to eat chocolate every day because high sugar and high fat foods are not allowed on a daily basis. Was there a particular reason you chose LA? Yes, I absolutely love American sitcoms and I did a lot of research on all the shows I was (and still am) passionate about and they all were (and still continue) to be cast and filmed in LA, so I made the move and haven't looked back since. I love it here! The opportunities are fantastic.

What do you miss most from home?

My family of course. It's so tough not being able to just walk down the street and see my grandparents. Even after three years, the time difference still trips me up. Sometimes I'm at home and all I want to do is call my mum, but then I do the math, and usually it's around 3am there. It's tough.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so why?

I remember stepping out of LAX and instantly feeling the warm sun on my skin and everywhere I looked there were hundreds of palm trees. I thought I was in a dream. I still pinch myself sometimes and remind myself how lucky I am to be in such a beautiful city where the sun is always shining. So I would say no, my first impression of LA hasn't changed at all.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Solihull?

Well, Solihull is a small town outside of Birmingham so everything is within walking distance.

I know most people who pass me on the street and I'm familiar with everything going on, whereas LA is so HUGE and it's full of people, shops, events, mayhem, premieres and parties happening daily and it's a lot to take in!

So I would say familiarity is the biggest difference.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I live in Beachwood, which isn't somewhere a lot of people know about. It's a little community of its own, just off Franklin and the 101. It's a beautiful area with lots of families and dogs. I walk up and down my street daily and meet so many great people. It's also where the Hollywood sign is, so the view is breathtaking. I would suggest you drive over, park your car and just take a stroll. It's wonderful.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

You need to really want it and I mean REALLY want it. If you're less than 100% sure about this career then LA is not for you. Everyone comes here from all over the world to pursue a career in the entertainment business and people are hungry. It can get very overwhelming at times and it's honestly not for the faint-hearted. Otherwise, these guys will eat you alive. Trust me on that one.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Your financial situation could be getting a boost as early as next week, so look for an opportunity to add to your bank account. It's a good week all-round. TAURUS: The sun in your opposite sign of Pisces will bring to a head a situation that is unresolved. Don't wait, deal with with this promptly.

GEMINI: It's time to complete a project which has been stagnating these past few months. You will be travelling (emotionally or otherwise) to a place where you can put things to rest.

CANCER: Movement is good for you and this week it's all around you and in the family also.

Be strong and all the hard work you put in last month will soon bear fruit.

LEO: Unfinished issues could hold you back from enjoying this weekend and even if it is not possible to finish it all, tackle what you can, make it your priority and spend some time relaxing, not stressing.

VIRGO: As this coming month sees the start of a better cycle be sure you are ready and willing to get going. If it is a change of work or home this will transpire well for you. But you must keep a handle on your stress levels.

LIBRA: In the part of your life that's not always on show or situations that are unresolved be prepared to be surprised and perhaps a little flattered as you find that all is not as it appears. You are in for a fun month.

SCORPIO: What are you not doing that you should be? It's up to you to get down to the nitty-gritty and deal with this promptly. Scorpios have had a tough beginning this year but that is about to change, sooner than you can imagine.

SAGITTARIUS: Know that what you reap is what you sow and this would be a good time to start thinking about the seeds you planted before last Christmas. This can be in any part of life so keep an eye out and get it completed this month.

CAPRICORN: Your financial situation is still not what you want. However, in order to achieve a positive flow of money you have to assume it is already here. This means lighten up the negative thoughts. You will find life is brighter by month's end.

AQUARIUS: A family member will likely ask for help these next few days. How you handle this situation will decide if they come back for more. You are in line to make some big decisions and maybe a move.

PISCES: The planets are all around you this month and egging you on to make some profound changes. You have some decisions to make so start by cutting the negative out of your life. Happy Birthday!

Murder at Whitehall: dark deeds at the Tudor court

Exclusive interview with author Amanda Carmack and a review of her new mystery set in the court of Queen Elizabeth

Rating: 4 Stars

"I've always been fascinated by Queen Elizabeth herself," says Murder at Whitehall author Amanda Carmack.

"A brilliant, strange, unreadable woman who came out of a terrible, dangerous young childhood young adulthood to become the greatest, or at least most famous, monarch in history. I am also a huge mystery reader, ever since I devoured my grandmother's copies of Christie, Sayers, and Chesterton as a child. The Renaissance is full of mysteries anyway. I know I, and many other people, wonder what really happened to Amy Robsart...such a dangerous period."

Murder at Whitehall is the fourth book in Carmack's Elizabethan Mystery series. Amateur sleuth Kate Havwood becomes embroiled in Tudor court intrigue and a devastating scandal. The story has many plot twists and the feeling of the 1500s is authentic, if a bit confusing. There are many characters named Mary, Catherine, and Jane. In the 1500s everyone was named after someone else. But Carmack's descriptions of clothing, castles, protocol, and music are enchanting and the central character of Kate is intelligent and warm. In sum, this is an engaging mystery to curl up with for a cozy evening.

The book opens in Queen Elizabeth preparations to celebrate the Twelve Days of Christmas at Whitehall Palace. She wants it to be as grand, like the celebrations her last stepmother planned for the family. There will be many visitors from Spain, Scotland, Sweden and even France. Not the friendliest crowd, many of them would rather see Queen Elizabeth dethroned. Kate Haywood is the queen's personal musician. When one of visiting Lords from Spain is found murdered, the queen looks to Kate to help solve the mystery and trace a threat Elizabeth has received.

Cormack says that when writing she typically wears yoga pants and her Downton Abbey "What would the Dowager Countess Do?"

t-shirt. She never suffers from writer's block. "Ideas are never the hard part for me," says Cormack. "Sorting them out, though, is almost impossible. I've always loved the 16th century. It's a period full of enormous change and excitement in so many areas of life...exploration, scientific advancement, England's rise as a real world power, and above all the arts, Shakespeare. The question was, what sort of hero did I need?" and playwrights were often recruited into Walsingham's service," secret "They Cormack. were literate and usually very educated. They mix with every strata of society and had very quick memories. Marlowe is the most famous of these actorspies, but I didn't want to use someone like him as my central detective. I decided on a female musician, someone whose family was close to the queen in some way, and that's how Kate

Haywood came to me."

Cormack enjoys traveling to Europe. "I find just wandering around old homes and gardens helps the most. I can envision my characters there, and try to imagine their everyday lives. This is especially fun when I try to work in real historical figures into my plots: Robert Dudley, Dr. Dee, Margaret Lennox, Queen of Scots, even Katherine Parr in a flashback. The British Library is wonderful, of course, and their librarians are helpful in finding whatever I need...letting me look at documents of the period, though under close supervision. Places like the Tower, Hardwicke Hall, Penshurst, Hatfield, and Hampton Court are also great, and their custodians most generous. Elizabethan handwriting is the worst, and I often can't read much ... without help."

Cormack is finishing the next Kate mystery, Murder at Fontainebleau, in which

A week of Toscars, Oscars and only-in-Hollywood moments...

Hey Britlings!

Award season is finally over and The Toscars was a BIG hit.

I want to give a big shout out to all our Brits in LA volunteers who helped out enormously on the night. Valeria, Kellyne, Wilson, Alicia, Claire and Craig without whom none of it would have ran so smoothly. And not forgetting Ewan, Eileen and Nadia, Nadia's mum, Christine Peake and her son Oliver, 17 who came to be our glamorous Little Master Toscar. He did a great job assisting our very talented host, Jai Rodriguez. We also had a wonderful pre-reception sponsored party, Hollywood Vodka.

The KMG Dancers

opened the show with a jaw-dropping routine to Cinema Italiano from the movie Nine, a subtle reference to this being our 9th Annual Toscars. This got the crowd all warmed up for Jai's opening monologue, which (unlike Chris Rock's speech) was all-inclusive, touching on every kind of religion, race, and gender imaginable, but in a very funny but respectful way. There was much laughter through the screening portion of the show. Except for when the last film began to roll, a parody of Room. Some familiar faces appeared started to appear on the screen... those of the producers. We had kept it a secret from the other teams as what we thought would be a nice surprise. Unfortunately, a team had to drop out at the last minute, so with very little time we got together and created a very speedy low-budget parody called SHROOM -Which you can check out at vimeo.com/155934122. I play a five-year-old boy, or rather a 42 year old who thinks he's five, coz he's shrooming out of his mind! But I can tell you we all had masses of fun! To be fair though because we secured all the judges we decided to opt out of the competition. We put together over fifty members of the Whacademy who voted in the competition, giving most of the awards to Mad Mex: Churro Road (6) and The Short (Short) (4) awards. But it was a very tough year as the standard was really high. But seriously huge congrats to all the participants, nominees and winners. It was a wonderful show!

ELT' BELTS 'EM OUT: Sir Elton John's Oscar viewing party was fabulous AND raised millions for AIDS research

After the awards we all gathered for a FABULOUS dessert reception in the courtyard and spent some quality time with some actual Oscar nominees. Benjamin Cleary and Shan Christopher Ogilvie, who presented the best director award at the Toscars and took home the REAL Academy Award on Sunday night for Best Live Action short film for Stutterer. Just put it down to some good old fashioned Toscar magic! seriously huge congrats to thise guys - they deserved it - not only are they great lads but the movie is really special too - check it out at www.stutterer.com. We're hoping they'll come back next year for our tenth ceremony next year and actually participate, but something tells me, they're gonna be very busy bees.

Oscar nights are only as good as the parties you get to attend and I ended up getting a kind invite to Elton John's Oscar viewing party in West Hollywood

Park, produced by my very good friend Virginia. It was a hugely successful night, raising a record £6.2 millin for his AIDS Foundation. Congrats to Elton, David and the staff. It was a spectacular party and even better...Elton himself performed. I was lucky to snag a seat very close to the stage to record some of it which I live periscoped for some of his fans all around the world.

I saw a lot of Elt' this week, courtesy of his spectacular secret pop-up concert the day before on the Sunset Strip. It took place in the parking lot of the old Tower Records at Noon and got my notification just a few hours before. There was something really magical to be standing on Sunset Boulevard, watching and listening to Elton on his piano with a full band singing hit after hit, under the lovely California sunshine. And to top it off Lady Gaga came on stage to duet with him on "Don't Let the Sun Go Down On Me." It's for moments like this that I'm truly grateful to be living in the country. In the words of every good president we've had: God Bless America.

Have a great couple of weeks all and look forward to seeing you at brekkie or the pub quiz in a couple of weeks hosted by our very own Sandro Monetti.

Cheers! Craig Young

Romance in full bloom for Orlando and Katy?

It looks like British Orlando actor Bloom and US singing sensation Katy Perry are officially, um... official!

While the couple have been spotted together here and there over the last few months, stirring up speculation of a romance, news sources have gone crazy this week as a series of pics showing the couple hiking together in sporty attire hit the confirming, tabloids, they are an "official couple."

Oo-er!

likes "Katy how down to earth Orlando is,"one insider said. "They seem to be getting serious and are an official couple. She calls him her boyfriend."

This all makes sense considering the amount of time they've been spending together recently. Not only did they go on a Hawaiian vacation together last week, but upon their return, they've been staying together in New York City.

In fact, last Tuesday night the couple was photographed leaving a romantic dinner date at The Polo Bar in Midtown Manhattan.

Perry literally dazzled in a sparkly black dress with drop earrings and bright red lipstick, while Bloom opted for a more casual style in gray pants and a black and leather jacket.

Another onlooker said, "It looked like Katy was very comfortable being herself in front of Orlando...

"They were sitting close to each other, [and] Orlando was a gentleman."

During their two-hour date, the source told E! News, "Katy was smiling during their dinner, and Orlando could not keep his eves off her while they were eating. The way it looked seemed like they had been dating each other for sometime now. They were very relaxed."

interesting One point, was, the duo notably absent from the 2016 Oscars as they embarked on their tropical vacay. The insider explains, "Katy and Orlando wanted to get away on their down time so they decided to go to Hawaii. They had known reason this year to attend the Oscars or the festivities around it."

Instead, Perry and Bloom hiked along the Na Pali coast in Kauai over the Oscar weekend, holding hands as they took in the views. The singer donned a pink bikini with a pair of palm tree-printed shorts while the actor opted for a pair of red swim trunks that showed off his toned abs.

The photos of their dinner date in Hawaii show Bloom with his arm wrapped tightly around the "Roar" singer, both looking very happy and (dare we say it) in love!

But their recent photographs are only the continued proof of their blossoming romance.

Not only did the pair attend several 2016

Golden Globes after parties together, they also met up with each other at Stella McCartney's Autumn 2016 Presentation during fashion week and then enjoyed a fun night out in Los Angeles shortly after.

Another source added, "Katy and Orlando are doing really well. They have been hanging out a lot over the past two months. They are a very chill pair... They both communicate great and laugh when they are around each other."

She must have a thing for Brits I reckon, after being married to Russell Brand... Let's hope this one lasts!

NEW MAN AT GOODISON: Farhad Moshiri has £1.3bn fortune

Everton get their tycoon

Iranian businessman Farhad Moshiri has bought a 49.9% stake in Everton, the Goodison Park club announced this week.

Moshiri, 60, sold his stake in Arsenal to business partner Alisher Usmanov on Friday so he could buy into Everton, who play Chelsea in the FA Cup quarter-finals next month.

"After an exhaustive search, I believe we have found the perfect partner to take the club forward," Everton chairman Bill Kenwright said.

The deal needs Premier League approval.

"I have got to know Farhad well over the last 18 months," Kenwright added. "His football knowledge, wherewithal financial convinced me he is the right man."

Providing there are no problems, it will bring to an end Everton's decade-long search for new investment.

Kenwright, bought Everton from Peter Johnson for £20m on 26 December 1999, said he was prepared to sell as far back as November 2007.

After years of inertia regarding a sale, there has been a growing intent to do a deal in recent months, fuelled by serious interest from a number of parties.

Kenwright has also been suffering from poor health and has rarely attended Everton games this season.

Talks did take place with an American and true blue spirit have consortium earlier this month, although they did not provide a clue to the eventual outcome.

> "Bill Kenwright has taught me what it means to be an Evertonian," Moshiri said

"There has never been a more level playing field in the Premier League than now."

Everton manager Roberto Martinez has put together an impressive squad, including spending a club record £28m to sign striker Romelu Lukaku from Chelsea.

Silverware continues to elude them. Everton beaten Manchester City in the semi-finals of the Capital One Cup last month and remain without a major trophy since they won the FA Cup in 1995.

is 'broken', admits Hamilton

Mercedes' Lewis Hamilton believes Formula 1 is broken as it struggles to finalize rules for the next two years.

McLaren-Honda driver Fernando Alonso added indecision over qualifying regulations for 2016 is "sad".

Hamilton was asked in a news conference if the sport was fundamentally broken, lacking direction or in rude health.

The British triple world champion said: "Probably the first two you suggested. I don't want to say too much but I agree with those."

I repaid gaffer's faith, says cup hero Caballero

Manchester goalkeeper Caballero says he has repaid manager Manuel Pellegrini's trust in him with his Capital One Cup heroics at Wembley.

The Argentine saved three Liverpool spotkicks as City won the final 3-1 on penalties after a 1-1 draw on Sunday.

Caballero, 34, was criticised after a 5-1 FA Cup fifth-round loss to Chelsea at Stamford Bridge a week earlier.

"It is well deserved for me to play this final," Caballero, picked ahead of first-choice Joe Hart, told BBC Sport.

Caballero has started just four Premier League games since moving to the Etihad from Malaga in July 2014.

He had started every round of the League Cup this season and boss Pellegrini said he would rather have lost the final than drop Caballero.

The former Boca Juniors keeper kept out penalties by Lucas, Philippe Coutinho and Adam Lallana after the game had ended all square after 120 minutes.

"It was incredible. To save three penalties and win a trophy is amazing,"

CUP THAT CHEERS: Caballero was the hero for City added Caballero. enjoyed this a lot because it was hard work for me.

"It was the decision of the manager to put me in the starting line-up and now I can return his confidence in me."

Pellegrini said he never planned to reinstate England international Hart, who has played in 24 of City's 26 Premier League games this season, against Liverpool.

"I would prefer to lose a title than lose my word," said the City boss. "My word is more important than football.

"We deserved to win the game before penalties, but I'm happy to win it that way with Willy as a great hero.

"Maybe most of the media were waiting for him to make a mistake and criticise my decision but I promised he would play both cups.

"He had to play against Chelsea with a young team so he conceded five goals. But I never lost trust in him because I know how good a player he is."

Pellegrini had fielded a weakened side against Chelsea in the FA Cup, mindful of a midweek trip to Dynamo Kiev in the last 16 of the Champions League as well as Sunday's final. He was rewarded with two victories, and the 62-vear-old Chilean

"That decision received a lot of criticism but, as a manager, I have to make a decision that is the best for the team."

added: "I took a difficult decision last week not to continue in the FA Cup.

Jones's winning start continues

England sit atop the Six Nations table with three wins out of three following a battling 21-10 victory over Ireland at the weekend.

Conor Murray's try had given the visitors a narrow lead early in the second half after England had dominated territory and possession but failed to convert it into points.

But two tries in five minutes from Anthony Watson and Mike Brown snatched back control of what had been a tight, error-strewn match.

And ferocious, often last-ditch defence then kept waves of Irish attacks at bay and left Jones's men top of the championship table.

Ireland have now failed to win any of their opening three matches and, with Wales next to visit Twickenham in a fortnight, talk will turn to a possible Grand Slam for the men in white.

It is premature England must also visit France on the last weekend - but the ebullient Jones will be delighted with the way they came through the sternest test of his young regime.

Jones told reporters after the match: "I think our performances have stepped up. We were facing a better team

"We probably left 10 to 15 points out there, as we couldn't always convert our attacking pressure. We weren't quite sharp enough and we were letting them get a hand in at crucial times."

Sanchez: we need more belief

Arsenal lacked the self-belief to win the Premier League even before their backto-back defeats by Manchester United and Swansea.

The Gunners lost 3-2 at Old Trafford and 2-1 at home to Swansea in midweek to slip six points behind leaders Leicester.

"Sometimes we lack the mentality that we are already winning 1-0 when we go out on to the pitch," Sanchez told Directv Sports before the United match.

"We lack this hunger to believe that we can be champions."

Sanchez added: "If we go out onto to the pitch with hunger to become champions, to win the Premier League or the Wednesday's Swansea, Gunners manager Arsene Wenger also said his side's loss of form "looks a bit" like a confidence issue.

"The players are very down but we have to respond. We have to focus on our job and remind ourselves that we have some quality as well."

Lashford in the Euros mix. says Hodgson

England manager Roy Hodgson has left the door open for Marcus Rashford to make his Euro 2016 squad.

The Manchester United striker, 18, scored twice on his debut against FC Midtjylland and then two more in the win over Arsenal on Sunday.

Rashford, who did not score against Watford on Wednesday, has only been capped at under-18 level for England.

"I would neither rule him in or rule him out, I just hope he can do well," Hodgson said.

"I have been watching Rashford for two years, so I have known about him for a long time. He is in our system."

He added he was delighted that England Under-18 player was getting chances in Manchester United's first team.

"Most of all, I hope he is allowed to develop as an 18-year-old should and people don't try to put him under enormous pressure," he said.

"Scoring four goals in three games is a great achievement and if he can keep that up, it is great for Manchester United and England."

Manchester City cannot afford any more slipups if they are to win the Premier League title, says captain Vincent Kompany.

City lost 3-0 loss at Liverpool on Wednesday their third league defeat in a row.

It left them 10 points behind leaders Leicester, though title rivals Arsenal and Tottenham also lost.

"We can't make any more mistakes but I didn't expect all the other teams to lose," centre-back Kompany said.

Bilic outfoxes Pochettino to damage Tottenham's title ambitions

HIGH FLYING SPURS had their wings well and truly clipped by a dominant West Ham side on Wednesday night who produced a quite superb performance to win 1-0 at the Boleyn Ground.

Michail Antonio continued his hot streak, scoring a first half header that was enough to see off a Spurs side for whom a run of six successive wins came to an abrupt halt.

The result capped a good night for Premier League pace settes Leicester, who also saw title rivals Arsenal and Manchester City slump to defeat.

Having come from behind to beat Swansea City 2-1 at the weekend, Spurs went into Wednesday's London derby with the chance to move ahead of leaders Leicester City, who were held to a 2-2 draw by West Bromwich Albion 24 hours earlier.

But Spurs were unable to recover after going behind in the first half, with Antonio's early header proving the difference in a frenetic derby encounter.

Mauricio Pochettino's team pride themselves on pressing their opponents but had the tables turned on them ruthlessly by their hosts, especially in a harrowing first 45 minutes in which they were run off their feet and out of position.

Spurs could never gather any momentum or rhythm and, on the rare occasions they threatened, the normally reliable Kane was unable to find the target.

This was only their fourth defeat of the Premier League season - and they have an immediate chance to make amends in the north London derby with Arsenal at White Hart Lane on Saturday.

Antonio converted a Dimitri Payet corner to net his fourth goal in four home matches for Slaven Bilic's team, who had chances to increase their lead in a dominant first 45 minutes.

Spurs responded well in the second half and looked the more likely to score as they attempted to make it a happy 44th birthday for manager Mauricio Pochettino and move above Leicester on goal difference.

However, it was Bilic and the home supporters who were provided with reason to celebrate, West Ham holding on to maintain their push for Uefa Champions League qualification.

It took Antonio just seven minutes to break the deadlock with his second goal in as many matches as he met Payet's corner from the right with a powerful near-post header that Hugo Lloris could not keep out.

Lloris redeemed himself somewhat eight minutes later, producing a fine diving save to his left to turn Mark Noble's long-range drive behind.

Payet had a curling effort deflected wide late in the half and Spurs will have been relieved to head into the interval only a goal down given the pressure they were forced to soak up.

Ben Davies lashed wide shortly after the restart in what was Spurs' first shot of the match, with Erik Lamela then heading well wide at the near post in the 53rd minute.

A rejuvenated Spurs continued to surge forward in search of an equaliser and were denied in dramatic circumstances when Adrian pulled off an excellent double save to keep out Toby Alderweireld's fierce low effort and Harry Kane's follow-up.

Dele Alli, who was left on the bench after picking up an injury in the warm-up, was thrown on in place of Nacer Chadli as Pochettino tried everything to find a leveller.

But, after West Ham defender James Collins limped off to be replaced by Reece Oxford, the visitors were fortunate not to fall 2-0 down when Antonio spurned a chance to double his tally, firing over from Payet's superb free-kick in the 66th minute.

Spurs were unable to punish West Ham for Antonio's profligacy, though, and remain three points behind Leicester going into the weekend's meeting with neighbours Arsenal, who also suffered a disappointing evening in being beaten 2-1 by Swansea.

West Ham United manager Slaven Bilic said after the game: "We expected this atmosphere tonight, it is the game of the season for us.

It is maybe our best performance, from the first minute we were on the front foot and dominant, tactically, technically and physically."
