BIG SAMS SORRY EXIT

■ Allardyce jets out to Spanish bolt-hole as Telegraph sting forces him to quit England job

SAM Allardyce flew out of Britain on Wednesday with £1million in his pocket after being forced to quit in disgrace as England manager.

The 61-year-old was handed the huge pay-off as he lost his dream job after just 67 days - the shortest reign as England manager.

Before heading off to his bolthole abroad Allardyce blamed "entrapment" for his downfall.

He left behind a growing corruption scandal following claims that eight unnamed current or former Premier League managers took 'bungs' when buying players.

Allardyce admitted he made "an error of judgment" after he was caught out in an undercover sting as he negotiated a £400,000 deal with fake businessmen, who were in fact reports from The Daily Telegraph.

As he prepared to set off from his £500,000 home in Bolton with wife Lynne, he told how he had just been trying "to help" out a friend of 30 years, his agent Scott McGarvey.

Allardyce said: "On reflection it was a silly thing to do. It was an error of judgment on my behalf and I've suffered the consequences. Entrapment has won on this occasion and I have to accept that."

The father of two paid the ultimate professional price after he was filmed allegedly cashing in on his role as England boss, offering advice on how to sidestep transfer rules laid down by the FA.

Hours after revelations in Monday's he had a confidentiality agreement and could not answer further questions.

He added: "I'm off abroad to chill out and reflect. I'd like to wish all the England lads, Gareth and all the staff all the very best."

'laughing stock'

Asked whether he would return to football as a manager in the future, Allardyce was uncertain, simply offering: "Who knows?"

The former England boss then climbed into a taxi after the driver had helped carry matching suitcases to the car. He is thought to be heading to his £1.5million holiday home called "Big Sam's villa" in the Spanish hills on the Costa Blanca.

Allerdyce's departure means the FA is once again on the lookout for a new manager just months after crashing out of the Euro 2016 tournament.

During the recorded interview, Allardyce mocked Roy Hodgson's speech by referring to him as 'Woy' and said his predecessor didn't have the "personality" to lead England. He also criticised Princes William and Harry as well as former assistant manager Gary Neville.

But his thoughts on ways around the FA's ban on third-party ownership of stars was arguably even more damaging. He told the undercover crew it was "not a problem" to bypass rules and claimed he knew of agents who were "doing it all the time".

On Wedesday former England captain Alan Shearer accused Allardyce of a "catastrophic misjudgment" and claimed that England were now the "laughing stock of world football".

Match Of The Day presenter Gary Lineker said on Twitter: "Surely it's time for a proper police investigation into such allegations. The game is rife with corruption and needs cleaning up. Now."

Corbyn calls for party unity after sweeping victory in Labour contest

Jeremy Corbyn has urged the British Labour Party to unite behind him after his overwhelming victory against leadership challenger Owen Smith.

Mr Corbyn strengthened his mandate with a 61.8% share of the vote - up from 59.5% last year - and won the support of more than 300,000 party members and supporters in a result which is likely to kill off any prospect of further attempts to unseat him for some time to come.

'democratic choice'

Accepting victory before cheering supporters in Liverpool, the veteran left-winger said he wanted to "wipe the slate clean" after a bruising contest, and called on Labour MPs to "work together and respect the democratic choice that's been made".

In a statement, Mr Smith said he respected the result and urged Labour moderates not to split the party in response.

He has previously said he will not serve in a Corbyn shadow cabinet, which is thought likely to be reshuffled soon as the leader attempts to bring back on board some of the MPs who walked out of his top team in June.

Mr Corbyn said both he and his challenger were part of the "same Labour family" as he appealed for unity after receiving 313,209 of the votes cast, compared with 193,229 for Mr Smith.

'wonderful supporters'

A breakdown of the figures showed the Islington North MP defeated his challenger in all three sections of the 500,000-strong electorate - full members, supporters from affiliated organisations like the unions, and registered supporters who paid a £25 fee to vote.

He acknowledged he had a responsibility as leader to unite the party, but added: "It is also the responsibility of the whole party-Members of Parliament, councillors, party members and our wonderful supporters across the country - to work together and respect the democratic choice that's been made."

Quoting the maiden speech of former Labour MP Jo Cox, who was shot and stabbed to death earlier this year, Mr Corbyn said: "Always remember in our party, we have much more in common than that which divides us."

'Labour or nothing'

Mr Smith, who quit as shadow work and pensions secretary to fight for the leadership, said he would "reflect carefully" on what role he could play in Labour's future.

But he ruled out leaving for a rival centreleft party, saying: "I have no time for talk of a split in the Labour movement - it's Labour or nothing for me.

 $\hbox{``And although today's}\$ result shows that our movement remains divided, it now falls primarily to Jeremy Corbyn, as Labour leader, to heal those divisions and to unite our movement.

"We have to turn round our dire opinion poll ratings and take on this right-wing, failing Tory government.

"Jeremy has won this contest. He now has to win the country, and he will have my support in trying to do so.

"Above all, despite present divisions, we have to stick together in for the long term.

"I call on those party members disappointed by the result and tempted to look elsewhere to stay with Labour, and to stay involved. Let's work together to renew this movement and take the fight to the Tories," added Mr Smith.

It's a right royal giggle as Wills and Kate are served suggestive clams

■ Royal couple left speechless by phallic-shaped local delicacy during trip to British Columbia

THE Duke and Duchess of Cambridge found royal duty a trial this week - when they were invited to eat raw phallic-shaped shellfish.

The geoduck clamwas served as the couple visited a food festival on their tour of Canada, prompting William peer quizzically at their helpings in laughing: "Presentationally they are quite challenging."

A perk of royal life might be getting to sample free food and definitely the downside.

However putting on brave faces at the festival in Kelowna, British Columbia, the couple pronounced the geoduck delicious.

Kate said: "It's really unusual. I've never seen it before. It's so fresh."

Chef Ned Ball agreed with others' remarks about the shape of the dish, saying: "It is absolutely phallic – but at the end of the day it is a clam."

Several media outlets and newspapers focused on the brief appearance of the toddler and his 16-month-old sister Princess Charlotte at Victoria's airport on Saturday, where the Canadian prime minister among dignitaries waiting on the tarmac to greet the royals

After shaking hands with Prince William and his wife Kate, Trudeau knelt down to meet three-year-old George, who was holding his father's hand. Trudeau was was seen lifting his hand, trying to high-five the young prince, who shook his head and did not accept the gesture.

Videos and photos of the interaction made headlines across Britain, with the Mirror sniffing: politician "Superstar Mr. Trudeau might have endeared himself to millions online through his outspoken feminism, support for diversity and willingness to embrace Internet memes, but it seems to take more than that to impress Will and Kate's eldest."

Similar reports were done by The Independent, with a story headlined: "Prince George leaves Justin Trudeau hanging after he goes for a highfive."

The Daily Mail shared a story with the headline: "Sorry, one doesn't highfive with commoners.'

Wealth of people in their 30s has 'halved in a decade'

British citizens in their early 30s are half as wealthy as those now in their 40s were at the same age, a report finds.

The think tank found that people born in the early 1980s were the first post-war group not to have higher incomes in early adulthood than those born in the preceding decade.

"This is partly the result of the overall stagnation of workingage incomes," it said. "But it also reflects the fact that the great recession hit the pay and employment of young adults the hardest."

Revealed: the behind the scenes bust-up over sexing-up Sooty

The idea to introduce a female puppet to Sooty's children's TV show in the 1960s was so controversial that the BBC director general had to intervene, a new documentary has revealed.

The suggestion by Sooty creator Harry Corbett caused a furore in the press, which claimed it would "introduce sex into a children's programme".

The show's producer and a BBC governor were against Sooty having a girlfriend.

BBC DG Hugh Carlton Greene finally stepped in to allow panda Soo's introduction.

Matthew Corbett, Harry's son, told the documentary: "My father was called into the head office and the director general of the BBC said he had made a decision."

He said Greene had ruled that Sooty having a female friend "was to be allowed - but they must never touch".

So Soo was introduced in 1965 - originally voiced by Harry Corbett's wife Marjorie - and she has been at Sooty's side ever since.

The documentary, titled Sooty Ungloved, will have its world premiere in Guiseley, Yorkshire, on Saturday, with profits from the screening going towards providing a defibrillator for the area. Corbett and his family lived in the town for 35 years. He and the puppet found fame on TV in the early 1950s.

When Corbett suggested introducing a female character in the 1960s, the show's producer Trevor Hill dismissed the idea "on the grounds that sex would be creeping into the programme", according to a letter written by Corbett in

The tabloid press picked up on the disagreement, causing a row between Corbett and Grahame Miller, the BBC's head of north regional programmes.

Miller accused Corbett of orchestrating a campaign in the press for Sooty to be allowed a girlfriend, letters from the BBC archive reveal.

As a result, he told Corbett the BBC was prepared to "hold up the contractual negotiations which are in train" and "urgently review the future of the Sooty series in BBC Television".

One of the BBC governors, Dame Anne Goodwin, was also strongly opposed to Sooty having a female friend.

In May 1965, Hill wrote to Miller: "I was left in no doubt as to her feelings in this matter!

The Sooty Show was cancelled by the BBC two years later, however, before being picked up by ITV.

ALSE ECONOMY: Dr. Peter Barnett, 45

Lawyer disbarred

for repeatedly

dodging train fare

A BARRISTER dubbed "the Artful Dodger" after avoiding £6,000 in train fares has been booted out of his profession.

Oxford graduate Dr Peter Barnett, 45, commuted daily from his £600,000 home in Thame, Oxfordshire.

He boarded at sleepy Haddenham & Thame Parkway station in Buckinghamshire without a ticket.

At Marylebone, after the 50-mile journey, he "tapped" his Oyster card and exited. When the Australian-born lawyer was challenged in 2014 he said he had boarded in north-west London.

He was accused of cheating Chiltern

Railways out of more than £23,000 which would have made him the UK's worst ever fare dodger.

He admitted fraud between April 2012 and November 2014 at City of London magistrates court last year.

Dr Barnett, who worked for a think-tank, was spared jail after his lawyer Angus Bunyan said the actual loss was £5,892.70. Judge Ola Omotosho ordered him to pay it back, work 200 hours unpaid and gave him a four-month suspended prison sentence.

After the conviction, his dismissal by the Bar Standards Board this week became inevitable.

Older women like 'bonkbusters' because 'they're not getting any' claims best-selling author

Older women enjoy reading racy novels because they are 'not getting enough', bestselling author Prue Leith has suggested.

Women who grew up reading Jilly Cooper's "bonkbusters" are not as easily shocked because they are used to it, she also joked.

Speaking at the Henley Literary Festival this week, Ms Leith, who made her name a food writer before moving into the more racy world of sexyladen romantic novels, added: "If [some people] know there is going to be a sex scene in a novel, they won't buy it because they think it will be toecurlingly gynaecological.

"I often say to people... this novel is racier than this one and let me tell you, most older women go for the racy ones."

When asked why, she suggested, "because they are not getting enough?" before adding: "I think it is because they are grown up and relaxed and confident, so they're fine about it."

Apple ink deal for Battersea Power station move

■ London mayor hails deal, describes capital as the leading city for trade and investment."

agreed Apple has a deal to move its London headquarters to occupy almost half of the redevelopment of Battersea Power Station, relocating 1,400 staff to the iconic building.

The company will be the largest office tenant in the development, taking six floors, and moving in in 2021. The deal is the largest office letting in London's West End in 20 years, according to the site's developer.

The iPhone maker will consolidate its staff from its existing London offices into the new building, making it the largest employer in Wandsworth borough.

Tincknell, Rob chief executive Battersea Power Station Development Company, said: "It has always been our clear objective to create one of London's most thriving communities and this commitment from Apple will undoubtedly help us achieve our goal."

Knight Frank CBRE acted Battersea for Power Station Development Company to broker the deal, while Cushman & Wakefield acted for Apple.

The Battersea Power Station development, which when completed will comprise more than 4,300 homes, as well as office space, shops and hotels, is owned by Malaysian shareholders Sime Darby, SP Setia and The Employees Provident Fund (EPF).

This helped the UK to leapfrog Japan, Hong Kong and Finland into seventh place out of 138 countries this year, representing its highest ranking since comparable records began a decade

It came as European powerhouse Germany slipped one place into fifth as the eurozone continues to grapple with low growth and inflation.

While the rankings do not take into account June's Brexit vote, the WEF there were reasons to be optimistic about the UK's competitiveness.

It said the decision to leave the EU meant the Government could set policies and regulations that were "optimal" for the UK instead of having to "compromise" with 27 other EU member states.

It also said UK policymaking likely to become more transparent following its exit from the bloc.

However, WEF warned that leaving the bloc could increase

It also warned that the vote to leave risked diminishing the UK's ability to attract and retain top talent.

Sir Cliff's relief at end of sex crime probe

Sir Cliff Richard says "a Yorkshire police, which cloud lifted" when he was informed he would not be prosecuted over claims of historical sex offences.

"It's not been the best two years of my life but it's all gone," he told Ken Bruce on BBC Radio 2 this week.

The singer was the subject of a long-running investigation by South

He was never arrested or charged, and always maintained his innocence.

The claims against the singer were dropped on 16 June on the grounds of insufficient evidence. The CPS reviewed the case following an application by one of his accusers but concluded this week that their decision has been correct.

Sir Cliff was speaking to BBC Radio 2 after announcing the release of a new album, Just... Fabulous Rock 'n' Roll which will feature a duet with Elvis Presley.

Meet a Member: Michele Paradise

Meet Michele Paradise from London, who moved to LA nine months ago for a lifestyle change and greater opportunities in her career.

Michele was born on the East Coast of the US and was discovered by the designer Zandra Rhodes to be her muse. "I left for London and didn't look back. I enjoyed a 20-year international catwalk modeling career and loved every minute of it. I'm a hybrid. I don't consider myself American or British, just the best of both worlds.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

After retiring from modeling in 2000, I trained to work in the field of human behavior and all of the modalities that I use with my clients originate from California or have evolved into even greater things here. I believed that the mindset here would be more conducive to what I do and I was right. California has always symbolized the new frontier to me and that hasn't changed. LA is full of great creative minds who are willing to embrace new ideas and build on them. Also, my son moved here five years ago with his British band, Charming Liars, and has been encouraging me to move ever since. He believed that this was a better environment for the work I do and he was

What do you miss most from home?

The banter and the humor I miss shows like 8 out of 10 Cats Does Countdown, QI and of course, the Great British Bake Off. And pubs, of course. I've recently found a way to watch those shows here and relish them even more

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since? If so, why?

After living in London and other large European cities, I didn't feel like LA had a center, a soul. There wasn't a West End or Oxford Street where you knew you could go to shop, eat or just walk through throngs of people. I now get LA and I love the small community feeling in each area.

West I live in Hollywood and love the fact that I can walk to shops, see people on the streets and not always rely on my car.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

The car is king! You don't meet many people on the streets but you also have a lot more room to walk on the pavement, and I love to walk. I couldn't write this without including the weather. That is the biggest difference. From time to time I do miss the smell of rain but I get over it quickly.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

My hidden gem is a rather large Indian 'corner' shop in Los Feliz called India Sweets & Spices. It's the size of a football pitch and by the time you leave the store, you can have your evebrows threaded, eat a hot Indian meal, buy a new outfit, buy loads of incense, Cadbury's chocolate, Heinz baked beans and PG Tips, all under one roof.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

What I've noticed most amongst my British friends and family is that they sometimes find the American friendliness a bit disingenuous but it's not. Roll with it, enjoy it. You might even get used to it after a while! I find myself having the most interesting conversations with waiters and Uber drivers about topics from politics to spirituality. Americans are talkative and very friendly people. Embrace it!

Lots of our members the best piece of advice

MICHELE PARADISE: "Americans are talkative and very friendly people. Embrace it!"

you've been given?

The best bit of advice I've been given is that life isn't a dress rehearsal. So when you move here, get involved. Taste all that you can in LA from hikes, restaurants. beaches. theatres and nature. I came to LA to be closer to nature and I love the fact that the mountains and the beach are equidistant from my apartment.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you? Are you working on anything at the moment? You can find out more about me on my website www. changeyourmindforgood.com. Shortly after arriving in LA I was introduced to Deepak Chopra who very much liked the work I am doing to help people relieve stress and anxiety from their lives and invited me to become a Wellness Expert on his new digital wellness platform jiyo. com, where I have my own channel entitled The Healing Haven.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Keep it all low key this week and don't make waves over anything as the current life situation will be here for some time ahead. With this in mind it's time to get the plan going that has been hovering in your mind for a few weeks or more.

TAURUS: Write a list of priorities and start with the biggest as your ruler Venus (your boss sign) is assisting you this month ahead. She will be helping you as the month progresses, especially in romance and relationships.

GEMINI: It's time to deal with what has been put on the back burner so far this month. Now your rascally boss Mercury is moving in a positive direction. You must remember what you decided earlier in the year and follow through with the plan now.

CANCER: This weeks brings a positive beginning and chance to make peace or amends with any one or anything that has caused you upset; chances are you did not see the picture clearly at the time. This past month has been somewhat slow overall, due to Mercury in retrograde. LEO: The good news is if you take control the issue you have been stressing over will be sorted completely before another week goes by. Any trip taken before mid-October will not go as smoothly as it will if you wait for a week or two.

VIRGO: If any area of life is not going as smoothly as you expect you can let go of worry about the outcome; all will be well in the end. Mercury your boss was very active in delaying something important to you. Not to worry! You are back on track now.

LIBRA: As it is the beginning of your particular new year make at least one resolution that you know you can fulfill. Your lovely boss Venus is in your money and gifts area...woohoo! Happy Birthday.

SCORPIO: Remember this time last month? So realize that all things change and that which came to pass was not anywhere near as bad as you thought. You have put into place several changes and this coming week or so ahead Venus the lover is helping you and you should be much in demand SAGITTARIUS: Your favorite travel period is coming up so be ready to go at a moment's notice and take a different route this time as you are truly in need of a break away. You will be lucky in some way this week - maybe the lottery. A word of caution, Saturn in your life currently is keeping you in line.

CAPRICORN: Pluto the lord of digging up dirt is settling down deeper into your life so the best thing is to look at what you know you can change and let the rest take its own time. Try to make a clear-headed analysis of what has transpired and everything will likely fall into place

AQUARIUS: You have a chance to take stock this week ahead. You will see how far you have come since summer started. So even for a day or two back off of anyone or any kind of pressure that tells you to act now. As we get deeper in to October you will be too busy to take time. PISCES: This week ahead confront what upsets you in a non-threatening way and see how much better life will be as a result of action taken for yourself. You will find that as we move into autumn you will feel more like enjoying time with friends and family.

The Huntingfield Paintress: heaven up there

Exclusive interview with author Pamela Holmes and her book about St Mary's Church in Suffolk and its beautifully painted ceiling

Rating: ★★★

"I wasn't thinking about making a New Year's resolution," says The Huntingfield Paintress author Pamela Holmes. "But, I came out with one, to write a novel about the woman who had decorated the church. Two years later, I achieved that ambition. It's a resolution and a dream come true."

On New Year's Day 2011 Holmes and her husband visited village beautiful of Huntingfield in Suffolk. "We went inside the ancient church of St Mary's. It was bright outside but dark and gloomy in the small church. A sign suggested the visitor to the church put a pound into the box on the wall. Now, where above our heads it had been shadowy, there shimmered a medieval ceiling of saints, apostles and religious iconography in bright colours and gold leaf. The rafters were wild with patterns and pigment. Carved winged angels leapt from the ends of the hammer beam roof. I was bowled over."

Based on the true Victorian era story of Mildred Holland and her husband William Holland, who was the vicar in a small Suffolk village, I love that it's a real place we can visit. However, Mildred doesn't get to painting until halfway though the book. There is lots of time with peripheral characters and with Mildred's interaction (or lack of) with the women of the town. I was left wanting more about Mildred's life after she finished painting. Although at times the story moved slowly, it's still lovely. For the first eight years of their marriage Mildred and William lived abroad as the living at the vicarage was still occupied until the current vicar decided to retire. When they returned they found the church in disrepair. As work progressed on the church, she thought they needed art on the ceiling, like they'd seen in Italy. She painted the first part of the church. The town was scandalized, but on seeing it they liked what she'd done. They had only one comment. Why was it only over the pews for the rich? Didn't all the parishioners deserve would drive what Victorian woman, expected to administer tea and sympathy to parishioners, to stand on a sixty feet high scaffold," says Holmes. "And, to work stretching up above her head or lie on her back, without the benefits of heating or lighting, to create a 15th century angel ceiling. I was inspired to find out more...and I did. Then I began to write the story behind the facts, what drove this woman to take on this Herculean task. A leaflet explained that in the 1850s, Mildred Holland, the parish vicar's wife, had single-handedly created this medieval fresco."

"I couldn't understand

"I read widely around the topic of Victorian England including the lives of vicars, artists, the impact of industrialisation, public health and the role of women," says Holmes. "I interviewed people such as an art historian, a specialist in gold leaf application and a vicar's daughter. I visited places and buildings relevant to the story, I drew pictures and patterns from the Church ceiling and I lived for two weeks in Huntingfield village in an ex-laundry, walking the hills and woods, to absorb what it might be like to live in Huntingfield."

Holmes won the Jane Austen Short Story Award in 2014 for The Wedding Planner and was Highly Commended with the HISSAC award in 2015 for We Battle for the Taj. Besides writing short stories, Holmes writes a diary and has written songs for her band. The Huntingfield Paintress considered by several production companies for film or TV.

Matthew Smith, founder and owner of Urbane Publications, is Holmes editor. "There are many stories that deserve to be told, but it is a very rare and wonderful feeling when you see a story that has to be told," says Smith. "As a small, but quickly growing, independent publisher, Urbane is focusing on developing brilliant new authors and taking them to a wider audience."

Holmes is currently writing her second novel, a story set in the 1970s

Pamela Holmes was born in Charleston, South Carolina and now lives in central London, where she likes to cycle around her beautiful city and walk on Hampstead Heath.

Takei the high road

I needed a bit of light relief over the weekend and opted to watch the documentary 'To Be Takei' on Netflix. However, it wasn't fun-filled as I anticipated. George Takei discusses many things; from being a pioneer Asian actor, his work as an activist for the LGBT community, and he also shares memories of the four years he spent as a child in an internment camp for Americans of Japanese heritage in Arkansas during WW2.

For those of you who weren't aware following the Pearl Harbor attack and the subsequent hysteria that the US was about to be invaded by the Japanese army the American government of the time decided the safest option was to round up all Americans of Japanese heritage and Japanese immigrants living in Pacific Coast states and put them in camps for the duration of the war. It's worth noting that over 60% of those interned were AMERICAN citizens. The only place in the Western United States this wasn't done Hawaii, where Japanese-Americans constituted too large a segment of the population for it to be feasible. Instead they confiscated their boats and radios and closed all the Buddhist temples.

Harry Styles casts doubts over whether One Direction will return!

It's been just over a year since One Direction announced they were taking a break and now Harry Styles has hinted the band's hiatus could be longer than expected.

Sounds like something something you might say to grab a few column inches, if you ask me!

In his first solo interview the singer has cast doubt over whether the band would ever actually make a return

When asked about the future of One Direction, Harry said: "I don't know.

"When we started people always asked, 'where do you think you'll be in five years?' It's a difficult question to answer.

"I would never say we'll never do anything ever again but it's good for us to be exploring different things.

"Maybe at some point everyone will want to do something again but it'll be better if it happens naturally like, 'Hey, we all really want to do this again'. If that were to happen it would be amazing.

"I would never rule that out. It's the most important, greatest thing that ever happened to me, being in that band. It completely changed my life."

In the interview with Another Man Magazine, Harry was quizzed by Paul McCartney and his good friend Chelsea Handler.

Speaking about splitting off from Louis Tomlinson, Liam Payne and Niall Horan, Harry explained: "The nice thing for me is that I'm not coming away from the band feeling like I wasn't able to do what I wanted to do.

"I loved it and it was what I wanted but I'm enjoying writing at the moment; trying new things. I've been asking myself, 'What do you want to say?'

"It's this bubble where things happen around you and it's not real life. It's amazing but it's not realistic. So when you come out of it it's nice to catch up with everything."

Although it's unlikely Harry will ever be able to shake the trappings of fame, he admits that when he returns home to his mum, he can live a relatively normal life.

Awwwwww!

BECKS APPEAL: David Beckham launches new H&M Campaign in LA!

David Beckham looked supersexy as he promoted the latest H&M fashion campaign this week.

Dressed in a simple black shirt and matching trousers the sporting hero smoldered on the red carpet and was all smiles in a casual button-down shirt and cuffed pants celebrating his new Modern Essentials by David Beckham collection.

The 41-year-old footie legend has modeled for H&M for years, releasing his first collection with the company in 2012 continuing a long-running partnership (by f a s t - f a s h i o n standards!) with the high street giant.

The brand released a new ad for the line starring Beckham and actor Kevin Hart on Sunday. "I loved shooting the first campaign with Kevin [Hart] for H&M so much that we just had to do a sequel. This time we've pushed the story even further. I hope everyone likes it, we certainly enjoyed filming it," Beckham teased.

The new ad involves Becks putting his stamp of approval once again on the retailer's elevated menswear basics. What Becks wore to the event demonstrates the point of the whole thing: These are the clothes you wear when you've spent all your money on a dope pair of shoes, and you wouldn't mind calling attention them. In a low-key, respectable way, of course!

His particular shoes are the lace-up version of Saint Laurent's crepe-sole Nevada boot. At $795 a pop, they are not cheap.

Beckham put them front and center by wearing matching separates in an opposite color and keeping accessories to a minimum. Thanks to the simplicity of the look, and the contrast between the black and tobacco hues, you have no choice but the focus on the boots.

Feel free to pull this same move when you break out your own spendy fall shoes for the first time this season and you want your friends to take notice. If the shoes in question happen to be black, just go for a lighter shade with the rest of your outfit, like gray or ivory instead.

C o n v e n i e n t l y enough, Beckham's H&M collection has basics in an array of neutral hues. (And we know you aren't trying to spend $1,000 on every article of clothing in your closet.)

I reckon every guy needs a 'little black shirt' in their closet this fall...

Willett sorry for sibling's slander...

Europe's Danny Willett has conceded his brother's "wrong and ill-timed" article criticising American fans has "put a downer" on his first Ryder Cup.

Peter Willett called Americans a "baying mob of imbeciles" in a piece written for a golf magazine.

Danny, who apologised on Wednesday and said his brother had said sorry to him, admitted it had been "tricky to focus".

"I have to be relatively selfish about it - I appreciate it is his career, but it's my career too," he added.

"Peter's a writer, and unfortunately that's not quite panned out great the last few days that he's associated with me.

"If his last name wasn't Willett, nobody would really be making that much of a fuss about it. It was just an unfortunate circumstance."

Willett, 28, is hopeful that the incident will fade away when play gets under way with Friday's opening fourballs at 13:35 BST.

One American fan was clearly heard shouting "want any cookie dough" in reference to the offending article during practice on Thursday but Yorkshireman Willett said: "The fans have been great. There's a few shouts out there but you can expect that.

"There are some pretty rowdy US fans at every Ryder Cup, that's the nature of the beast. We don't mind a bit of heckling - we hope it doesn't go too far.

"Hopefully everyone can kind of draw a line under it and we can just come out here and play some golf.

"I'm not saying it will be completely forgotten but hopefully it's died down a bit more."

American Patrick Reed, who top-scored on his Ryder Cup debut with 3½ points at Gleneagles in 2014 and made shushing gestures to the home crowd in an attempt to fire up the US challenge, has asked fans to "forgive and forget".

The 26-year-old said: "The first Ryder Cup is such a special and awesome moment, so to have something distract you from enjoying it is unfortunate.

"I'm hoping the fans can put it aside and allow the rookies, not only on our side but their side, to enjoy it and allow Danny to enjoy the week."

Scorcher:

team that were not ready for Celtic's intensity.

They looked a bit shocked to be involved in a fight. But they quickly woke up and Fernandinho equalised after latching on to Aleksandar Kolarov's shot and the epic was truly up and running.

Celtic retook the lead with a counter-attack of such quality that it could have carried the Guardiola trademark. Nir Bitton and Tom Rogic did wonderfully to launch it, the Australian setting Tierney free down the left.

The teenager, as beloved a full-back as any in these parts since Danny McGrain was tearing it up, cut in, shot and saw his attempt deflected in off Sterling's boot. Cue more pandemonium.

Cue City's brilliance too. Brown was too easily dispossessed and City sliced through, David Silva playing a sumptuous pass to the magnificent Sterling, who finished with all the class of a player reborn under his new manager.

City's defensive malaise carried on at the start of the second half. Kolarov, playing fitfully at centre-half, was desperately poor in the build-up to Celtic's third. When Tierney put in a cross, City's rearguard was in a comatose state. Dembele had time to take it down and hook it behind him and beyond Claudio Bravo.

This was brilliantly bonkers and the atmosphere intensified when Sergio Aguero forced a fine save from Craig Gordon only for the impressive Nolito to put away the loose ball.

City took control, as Fernandinho launched a rocket that flew just over. Gundogan's shot hit off Sviatchenko and Gordon and went out. City pressed and pressed.

Some of the home side were out on their feet before the end, but they dug in, throwing themselves in front of shots and crosses, surviving. They deserved to. Immense stuff in Glasgow's east end.

Walcott continues hot streak

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE ARSENAL.....2 FC BASEL.....0

Theo Walcott scored twice as Arsenal put in a dominant home display against Basel in the Champions League on Wednesday.

It took the Gunners just six minutes to open the scoring as Walcott headed in from Alexis Sanchez's cutback.

The two Arsenal men linked up again as Englishman Walcott drilled low into the net to complete a swift team move.

Basel goalkeeper Tomas Vaclik made good saves to deny Sanchez and Hector Bellerin, with Birkir Bjarnason coming close for the visitors.

Arsenal stunned rivals Chelsea 3-0 in the Premier League at the weekend and impressed again at the Emirates in this Group A encounter.

Arsene Wenger's side are now unbeaten in eight games in all competitions since losing to Liverpool on the opening day of the season.

The sublime skill and movement of attacking trio Sanchez, Mesut Ozil and Walcott, who already has five goals this season, was too much for Basel to handle and the margin of victory could have been far more emphatic.

Santi Cazorla

FAST STARTER: Walcott opened the soring after just six minutes controlled the tempo of the game with 94 passes - more than any other player on the pitch - while centre-backs Laurent Koscielny and Shkodran Mustafi were largely untroubled.

Arsenal often start a season strongly before falling away, but if they can avoid major injuries and maintain a settled side, realistic challenges for the league title and the latter stages of the Champions League are not unthinkable.

Son shines again in darkest Russia

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE CSKA MOSCOW......0 TOTTENHAM H......1

Son Heung-min continued his superb recent form to give Tottenham the first win of their Champions League campaign at CSKA Moscow.

The South Korean scored his fifth goal in five games to win Tuesday night's game, slotting in after collecting Erik Lamela's pass.

Spurs were sloppy in their opening-game loss to Monaco but were better in an entertaining game in Russia and could have won by more.

Dele Alli also hit the crossbar with a fierce 20-yard strike.

Spurs, who travelled to Russia without Danny Rose, Eric Dier, Mousa Dembele, Moussa Sissoko and Harry Kane, had a couple of scares but deserved their win and can now head to face German side Bayer Leverkusen - who drew 1-1 at Monaco on Wednesday - with greater confidence.

Son had a disappointing debut season for Spurs after joining the club in summer 2015 for a reported £22m from Leverkusen, scoring only eight goals in 41 appearances.

But he has hit the ground running this campaign, shouldering the goal-scoring burden for his side over the first few months with crucial strikes.

His input has become even more important as Harry Kane struggles for form and fitness and the England striker's current understudy Vincent Janssen strives to turn effort into impact.

Son followed up his two-goal displays in the league victories at Stoke and Middlesbrough with the winner on Tuesday - another neat finish that squirmed under the outstretched hand of home keeper Igor Akinfeev.

The 24-year-old could have made a hat-trick of braces for the season to ease Tottenham's nerves but after turning well in the box his shot was blocked.

The relief of the goal was clear to see in the Tottenham players, who had just started to show signs of frustration following 70 minutes during which they had plenty of possession but too often failed with their final ball or fired efforts off target.

In their opening game against Monaco they lacked concentration at the back and an inability to capitalise on chances at the other end, and there were echoes of this in Moscow.

As well as striking the bar, Alli also looped a header on to the roof of the net and failed to control a pass from deep after he had broken the offside trap.

Thankfully for the London side, CSKA do not possess Monaco's ruthless edge and wasted the good chances that came their way, Zoran Tosic twice curling shots wide of goal.

The Russians came back from two goals down to draw 2-2 at Leverkusen in their opening game, but they were managed well by Spurs after Son's goal to prevent another late rally.

Foxes still perfect in big stage debut

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE LEICESTER CITY....1 FC PORTO......0

Leicester beat Porto Tuesday night in their first home Champions League game to maintain the winning start to their first season in Europe's premier club competition.

Islam Slimani, who had a prolific scoring record against Porto with his former club Sporting Lisbon, headed the only goal from a Riyad Mahrez cross.

Porto substitute Jesus Corona hit the post, but the Foxes held on.

Leicester lead Group G by two points from second-placed FC Copenhagen, who they meet on 18 October.

Slimani, a deadline-day signing for a Leicester club record £29m,tormented Porto so much during his time with Sporting that he earned the nickname "the Dragon Slayer".

In three previous matches in 2016 alone, the Algeria international had netted five times.

Here, he met the teasing, curling cross of the excellent Mahrez, diving towards the ball at the back post to head past a reluctant Iker Casillas.

It is his third goal in four games for the Foxes, all of which have been scored with his head.

Leicester, last season's surprise Premier League champions, have made an uncertain start to the defence of their title, losing three of their opening six games and conceding four goals in defeats by both Liverpool and Manchester United.

Yet the template that brought success last season - a deep, solid backline and pacey counter-attacks - was once again employed with success at a raucous King Power Stadium.

After seeing his side leak three goals to corners at Old Trafford on Saturday, Leicester boss Claudio Ranieri preferred Luis Hernandez to Danny Simpson at right-back, but it was centre-halves Wes Morgan and Robert Huth who impressed.

At the other end, Mahrez caused trouble on the right in the first half, Vardy explored the channels and Slimani barely stopped running.

Big Sam Out, Southgate In

Gareth Southgate was named interim Engalnd manager this week and said it was "important to step forward" following Allardyce's Sam departure.

Southgate, 46, steps up from his role as Under-21 boss and will lead the senior team for the next four games.

Allardyce left his post on Tuesday following a newspaper investigation claiming he offered advice on how to "get around" rules on player transfers.

"The future is certainly bright for this England team," said Southgate.

In June, the former England defender said he had no interest in succeeding Roy Hodgson, who quit as boss following a shock loss to Iceland at Euro 2016.

"It's obviously been a difficult situation for the

POISONED CHALICE: Southgate's the man for now

FA, but it was important that there was some stability and continuity for everybody," he said.

"From my point of view, it was important to step forward and give us the best possible chance to win these games.

"I'm looking forward to the challenge and I'm confident that we can get good results. We have an excellent group of players."

Meanwhile, Arsenal Wenger Arsene boss Bournemouth Eddie manager Howe have reiterated their commitment to their respective clubs.

Howe described the England vacancy "the ultimate job" but said he would not get "distracted" from his role at Bournemouth.

Wenger, whose contract with the Gunners runs out at the end of the season, said he was "focused 100% on Arsenal".

Alan Pardew managing England was the "pinnacle for any Englishman's career" but said he was entirely focused on his job with Crystal Palace.

Hoops and City serve up a scorcher

Celtic claimed their first Champions League Group C point as Pep Guardiola's perfect record in charge of Manchester City was ended with a riveting 3-3 draw in Glasgow on Wednesday night.

The hosts led twice in the first half, Moussa Dembele diverting in Erik Sviatchenko's header and Kieran Tierney forcing an own goal by Raheem Sterling.

But Fernandinho's strike brought City level first time and Sterling showed composure to net the visitors' second.

Nolito equalised for the visitors again after Dembele had netted on the turn.

Barcelona's win over Borussia Monchengladbach in Germany keeps the Spaniards top of the group with City two points behind in second. The top two meet in Barcelona on 19 October.

Rodgers' Brendan Celtic hold a one-point advantage over bottom side Gladbach going into their meeting in Glasgow.

The electricity was crackling around Celtic Park even before a ball had been kicked, the home crowd unleashing noise and colour and every ounce of passion in their bodies on the visitors. All of that emotion came thundering in again when Dembele stunned City.

Scott Sinclair's free-kick, James Forrest's first-time cross, Sviatchenko's diving header and in off Dembele - already a Celtic cult hero at the tender age of 20. In attack, and defence, Dembele was terrific.
