MURDER PROBE AS 39 Found dead in truck

Deceased Chinese nationals believed to have been smuggled from Eastern Europe

The bodies of 39 people, believed to be Chinese nationals, have been found in a lorry trailer in Essex in eastern England.

The driver has been arrested and a murder investigation has been launched.

Essex Police said they were working "to piece together the circumstances of this horrific event", which they say is the largest murder investigation in the force's history.

The eight women and 31 men found in the trailer were thought to be adults except one "young adult" woman, who police previously said may have been a teenager.

The police said they had received first reports about bodies found in a lorry at the Waterglade Industrial Park in Grays just before 01:40 local time on Wednesday. The town is about nine miles east of London.

The bodies were discovered by ambulance staff, and the police later said that "sadly all 39 people inside the container had died". The lorry driver was named by sources as Mo Robinson, 25, from Portadown, County Armagh.

Police began the process of moving the bodies on Thursday. Eleven victims were taken by private ambulance from the Port of Tilbury to Broomfield Hospital in Chelmsford.

All of the dead will undergo a coroner's examination to establish the cause of death.

'dignity of the victims'

Police will then attempt to identify each individual, but have warned this will be a "substantial operation" and they cannot estimate how long it will take.

Essex Police said the tractor unit (the front part of the lorry) had entered the UK via Holyhead - an Irish Sea port in Wales - on Sunday 20 October, having travelled over

COLD WELCOME: the victims are believed to have frozen to death in the refrigerated truck from Dublin, the Republic of Ireland.

Police believe the tractor unit then collected the trailer, which arrived in Purfleet on the River Thames from Zeebrugge, Belgium, at about 00:30 local time on the Wednesday. The cab and trailer the then left the port shortly after 01:05. Police were nich called to the industrial on park where the bodies were discovered shortly , at before 01:40. e on A spokesperson for Essex Police said recovering all the bodies would take time and the dignity of the victims was their primary concern.

China's ambassador to the UK Liu Xiaoming later tweeted: "The Chinese Embassy has sent a team led by the minister-counsellor in charge of consular affairs to Essex, England.

"They have met with the local police, who said that they are cont. on page 4, col. 1

Backtracking on EU yet again, Boris hopes to call election

Johnson has Boris abandoned his "do or die" pledge to leave the EU by 31 October and will plead with MPs next week to give him a pre-Christmas general election.

The prime minister wrote to Jeremy Corbyn on Thursday night saying he would give parliament one last opportunity to scrutinize his withdrawal agreement bill and "get Brexit done" by 6 November. But he will also table a motion under the Fixed-term Parliaments Act next Monday asking for an early general election. It will require the backing of two-thirds of MPs to succeed.

Johnson's letter says: "An election on 12 December will allow a new parliament and government to be in place by Christmas. If I win a majority in this election, we will then ratify the great new deal that I have negotiated, get Brexit done in January, and the country will move on."

Downing Street sources claimed that if MPs reject Johnson's request, he will pull the withdrawal agreement bill and continue "campaigning" for a general election every day. "We will not allow MPs to continue holding this country hostage," the source said.

Labour appear to be poised to reject the government's request, but Jeremy Corbyn told the BBC on Thursday night that no final decision would be made until the EU27 has agreed a Brexit delay. "We'll know tomorrow what the extension will be and I can answer that question tomorrow. What I'm saying now is: take no deal off the table," he said.

Corbyn also denied that Labour's position on a general election was confused, given that the party had consistently said it wanted voters to go to the polls to oust the Tories.

He said: "We are not resisting the chance to have an election. We want an election because we want to take our case to the people of this country but we do not want this country to be in any danger of crashing out of the EU without a deal because of all the damage that will do to jobs, services and trade all over this country."

The EU's plan to offer on Friday an extension up to 31 January is expected to be put on hold until as late as Tuesday. Sources said it remained the most likely outcome, but that the dramatic developments in Westminster needed to be fully understood and the choreography in Brussels could change.

The Corbyn-supporting campaign group Momentum urged the party to back an election, saying: "Bring it on."

But several shadow cabinet members claimed that a decision had already been made to abstain.

One described a yes vote as "unwhippable" because of the concerns of many Labour MPs about campaigning in the cold and dark. "There's an absolute, quiet defiance," he said. "We're not going to go out and campaign in the bleak midwinter."

One Labour MP said: "I don't think the party will go for this. It's a dead cat because he hasn't achieved his "do or die" or "dead in a ditch" promise on leaving by 31 October. You can't put off democracy because it's dark nights, but we do need to think very carefully in this climate about having to go out and campaign in the dark."

Police foil 24 Islamic and 'Nazi' terrorist plots in 2 years

SIGN OF THE TIMES: far-right terror groups are the UK's fastest-growing threat

POLICE and MI5 have foiled 24 terror plots in the UK since April 2017, Britain's top police officer said this week.

Met chief Dame Cressida Dick revealed how 16 were international, Islamist inspired conspiracies and eight were linked to extreme right-wingers. One of the latest suspected Islamist plots involved slaughtering worshippers and visitors at London's St Paul's Cathedral. A 36-yearold woman appeared in court last week charged in connection with the alleged plan to carry out a suicide bomb attack there. Other thwarted plots include a plan by Britain's first, all-female terror cell of two radical sisters, their mother and a friend for a knife rampage in Westminster in 2017. It is understood police and MI5 have thwarted two attacks in the past month - one Islamist and one far-right. The threat level to the UK from terrorism is severe - the second highest category. It means an attack is "highly likely".

Despite the danger posed by Islamist extremists, the far-right are the fastest-growing challenge, anti-terror, police say. Assistant Commissioner Neil Basu, the head of Britain's counter-terror policing, told last month how right-wing terrorism remains a "relatively small percentage" of the total demand on police. "But when nearly a third of the plots foiled by police and security services since 2017 relate to right-wing ideology, it lays bare why we are taking this so seriously," he said.

"As a proportion of our overall threat it's definitely increasing, whereas the Islamist threat is staying the same, albeit at a very high level."

Teenagers and the mentally ill are particularly vulnerable to being radicalized, with children as young as 14 drawn to rightwing extremism, said Mr Basu. And Nick Loweles, the CEO of Hope not Hate, one of the UK's leading advocacy group campaigning against racism and fascism said a small group of "hardcore Nazis" are increasingly willing to commit violent cont. on page 4, col. 2

Harry confirms 'rift' with Wills

"We are on different paths but will always be there for each other."

PRINCE Harry has finally admitted there is a rift between him and his brother Prince William.

The Duke and Duchess of Sussex went public on their difficulties coping with life inside the Royal Family under the spotlight during a documentary shown Sunday night.

For months it has been clear that there have been tensions behind the scenes between Harry and William which led to them deciding to split their offices.

Asked how true it was that there had been a rift, Harry said: "Part of this role and part of this job and this family being under the pressure that it's under...inevitably, you know, stuff happens.

"But look, we're brothers. We'll always be brothers.

"We're certainly on different paths at the moment but I will always be there for him and, as I know, he will always be there for me.

"We don't see each other as much as we used to because we are so busy. But I love him dearly.

"And you know the majority of stuff is created out of nothing. "But as brothers, you know, you have good days, you have bad days."

Both the royal couple looked on the brink of tears at times and Harry admitted he was still struggling with his mental health. The pair, who wed in May 2018, spoke of the pressures of public life – and that the past year had been bruising.

'you've got to thrive'

When Meghan was asked whether she could continue in her role and what would happen if not, she said:

"You know, I've said for a long time to H – that's what I call him – it's not enough to just survive something, right? That's not the point of life."

She added: "You've got to thrive, you've got to feel happy. And I think I really tried to adopt this British sensibility of a stiff upper lip.

"I tried, I really tried but I think that what that does internally is probably really damaging."

Former US actress Meghan and Harry have been accused of departing from normal royal behaviour. But she said much of the criticism had been unfair. "And the biggest thing that I know is that I never thought that this would be easy but I thought it would be fair," she said. "And that's the part that's really hard to reconcile. But I don't know," she added, composing herself. "Just do, take each day as it comes."

Harry, 35, and Meghan, 38, are planning soon to take around six weeks off, dividing their time between the UK and the US. They are expected to spend Thanksgiving in Meghan's native country in November with her mother, Doria Ragland, 63. Harry has been going to Africa since he was a boy and found refuge there in the aftermath of his mother Diana's death in 1997. He has admitted before that in an ideal world he would have liked to have been a helicopter pilot in Africa, where he enjoys the anonymity of being unknown by many people and where he can escape life in the royal goldfish bowl.

Since his marriage and Aides, however, insist they only looked at the possibility of the couple spending two or three months out there at a time. Other insiders have suggested that taxpayers would never wear the cost of providing permanent security for the couple abroad. In the ITV documentary, Harry & Meghan: An African Journey, he admitted that he would like to live in Cape Town, but he then acknowledged the practical difficulties.

Abortion has been decriminalised and same-sex marriage is to be legalised in Northern Ireland.

Legislation making the changes - which was passed by MPs at Westminster - came into force at midnight on Monday.

The first same-sex weddings in Northern Ireland are set to take place in February 2020.

The government has until the end of March to come up with regulations for the provision of abortion services.

The legislation took effect after the 21 October deadline passed without a devolved government being re-formed.

The Democratic Unionist Party (DUP) - and some politicians from other unionist parties - triggered a recall of the Northern Ireland Assembly in an attempt to block the lifting of a near-ban on terminations. The assembly at Stormont had not sat for more than 1,000 days after devolved government collapsed when power-sharing coalition partners the DUP and Sinn Féin split in a bitter row.

But the move failed because a new speaker could not be elected on a cross-community basis.

Vigils were held outside the Home Office in London and at the front of City Hall in Belfast on Thursday.

Police officers and councillors have signed a book of condolences, which was opened at Thurrock Council's chambers in Essex.

warnings

Speaking earlier, Essex Police Chief Constable Ben-Julian Harrington said he had the "utmost confidence" in his officers as the force leads its largest-ever murder investigation.

The deaths follow warnings from the National Crime Agency (NCA) and Border Force about the increased risk of people-smuggling using quieter ports such as Purfleet and routes through Belgium.

Global Trailer Rentals Ltd confirmed to RTE News that it owned the trailer and said it had leased it on 15 October.

The firm said it had given Essex Police the details of the person and company they had leased it to. Essex Police are coordinating their probe with the National Crime Agency, which investigates smuggling gangs and human trafficking.

The NCA said specialist officers are working "to urgently identify and take action against any organized crime groups who might have played a role in causing these deaths".

Officials in Bulgaria confirmed the Scania truck was registered in the coastal town of Varna on June 19, 2017, by a company owned by a female Irish citizen. Sources said the vehicle left the Balkan country the next day and has not returned since.

Harry suspect to face UK police 'within days'

"It's as though we're scared of upsetting Donald Trump."

DETECTIVES probing the death of teenage motorcyclist Harry Dunn plan to interview chief suspect Anne Sacoolas in the US within 10 days.

The revelation came as Nick Adderley, the Chief Constable of Northamptonshire, insisted his officers would fly out to see Mrs Sacoolas as soon as they get visas. The police boss spoke amid growing tension between Harry's parents, Tim Dunn and Charlotte Charles, and UK authorities who failed to stop the intelligence officer's wife leaving the country. He urged a spokesman for 19-year-old Harry's family to "show constraint" after claims they were "as angry as they have been" and that they had lost all faith in both the police and the Foreign Office.

acts. Mr Lowles stressed the need to have robust security for candidates in any forthcoming election. Lone wolves such as far-right extremist Thomas Mair pose the biggest danger, security experts say.

Mair, 52, shot and stabbed to death Jo Cox, Labour MP for Batley and Spen, when he ambushed her in the street in Birstall, West Yorks, in June 2016. The unemployed gardener had links to various rightwing groups including the English Defence League and the National Front. The thwarted plots are believed to have included would-be lonewolf attackers targeted by police and MI5 after contacting extremists on the internet.

after shadow foreign secretary Emily Thornberry met Harry's parents and voiced suspicions over the way the investigation had been handled, saying she "smelt a rat". Following the meeting in her Westminster office, she said she worried that the UK Government had been "pulling punches" in past dealings with Washington.

'headless chickens'

Ms Thornberry added: "It's as though we're scared of upsetting Donald Trump. There are times when you just have to stand up for British citizens."

She also accused the Foreign Office of "running around like headless chickens" in the aftermath of the fatal crash outside RAF Croughton, an air base leased to US intelligence, in August. Vowing to do some "digging" on Before now, abortion was only allowed in Northern Ireland if a woman's life was at risk or there was a danger of permanent and serious damage to her physical or mental health.

S e c t i o n 58 and Section 59 of the Offences Against the Person Act 1861 which made abortion a criminal offence - have been repealed.

The Northern Ireland (Executive Formation etc) Act 2019 has also placed a duty on the government to implement the recommendations of a report by the United Nations Committee the family's behalf, she added: "We smell a rat and we need to find out what really happened."

Family spokesman Radd Seiger said the support shown by Ms Thornberry was "really, really wonderful" and that the family felt they were being listened to at last. However in a rare public briefing on an active inquiry, Mr Adderley said: "This investigation has not stalled, it has not slowed down. "The suspect not being in the country clearly frustrates the investigation but it does not stop it." He added: "I want to make the point that we have fasttracked the investigation - the average time to investigate a road traffic collision is 16 weeks. We have got the file almost ready for the CPS to make a decision and we have done that in little over eight weeks. "We can't complete that file, of course, until we get the account from the suspect, which is what we are working towards, hopefully in the next 10 days."

Mr Adderley said Mrs Sacoolas, a 42-yearold mother of three, wanted to be personally interviewed by his officers so they could see the effect the accident had on her. He added: "I would not change the way the police have dealt with this to date."

on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), published in 2018.

A further series of recommendations included providing to access "high quality abortion and post-abortion care in all public health facilities", and making "age-appropriate, comprehensive and scientifically accurate education" on "sexual reproductive and health and rights" a compulsory part of the curriculum.

Northern Ireland Secretary Julian Smith is mandated to put in place regulations by 31 March 2020.

The government has issued guidance to medical professionals which covers the period from now until that date.

Same-sex marriages have been allowed in England, Scotland and Wales since 2014, but Stormont did not legalise them.

The last of five votes on the issue in the devolved assembly - in November 2015 resulted in a numerical majority in favour of same-sex marriage for the first time.

But the DUP blocked a change in the law by using a veto known as the Petition of Concern.

The new legislation says the Westminster government must bring in regulations to provide for same-sex marriage by 13 January 2020.

Because couples have to indicate their intention to marry 28 days before doing so the first gay weddings are expected to be held in the week of Valentine's Day.

Meet A Member: Marylea Wiley

Meet filmmaker Marylea Wiley, former of Paris and New York, currently living in London...

Seeing as you don't live in Los Angeles how did you end up joining Brits in LA?

I am a mix of American and European: I grew up in NYC, but (was) born in Paris to Italian and Turkish parents. I went to the UK for my masters, and then made my first feature film, Beautiful in the Morning, in London.

After principal photography, collaborated with producer Gabrielle Kelly who is from the UK but lives in Los Angeles. I met her when I was doing an internship in Cannes 10 years ago. We have a wonderful long-distance Director / Producer relationship, which lends itself perfectly to our international upbringing and work. We embrace both the European and American cultures which is present in our film practice: she is a global educator programmer, and I made a movie about a bilingual young girl having to get used to a new home. Gabrielle is a Brit in LA, and so is our lead actor Jack Loy. So, I am one by association.

Have you ever visited Los Angeles - if so we would love to hear what your impression of LA is? While London is my home for now, I did have a brief stint in LA and the experience was cut short due to work pulling me back to NYC. I had bought a one-way ticket to LA, and I left it definitely curious for more, and often wonder what would have happened if I'd moved back there, rather than eventually go the other way to the UK. Would I have made my first feature, and how different would it have been to my now quintessentially British production?

Do you think you could ever see yourself moving to LA, if not tell us what keeps you in London? I do dream about the nature and laidback lifestyle of LA. I would like to return, this time for much longer than a few weeks. London is great, but I grew up in America and I miss the sense of freedom (which is both challenging and exciting) that the US offers. Spending quality time in LA is definitely on my path.

Do you have a hidden gem in London that you want to share with us?

For Londoners it's not so special, but Hampstead Heath is my favorite place in London. The North London park is so wild, tucked away in a beautiful little village with old pubs, cafés, and shops. It's a magical place, and English poets and painters used to live there. When (if) I leave London, this little oasis of nature will be sorely missed.

Why would you recommend other overseas readers joining Brits in LA?

Our world is getting smaller, and more global. Film is about connecting with the world around you, so embracing two cultures/film hubs will only expand your point of view and make you a stronger storyteller.

Tell us more about what you are up to at the moment?

Beautiful in the Morning, had its world premiere in LA earlier this month. It was the opening film of LA Femme International Film Festival. Coming up next is the UK premiere, so Brits in LA members, tell those back home to come along! It is screening in collaboration with Hackney Picturehouse on October 30th and 7th November at 7pm. Q&As with the filmmakers will follow. You can grab your tickets www.caritasfilms. at com/bitm.

It is a coming-of-age drama about a young girl who reconnects with the women in her family in a British seaside town, only for her loyalties to be tested by the arrival of a stranger. The film explores the inner desires and contradictions that women face today.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Lead by example. I feel like when I made my feature it was really important to treat people the way I'd want to be treated. To do the work as well as delegate. To let your team know that they can rely on you. To be generous whenever possible. To make them feel important and that their ideas matter. And if you're having a good time, everyone is.

HOROSCOPE/PUZZLES

ARIES: If life is not all it could be please look at the positive side of things; as we move into the new season there will be opportunities to open new doors. With Mars your boss in your opposite sign you will be ready for action. You may be reflecting on past mistakes, if so forgive yourself and move on.

TAURUS: Your general rule in life is to see is to believe. This week ahead it will better to go with your unseen feeling in regards to some area of life. It is more than a feeling it is a knowing so use this to your advantage in some current situation that will set you up well for going forward.

GEMINI: Your boss planet Mercury is ready to go backwards in powerful Scorpio next week. If you are honest you should let your true feelings come out for a healthy airing. Be ready to be open to a whole different way to resolve past emotions and along with this comes a glimpse of good times again.

CANCER: You may be letting go of what you consider the past. Be sure to understand that sweeping stuff under the carpet is not helping. It is still is not going to disappear by ignoring it all. You are however under a lucky streak these next few days so take note.

LEO: If you find your mind wondering far and away currently you are ready for a break from routine. Find someone you like to spend time with - preferably someone who you enjoys your interests - and take time out with them. You will then deal with life as usual in a more mellow way.

VIRGO: This past week or so has not been as easy as you would like, however with the back up from Venus in Scorpio assisting you it may be time to put your foot down. Something which has been in play for a while is about to be stopped in its tracks.

LIBRA: Your house of money and partnership is currently on fire. This not the sort you should be even thinking about putting out. This can be a golden opportunity to go for a good upward leap in life. Do not hesitate in even just exploring anything that this could represent.

SCORPIO: Venus and the Sun shining directly over you this next week is paving the way to set a steady course ahead. This is in most areas and although for some of you it has been a difficult past few months rest assured the ship you looked for is heading towards you. Happy Birthday!

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss planet Jupiter is moving out soon in your life and will make you more relaxed and ready for new adventures in different areas of your life. It's not a time to lay low so make sure to be out and about this next week ahead. Be sure to have time to relax also.

CAPRICORN: The opportunity is coming as soon as next week or so to make a long desired change in your life. This weekend can be a hectic one overall so leave any new plans until later. You are ready to take on new responsibilities now so make that space ready in your life.

AQUARIUS: You are probably busier than you like to be lately. Time to ask yourself what should be your priority now. Communicate to others what you are willing (or not willing) to do. What do you envision the next few weeks of your life to be like? Make it a priority to start the ball rolling.

PISCES: With Venus in your cousin sign Scorpio your thoughts turn to love or money. Maybe a bit of both. You have lots of creative energy so take it and use it to your advantage. You should not be held back from improving your overall life by anyone or by any negative self-talk.

New rent control laws: what does it all mean?

It has been a busy week for governments across the world, so you may have missed some rather important local news regarding a new law that implements rent control across California.

This is not an area of expertise for either Craig or myself so we have brought in our good friend and fellow Brits in LA member Frank L'e Sanford to explain it to us all in laymen's terms. As a realtor and conscientious landlord we thought it would be interesting for you all to hear how it affects us all from his professional perspective. If you have anything to contribute to this topic please drop us a line at info@Britsin.LA

Before I love you and leave you I want to let you know that we will be collecting donations for the Poppy Appeal benefiting the Royal British Legion. You can get your poppy from us every Tuesday up until November 5th, either at Breakfast Club or Pub Quiz - details can be found at www.Britsin.LA. You will be in good company, as only last week we had Formula One champion, Lewis Hamilton grace our presence at breakfast and he too, generously donated to the Poppy Appeal. His appearance certainly gave a whole new meaning to the phrase 'Breakfast of Champions'! Cheers! Eileen

It's Time For Tea...

Traditional Afternoon Tea is now served Mon-Sat 11.30am-4.00pm in our Tea Room (also available privately for baby showers, bridal showers and special occasions). King's Head Pies now available in our bakery. Sausage rolls, pastries & delicious cakes, baked daily

Now over to Frank..... Hello, hello, hello:

Governor California's Gavin Newsom recently signed Assembly Bill 1482 (AB1482) enacting rent control in California, which is designed to protect tenants from big rent increases and evictions. California has the second highest poverty rate in the nation, and as you've probably sadly noticed, growing homeless а population.

Once the law starts on January 1, 2020 they'll start regulating how much Californians' rent can increase each year, limiting it to 5%, plus inflation. (Did you kno, there's less than 70 davs left in this decade!) The rules, however, will vary for Cities that already have rent control laws. The law will expire in 2030, unless lawmakers vote to extend it. Here's a breakdown of how the new AB1482 law will work Will my apartment be rent-controlled?

That depends on where you live. If it's a City that does not already have a local rent control law, and your home is at least 15 years old, the answer is most likely "Yes." The law will exempt buildings built in the last 15 years. That's a rolling date, meaning units built in 2006 will be covered in 2021, units built in 2007 will be covered in 2022, and so on.

What types of buildings will be covered, and which won't?

Rent control will be applied mostly to apartments and smaller multi-family buildings, with some exceptions, along with szome single-family homes. Condos and single-

POPPY TALK: From now until November 5th you can buy your British Legion poppy at our Breakfast Club and Pub Quiz family homes will be exempt, unless owned by a corporation or Real Estate Investment Trust (REIT), to help save the "mom-andpop" landlords, like me.

Duplexes where the owner lives in one of the units, will also be exempt. This includes ADUs!

How much will my rent go up?

If you live in a city that does not already have a local rent control law, rent increases will be limited to 5%, plus local inflation, but would never exceed a total of 10%.

To help tenants whose landlords might have gone on a rent hiking binge in anticipation of AB1482 passing, the law will be retroactive to March 15, 2019. Whatever amount the tenant paid as of that date, is the amount that the increase will be based on.

How much is inflation?

The rate of inflation will be tied to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) in each metropolitan area. In Los Angeles County, it averaged 2.5% from 2001 to 2018.

Which Cities already have local rent control laws?

In Los Angeles County, the cities of (The People's LOL) Republic of Santa Monica, West Hollywood, Beverly Hills, Culver City, Inglewood, City of Los Angeles, and unincorporated neighbourhoods of Los Angeles County, already have local rent control laws.

What if I live in a City that already has rent control?

The rules won't change. AB1482 will not overrule local rent control laws. However, it will cover units that aren't already covered by local rent control laws. For example, in the City of Los Angeles, the local rent control law only applies to buildings built before 1978. Several hundred thousand newer units that were built between 1978 and 2005 will now be covered under AB1482.

So, in the City of Los Angeles, if you live in a building that was built before 1978, your rent increase will already be capped under the City's current rent control law. and it's 4% this year. If you live in a building that built after 1978 and is at least 15 years old, your rent increase will be capped at 5%, plus inflation.

How much harder is it for a landlord to evict a tenant? Equally important as the rent cap, is a provision that will require landlords to show "Just Cause", like not paying rent, breach of lease, criminal activity, creating a nuisance, committing waste, refusal to execute a written extension or lease renewal, or refusal to allow the owner to enter. when they evict tenants. That'll end the ability that landlords have now, in most parts of California, to evict tenants without giving a good reason.

For tenants who have lived in a property for at least 1 year, landlords will have to give the renter the opportunity to fix the violation, for example catching up on unpaid rent.

Landlords can also evict for "No Fault" reasons. For example, when the owner or their family plans to occupy the property, if they want to remove the property from the rental market, if they intend to substantially remodel the property, or if they are ordered to vacate it by a government agency or court.

AB1482 requires landlords to provide relocation assistance of 1 month's rent for "No Fault" evictions, within 15 days of serving the eviction notice, and to tell tenants about the relocation assistance.

What's L.A. City's new 'no-fault' evictions Law? This week Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti signed a new law, that was approved 14-0 by L.A. City Council, to stop the big wave of eviction notices, now being served by landlords to evict tenants since AB1482 was signed, but before AB1482 goes into effect in the New Year. It would only affect people whose "no-fault" evictions, have yet to go into effect, but it won't stop rent increases.

What are the exciting opportunities created by these new laws?

Many landlords will be scared off by these new rent control laws, so will want to sell their properties. This'll be a huge opportunity for investors like myself, who have years of experience and know-how to run a rent control building profitably, to buy these properties.

Olivia Colman: The Crown's new Queen talks Corgis...and 'falling in love' with the Monarchy

By John Hiscock

"Good dogs, good dogs."

Olivia Colman, who has taken over the role of Queen Elizabeth from Claire Foy in The Crown, sneaks some dog treats out of her pocket to persuade the corgis Lily and Prince to remain at her feet and not wander off. They eagerly take the treats, obediently sit still and the cameras roll. "I love dogs and they are hilarious," she says. "Prince is very well behaved and Lily's a little bugger. They're lovely and I always have my pockets full of dog snacks, to try and make them like me more."

We are on the set of the third series of The Crown at Lancaster House, part of the St. James Palace complex, whose magnificent state rooms stand in for Buckingham Palace, while the exterior of the Palace and its courtyard have been constructed at Elstree Studios.

The new series, which begins airing on November 17, has a completely new cast and a storyline that covers the time period between 1964 and 1977, starting with Labour's Harold Wilson's election as Prime Minister to the Queen's Silver Jubilee.

from the first two series

Elizabeth and her family are struggling to meet the challenges of a rapidly-changing Britain. From the exuberance of the 1960s to the long, dreary hangover of the 1970s Elizabeth and the Royals must adapt to a new, more liberated but also more turbulent world.

Among many other things, Series Three sees Prince Charles bonding with a young Camilla over the Goon Show; Princess Margaret and the-then Anthony Armstrong-Jones having raging arguments; the Queen reluctantly visiting the scene of the Aberfan disaster and a sulky Princess Anne being told she will have to give interviews, smile and undergo a public relations campaign.

The writer and creator of The Crown, Peter Morgan, has this time relied more on informants and Palace sources for previously untold anecdotes about the Royals.

"The success of the first two series could have resulted in more doors being closed but through back channels people have come forward, willing to talk much more frankly because I think they trust the show," he says.

"As we are getting closer to the present, more and more people are still alive and I am being given much more information."

Olivia Colman confesses: "It's one of the most difficult things I've ever done because everyone knows the Queen's voice and knows what she looks like. It's also been the longest job I have ever done but I'm really enjoying it.

"When Claire Foy handed over the mantle she was incredibly encouraging. She said, 'Whoa, congratulations, you'll love it.'

"Through doing this I have to say I've fallen in love with the Monarchy a bit. It's not a job I'd want but I think the Queen certainly is a solid rock for us all. If you're going to tell a story about a human being, she is the most extraordinary.

THE NEW BOSS: Season Three of The Crown on Netflix, starring Olivia Colman as Queen Elizabeth, covers the time period between 1964 and 1977

"She made a vow as a young woman in her 20s, and she stuck to in into her 90s. And I just think she's remarkable that she's managed to sit it out through all sorts of good years, bad years, terrible years. And I think that's quite an impressive thing for a human being."

his Chelsea managerial career.

"I'm delighted with every element of the performance," said the Blues boss.

"I think we're allowed to be excited tonight. That's the blueprint. There are no excuses for us now. That's the standard and we can't drop it.

"The young players are still babies in terms of Champions League minutes so this was a huge test for them.

"There was a good balance of young players and experience. We need to realise the things that made that happen tonight because Ajax are a top, top team."

It was a first loss in this season's Champions League for Ajax, who reached the semi-finals of the competition last year.

They had a goal ruled out by the Video Assistant Referee when Quincy Promes was adjudged to have been offside, while Edson Alvarez hit the post with a header.

However, the game changed when Lampard sent on Christian Pulisic and Batshuayi midway through the second half.

USA winger Pulisic provided the assist for Batshuayi, who recovered from a bad miss earlier to score the winner.

"The subs were second to none," added Lampard.

• Anthony Martial scored the only goal of the game as Manchester United beat Partizan Belgrade to move top of their Europa League group, ensuring they will qualify for the knockout stages if they beat Partizan in the reverse fixture at Old Trafford on 7 November.

Martial, making his first start since August, sent Vladimir Stojkovic the wrong way from 12 yards after United's 19-year-old defender Brandon Williams won the spot-kick.

 Christopher Jullien glanced in a towering header two minutes from time as Celtic came from behind to earn a potentially priceless Europa League win against Lazio.

Trailing to Manuel Lazzari's opener, Celtic faced slipping to third in the group with a trip to Rome to come. However, Ryan Christie swept in the equaliser with 23 minutes remaining before Jullien rose highest to head in.

Trailing at half-time Andraz Sporar's to deflected shot, Wolves scored twice in the space of five secondhalf minutes through Romain Saiss and a penalty by Raul Jimenez.

The Ox comes back with a bang

Oxlade-Alex Chamberlain scored twice, including а stunning outside-of-theboot finish as Champions League holders Liverpool cruised to a 4-1 victory at Genk on Wednesday.

The Reds' 100% start to the Premier League season ended with a draw Manchester United at on Sunday, but they returned to winning ways by showing their class in the Group E match in Belgium.

England international Oxlade-Chamberlain, who missed almost all of last season with a knee injury, drilled in a low shot in the second minute and brilliantly converted a second with a cool, firsttime finish from Roberto Firmino's pass.

Sadio Mane dinked in the third from Mohamed Salah's through ball and the Egyptian turned past a defender and rolled home the fourth late on.

Liverpool face Tottenham in the league on Sunday (16:30 GMT) and Oxlade-Chamberlain said: "We have gained confidence from the whole season, not just this game and the last 20 minutes against Manchester United.

BW SPORT

"We saw that we have a lot to improve on and it was the same again tonight, but we're getting results, which is good."

Spurs in five star rout of Red Star

Tottenham Hotspur finally kick-started their Champions League campaign in style by overwhelming Red Star Belgrade on Tuesday night.

Mauricio Pochettino's side needed to produce a response after they were thrashed 7-2 at home by Bayern Munich in their last Group B game and after losing a two-goal lead to draw with Olympiakos in the opening round of matches.

UEFA Champior

And they secured their first win in emphatic fashion as an early header from Harry Kane and two smart finishes from Son Heung-min gave them a three-goal advantage by half-time.

Red Star, who were backed by a large group of fans despite Uefa restrictions imposed after incidents of racism at a qualifier against HJK Helsinki in July, had no answer as Erik Lamela scored a fourth and Kane added another.

It was a performance and a scoreline to give Pochettino and Spurs a much-needed injection of confidence after their indifferent start to the season, and before Sunday's daunting visit to Premier League leaders Liverpool.

The win was just the fourth Spurs have managed in 13 fixtures in all competitions this season, but Pochettino vowed after the match to give "200%" to ensure the club continue to improve.

The Argentine said: "Of course now is a tough situation. We are a club and that commitment that we showed in the past, we are now showing.'

The home supporters repeatedly chanted their manager's name during Tuesday's emphatic win despite a dismal start to the season which has seen his position come under increasing scrutiny.

"I say thank you, I want to be grateful with them," Pochettino said of Tottenham's fans.

Ford roars back into England team

Rugby World Cup: Jones's men take on New Zealand in 'heavyweight' semi-final England have recalled George Ford at flyhalf for this weekend's World Cup semi-final against New Zealand, with captain Owen Farrell shifting to inside centre.

Coach Eddie Jones dropped Ford to the bench for the quarterfinal win over Australia.

But for England's biggest game in 12 years he has reunited the 10-12 combination that saw England past Tonga, USA and Argentina in the group stages.

Henry Slade makes way in the backs with Manu Tuilagi moving to outside centre in his place, while winger Jonny May has been declared fit after an injury scare against the Wallabies last weekend.

Jones said: "It's the two heavyweights of world rugby - one dressed in black, the crowd favourite, the nation's favourite, the other in white, probably the most disliked team in the world.

"We just feel that [Ford and Farrell] is the best combination for the start of the game.

"New Zealand play a certain way, and George's work-rate off the ball is going to be super-important for us. "They bring a tactical awareness - when you play New Zealand you have to be practically very smart, and George and Owen together are probably at the forefront in that area in the world. "New Zealand are a great team. They have an impressive winning record since the last World Cup.

"Like any good team, you have to take time and space away from them and you have to find areas you can pressure them we believe we have identified a number of areas where we can do that."

Billy Vunipola wins his 50th cap in the back row as Jones keeps faith with his young flankers in Tom Curry and Sam Underhill, but utility back Jack Nowell has lost his fitness battle after a hamstring injury and once again misses out on a place in the match-day 23.

Europa League: Pepe late show fires Gunners to win

Substitute Nicolas Pepe rescued Arsenal with two sublime free-kicks in the last 10 minutes of their Europa League group game against Vitoria Guimaraes at Emirates Stadium on Thursday.

Arsenal were losing 2-1 when Pepe came on in the 75th minute and he scored five minutes later with a curling effort from 25 yards.

He repeated the feat in stoppage time as Arsenal avoided their second straight defeat and retained their place at the top of Group F.

Former Tottenham youngster Marcus Edwards had earlier cut inside and fired into the bottom corner to give Vitoria a shock
