Jihadist bride can come back to UK, judges rule

■ Court of Appeal decides Shamima Begum has been denied a fair hearing by Home Office

Shamima Begum should be allowed to return to the UK to fight the decision to remove her British citizenship, the Court of Appeal has ruled.

Ms Begum, now 20, was one of three schoolgirls who left London to join the Islamic State group in Syria in 2015.

Her citizenship was revoked by the Home Office on security grounds after she was found in a refugee camp in 2019.

The Court of Appeal said she had been denied a fair hearing because she could not make her case from the Syrian camp.

The Home Office said the decision was "very disappointing" and it would "apply for permission to appeal".

The ruling means the government must now find a way to allow the 20-year-old, who is currently in Camp Roj in northern Syria, to appear in court in London despite repeatedly saying it would not assist removing her from Syria.

Lord Justice Flaux - sitting with Lady Justice King and Lord Justice Singh - said: "Fairness and justice must, on the facts of this case, outweigh the national security concerns, so that the leave to enter appeals should be allowed."

The judge also said that the national security concerns about her "could be addressed and managed if she returns to the United Kingdom".

Former Home Secretary Sajid Javid, who made the decision to strip Ms Begum of her citizenship in February 2019, tweeted a statement saying he was "deeply concerned about the judgement".

'not afraid'

He said that regardless of the outcome of her case, if Ms Begum came to the UK "it will prove impossible to subsequently remove her".

Daniel Furner, Ms Begum's solicitor, said: "Ms Begum has never had a fair opportunity to give her side of the story.

"She is not afraid of facing British justice, she welcomes it. But the stripping of her citizenship without a chance to clear her name is not justice, it is the opposite."

Ms Begum was 15 and living in Bethnal Green, London, when she left the UK in 2015

Her father Ahmed Ali told the BBC he was "delighted" by the ruling, adding that he hoped his daughter would get "justice".

The prime minister's official spokesman said that while the government "doesn't routinely comment on individual cases", the decisions it made about Ms Begum had not been "taken lightly".

He said the government would "always ensure the safety and security of the UK and will not allow anything to jeopardise this".

Ms Begum's legal team challenged the move on three grounds - that it was unlawful because it left her stateless; it exposed her to a real risk of death or inhuman and degrading treatment; and she could not effectively challenge the decision while she was barred from returning to the UK.

Under international law, it is only legal to revoke someone's citizenship if an individual is entitled to citizenship of another country.

In February, a specialist tribunal - the Special Immigration Appeals Commission (SIAC) - ruled that the decision to remove Ms Begum's

Coronavirus: Sturgeon ready to quarantine the English

NICOLA Sturgeon sparked anger this week by refusing to rule out forcing visitors arriving in Scotland from England to go into quarantine.

In a BBC interview, the Scottish First Minister claimed her government will "take a very close look" at further draconian measures to stop a fresh surge in coronavirus north of the border. Asked on the BBC's Andrew Marr Show about the possibility of self-isolation, the SNP leader said the UK nations needed to work together on outbreak management in a way that "mitigates against having to put any border restrictions in place".

She said she was not "immediately planning" to implement a quarantine policy but would "take decisions the best I can to protect the health of Scotland and to take that absolutely from a public health perspective."

She said: "This is not about saying to people in England 'You are not welcome in Scotland' - of course people in England are welcome in Scotland," she said.

"This is not about politics, it's not about a constitutional agenda, it's just about taking decisions to protect people in Scotland as much as possible from Covid."

Ms Sturgeon said she would like to see Boris Johnson's Government be more explicit that it is trying to get to levels of coronavirus that are "virtually elimination levels".

"We need to be sure that any outbreaks in England are being properly managed, just as England will want to be sure that any outbreaks in Scotland are properly managed," she said.

"It's when there isn't that confidence that the concerns about possible importation would grow."

Nicola Sturgeon said any decision on quarantine would be made on health grounds, not political considerations

Opponents attacked her quarantine threat. Scottish Tory leader Jackson Carlaw said: "In the same week that Nicola Sturgeon approved unrestricted travel to and from 57 other countries, it is astonishing that she persists with promoting the possibility of a quarantine for people entering Scotland from the rest of the UK."

The prime minister has cast doubt on a £4 billion renovation agreed in 2018

Houses of Parliament moving to York?

Boris Johnson has proposed moving both Houses of Parliament to York while the Palace of Westminster is refurbished.

In a report from The Times the prime minister casts doubt on the £4 billion renovation project that was agreed in 2018 and would entail MPs moving out in the coming five years. The independent body overseeing the project has begun a review.

Mr Johnson wrote the letter, addressed to Sarah Johnson and David Goldstone, chief executives of the restoration and renewal programme. In it he welcomes the review and says that it should examine "the full range of options". He adds: "Cost should be kept to a minimum (i.e. no 'gold plating'). We should also move as quickly as possible."

He says that the case for both Houses staying put should be kept on the table but if a decant is required "possible locations within London, including Richmond House, the QEII Centre and City Hall" should be examined. He adds: "However, the review should also consider a possible location outside London. The government is considering establishing a government hub in York and it would therefore make sense to consider this as a potential location."

Any move would likely that include the Lords and parts of the civil service. Transferring both Houses to York would appear to resolve questions of how peers work at a distance from MPs. A temporary move could be approved with a motion in both Houses.

A government source said that anyone who did not take plans to uproot parliament seriously was "an idiot".

A spokesman for parliament's restoration programme said: "The Houses of Parliament are falling apart faster than they can be fixed. As the prime minister has made clear, the current situation is unsustainable given the serious risk of a major fire and the need to upgrade the services throughout the building.

"The restoration and renewal programme was set up in law to tackle this urgent work. We are currently reviewing how the programme is delivered before sharing findings with both Houses of Parliament. In line with best practice, we remain committed to developing a business case that will set out in detail the options for restoring Parliament including cost estimates and timescales."

But Labour MP Chris Bryant scoffed: "They've already wasted ten years and millions of pounds without so much as mixing a bucket of cement. Now the government wants to send the whole project back to square one. This constant indecision is utterly irresponsible."

LUTHER star Idris Elba says catching coronavirus was "traumatic" – and he feels lucky to be alive.

The 47-year-old actor and his wife Sabrina Dhowre Elba, 30, tested positive in March. He released a video on social media to reveal their diagnoses – and became one of the first high-profile people to say they had the deadly disease. The couple suffered just a mild strain of Covid-19 and are fully recovered but Idris told Radio Times he is "lucky to be alive and thankful for being able to kick" the virus.

He said: "I was asymptomatic so I didn't get the major symptoms.

"Mentally it hit me very bad, because a lot was unknown.

"I felt compelled to speak about it because it was such an unknown.

"So the mental impact of that on both myself and my wife was pretty traumatic."

Idris, who has two children from previous relationships, was self-isolating with Sabrina in New Mexico when he released the social media video. More recently he has signed an open letter to the UK Film and TV Industry which asks for better representation of BAME (black, Asian and minority ethnic) people in the creative industries. In total 4,300 people were signatories, including actress and screenwriter Michaela Coel, TV presenter Sandi Toksvig and actor Bill Nighy. It was written in the wake of George Floyd's death, the 46-year-old African-American who died after a white police officer knelt on his neck during an arrest in Minneapolis, Minnesota, in May. The horrifying incident sparked an uprising of the Black Lives Matter movement.

The letter to British TV and film chiefs says: "We require your active engagement to tackle structural and systemic racism in our industry, in the UK and around the world.

"After decades of enabling racism in your ranks and beyond, it is time to do more. If black lives really matter to you, our stories must as well."

Idris told Radio Times that more diversity on screen can't be achieved by money alone, and that real change needs a strategy and targets. However, he added he did not necessarily agree with the recent censorship of historic comedies that may now be deemed offensive by modern audiences.

He said: "Diversity, by way of how many different types of human beings there are, is an ever-flowing tap. Any steps moving forward to amplify diversity is a good step.

"That doesn't necessarily mean money – but money helps. It's a shift in attitude, perspective, tolerance. You can't put an amount on that."

Idris is now looking forward to the TV and movie industry getting back on track after most projects were paused or cancelled because of the pandemic. Before lockdown he hinted that a Luther film could be in the making, saying: "There isn't a real formal plan for Luther at the moment.

"I've made it very clear that I'd like to see Luther come back as a film. And I can tell you this, that we are this close to making a film of Luther."

DCI John Luther was last seen on television in January 2019, and fans are eagerly awaiting a comeback.

Idris is currently appearing on Sky One in In The Long Run, a comedy he created that is set in the 1980s.

Russia 'tried to hack' vaccine research

Britain has accused the Russian state of trying to hack into its vaccine research and claimed that "Russian actors" attempted to influence the general election last year.

The UK, United States and Canada declared in a joint statement on Wednesday that Russian intelligence agency hackers had mounted a campaign to steal intellectual property from western academic and pharmaceutical institutions researching Covid-19.

Cozy Bear, the cybergroup also known as APT29 and The Dukes, was named as the culprit behind the persistent action against organisations in the three countries, which began at the start of the global coronavirus outbreak.

Scientists at Oxford University and Imperial College London are understood to have been targeted by the group, which Britain formally linked to the Russian state for the first time.

In March the National Cyber Security Centre, a branch of GCHQ, the communications headquarters, installed digital protection around British laboratories, which is how the Russian hacking attempts were detected. An assessment of Cozy Bear activities revealed attempts to steal information about vaccine research and related supply chains, rather than disrupt studies and trials or steal patient data.

Dominic Raab, the foreign secretary, condemned the Russian cyberattacks as 'completely unacceptable', adding: "While others pursue their selfish interests with reckless behaviour, the UK and its allies are getting on with the hard work of finding a vaccine and protecting global health." He said that Britain would continue to work with allies to hold cyberattackers to account.

Kirill Dmitriev, head of Russia's sovereign wealth fund, denied that his country was behind hacking attempts. He said that the allegation appeared to be "an attempt to tarnish the reputation of the Russian vaccine by some of the people who are scared of its success, because the Russian vaccine potentially could visit first to the market".

Mr Raab also disclosed that the government was "almost certain" that Russians tried to influence the outcome of the general election last December after documents on trade talks with the US were "illicitly acquired".

SIAC, a semi-secret court which hears national security cases, also said that although there were concerns about how Ms Begum could take part in the proceedings in London, those difficulties did not mean the home secretary's decision should be overturned.

In his ruling on Thursday, Lord Justice Flaux said: "It is difficult to conceive of any case where a court or tribunal has said we cannot hold a fair trial, but we are going to go on anyway."

Human rights organisation Liberty, which intervened in Ms Begum's appeal, welcomed the ruling, saying the right to a fair trial was "a fundamental part of our justice system and equal access to justice must apply to everyone."

RIP Sir Jack; knighthood calls grow for 1966 hero

LEEDS United this week paid tribute to World Cup winner Jack Charlton as calls grew for the football legend to be given a knighthood posthumously.

Jack, 85, is the latest member of England's 1966 World Cup-winning squad to die without being honoured. The former Leeds United defender and Republic of Ireland manager had been diagnosed with lymphoma in the last year and was also suffering from dementia. Tributes were paid to Charlton, fondly known as Big Jack, before Leeds United's match at the weekend, with both sets of players and staff applauding the former defender's contribution to football after a minute's silence had been held.

'absolute disgrace'

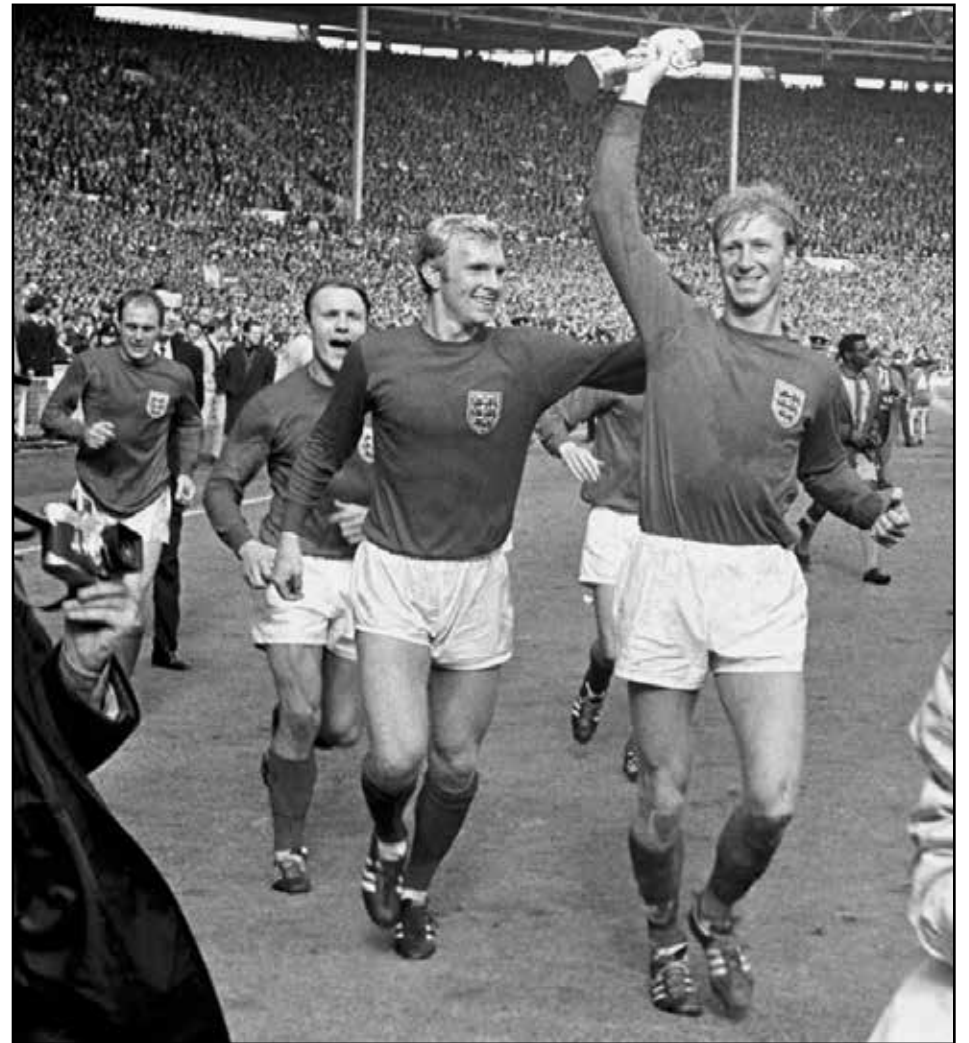

Pablo Hernandez, who scored the winner against Swansea in Sunday's game, said: "Jack helped us from the stars and this win is for him."

"I celebrated a lot because it is such an important goal. The three points are for everybody, the fans, the club, but especially for Jack Charlton."

Ray Houghton, who was a loyal servant for the Irish team under the much-beloved coach for years, winning 76 caps under his guidance, said: "He was a larger than life character."

"The word legend is used too much in football but not for Jack, for what he's done domestically with Leeds, winning the World Cup, which he should have been knighted for, I've still never understood that, I think that's an absolute disgrace."

"He changed everything about Irish football because there was a stage where we hadn't qualified for tournaments, we had some great players and very good managers but didn't quite get over the line.

"Jack came in and changed that mentality, got us through two World Cups and one European Championship. His legacy within Ireland is absolutely huge."

Ian Lavery, Labour

MP for Big Jack's home constituency of Wansbeck in Northumberland, has submitted an early day motion calling on the British Government to award the "legend" a posthumous knighthood.

Coronavirus drags on; no clear end in sight...

I feel like I am living in a parallel universe. Nothing seems to make sense any more.

We have all (for the most part) put our personal lives on pause, so much so that it almost makes the concept of time irrelevant. I only really notice the passing of another week because it is time to put the bins out again. But those days in between do drag on, don't they? Time has slowed down so much that I have often wondered if we are traveling backwards? Except we are almost eight months in to 2020! And it looks like there is no clear end in sight.

It doesn't help matters that only some of us are willing to try anything to get through it relatively unscathed. There are so many gatherings and parties in my neighborhood it is hard to believe we are still in the middle of a global pandemic. Which brings me to the dreaded M word that is currently causing a divide both sides of the pond. Personally I don't like wearing a mask. It makes me hot, sweaty and anxious. Lining up to go in to a supermarket in the blazing hot sun whilst trying to breathe through a face covering is far worse than I could ever have imagined. It makes me even more impressed with our healthcare workers, who are willing to wear them for hours on end on top of looking after all of us.

I endure the discomfort as I have been informed that it might protect you if I wear one. So that is enough for me to do so. If I can't face wearing a mask, then I don't go out. I have four masks on rotation which I wash as soon as I get home. I soak them in a bucket of hot soapy water and add some Pinesol to give me extra peace of mind. It is all a bit of a nuisance, and there have been many a time that I have forgotten my mask. In which case I accept that my privilege to shop has been temporarily revoked. I don't understand why so many people are against mask wearing? Or worse, think that it is ok to go out without one when they have been told that it may very well save a life. Nothing will keep us totally safe, but by trying our best, we and the people around us have a better chance of protecting each other. It is not only our civic duty but also a moral one. Think of it as risk reduction rather than absolute prevention. We all know that seatbelts in car crashes save lives but we also know that many people still get killed whilst wearing a seatbelt. It doesn't mean we shouldn't use one. It is also mandatory in the state on California, so if you do want us to get back to some kind of normality any time soon, do your bit and put a mask on! Or just stay home.

I know so many of you are worried about how you are going to manage financially over the next few months and whilst I have no solid advice for you, I highly recommend

Lastly, one of my favourite contemporary artists, Banksy was hard at work this week giving his perspective on the great mask debate. Aptly named "If you don't mask - you don't get." Couldn't have put it better myself.

Hope to see some of you on Zoom next week!

Meet A Member: Eugene Ganley

Not all Brits in LA Members are British, this week we would like to introduce you to Eugene Ganley from Westport, Ireland who moved to LA 14 years ago.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

No, LA was not my first choice. I had got recruited to work for a company in Chicago but a week before I was supposed to move it sold its Chicago operations and I was given a choice of Detroit or LA! I came here on a J1 training visa with the intention of being here one year tops and alas still here! I currently manage Joxer Daly's Pub in Culver City, 'the Home of Football', here in LA.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss pretty much everything of home.... what I don't miss is constant conversations of weather reports and funerals at home.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

My first impression of Los Angeles is comparable to Dorothy Parker's quote '72 suburbs in search of a city'. LA itself and surrounding cities/suburbs have improved immensely from 14 years ago. The food scene has exploded, we have more mass transit systems, our beer and craft brewery scene is one of best in the nation. And nightlife is no longer just Hollywood. DTLA is now a proper hub of nightlife and now we have the welcome addition of LAFC (Los Angeles Football Club) which is the closest thing we have to a European style football atmosphere.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus Westport?

Biggest difference between here and home is...Home is a lot less stressful plus you don't have to repeat yourself a few times over lol

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

I like going to places I would not usually find at home and make me feel like I am on holiday... I love Mexican cantinas. Lula on Main St, Santa Monica is one of my favourites, and Casa Sanchez for the mariachi show. Santa Monica Brew Works for its great beers and the vibrant Taproom. For more reminders of home I enjoy Auld Fella in Culver City and the Cock N Bull on Lincoln Boulevard in Santa Monica. If you want to watch the football I highly recommend my own spot Joxer Dalys as we show all the matches.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

Have all your paperwork in order and if not seek recommendation on the Brits in LA group for professional legal advice. Always explore your options carefully...I find too many simplify legal matters which may have worked for them but may not be compatible for you.

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Best piece of advice here is stay in your lane! If you're staying long term focus on making it a home..if you are unhappy or feel unsettled don't be afraid to make changes.

Winning was very much in Vogue at the virtual pub quiz

On the 30th anniversary of the release of classic hit Vogue, our trivia players enjoyed a Madonna singalong between rounds.

But it was Varun Bhuchar who was striking a winning pose at the end as the latest Brits in LA Virtual Pub Quiz champion.

He won a gift card to the Cat and Fiddle and the right to defend the title when the popular Zoom game returns on Tuesday July 21.

ARIES: Time to make way in your head for better days just around the corner. Mars is ready in your life to assist you through any setbacks. He is your boss so listen to your inner voice currently speaking wise words.

TAURUS: You have procrastinated a lot since the beginning of this situation and you have had plenty of downtime to catch up. Still with Uranus going backwards in your life there is not much you can do.

GEMINI: Being unable to move about your life and do everything with ease is not comfortable at the best of times. However Mercury your boss is going forward now and some better days are on the way.

CANCER: The moving forward of Mercury in your life these past few days has likely brought up anything on hold for a some past weeks. Just do what you can and don't stress. Happy Birthday.

LEO: You are probably planning ahead and already know what you will and will not do after this time is over. While this is good, just go with the flow until then. Happy early Birthday.

VIRGO: Hopefully you have taken this time frame and made changes on several levels. It's also good to not worry about the future. There will be better days next month.

LIBRA: Now that Mercury is going forward you can expect to see some plans moving in to place. Find your second wind and do not procrastinate on anything.

SCORPIO: The best way to make decisions is to surrender them to your higher power and ask to be shown the right way. Life has not been too difficult of late, so keep a positive attitude in all areas.

SAGITTARIUS: Make the most of the change of direction in your life again. It's good to get rid of stuff mentally or physically for better days ahead. Now your boss Jupiter in Aquarius is looking to help you.

CAPRICORN: The trying times are nearly over and especially for you keeping busy is important. However, like many others just when you thought it was time to move it's stop and start again for a while.

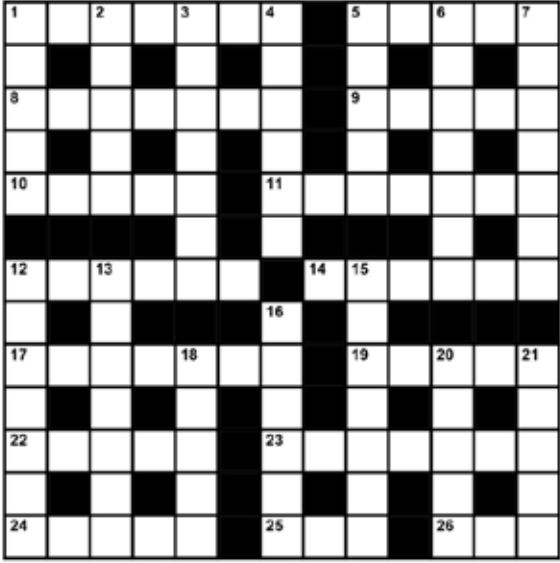

AQUARIUS: We have fully entered into Jupiter living with you now. Fear of the unknown is rare with you folk and as you are usually living in your head you will think of an innovative way to get through.

PISCES: Your money area is currently lit up and ready to work for you. Neptune is also visiting you and it's quite a party in your head. Keep busy with what you can and then relax.

Jermaine Blackwood played a gritty innings of 95 in Southampton on Sunday

Windies secure thrilling win in First Test

SOUTHAMPTON: ENGLAND suffered a historic four-wicket defeat at the weekend as West Indies celebrated the return of Test cricket in the most emphatic style.

Not since 2007 have the Windies gone 1-0 up in a series of at least three Tests away from home and, against the backdrop of the coronavirus pandemic as well as the Black Lives Matter movement, this was a win for the ages.

Either side could have triumphed on the last day as the tourists chased a target of 200 and there can be no doubting the efforts of Jofra Archer, Mark Wood and Ben Stokes to fire England home.

But, guided by a stunning 95 from Jermaine Blackwood, who took his team from 27-3 to 189-6 before he was eventually caught at mid-off, West Indies rolled back the years in emotional fashion.

Windies skipper Jason Holder said: "It was one of the best wins I've ever been involved in. Day four was probably the best day I've ever had in Test cricket.

"It was hard-fought cricket and everything I asked of the guys they gave me, it was a real team effort and I'm delighted.

"I missed the Barmy Army. But it was a level playing field without the crowds. It's been a good start back to international cricket, it sets the series up quite nicely."

Stokes and his side will be cursing dropped catches and mistakes that let the Windies off the hook on the final day. Blackwood's three lives mattered in the end. He should have been caught down the leg side by Jos Buttler when he had made just 20, but the England wicket-keeper could not react quickly enough and dropped a straightforward chance.

day of the season.

Palace's season is fizzling out after their latest loss, the promise of that impressive first post-lockdown win at Bournemouth seeming an age away.

This, however, was no tame surrender and Palace gave a good account of themselves, only to be undone by United's quality.

And certainly Hodgson and his players will feel they were hard done by when their appeals for a penalty as Zaha tangled with Lindelof were ignored.

There was more frustration when Ayew's 55th-minute finish at the far post from Zaha's cross-shot was ruled out after a lengthy VAR inspection, the striker being ruled offside by the thinnest of margins.

Palace are comfortably safe in 14th place but there is no question the end to their season has been something of an anti-climax.

England probably did not feel too worried as the next chance arrived in minutes. Zak Crawley could have thrown to either end for a run out but failed to pick up the ball. Blackwood then edged Stokes to Rory Burns in the gully at catchable height, only for the fielder to grab at thin air. Three missed chances in half an hour.

The tourists' win set things up nicely, and it was fitting that Holder was in the middle on 14 not out as John Campbell hit the winning run. Campbell had earlier retired hurt thanks to a thunderbolt from Archer that smashed into his right foot and may well have broken a toe. Archer was outstanding. Operating in the high 80s and using his probing accuracy and aggression, he produced a spell at the start of the day that could have turned the match into a procession. First he invalidated Campbell before accounting for Kraigg Brathwaite, a previous hero of Headingley, with one that squeezed off the inside edge and between the pads to hit the stumps. Shamarh Brooks was the next to go for a duck, absolutely plumb lbw without any need for a review, and Archer was flying. He also got rid of Roston Chase with perhaps the most brutal ball of the match, short and fast, which the batsman gloved behind.

The Windies, though, were brave in the face of England's pace – as they have been from the moment they took the decision to travel to a Covid-19 hotspot. Holder held back his bowling in the warm-up game then saw them deliver in the Test, while man-of-the-match Shannon Gabriel took nine wickets and put his sore body on the line in the best way possible.

Let's make history, Rodgers tell Foxes

Leicester boss Brendan Rodgers challenged his team to "make more history" after victory over Sheffield United secured European football for next season.

A first-half strike by Ayoze Perez and Demarai Gray's counter-attacking goal ensured the Foxes stay fourth, a point behind third-placed Chelsea with two games remaining.

Their win also means they qualified for next season's Europa League at least.

But Rodgers wants Leicester to secure Champions League football for a second time after becoming Premier League title-winners in 2016.

"The result gives us the second-highest Premier League finish in Leicester's history. We have two games to go to create some more history," he said.

"We all sat down at the start of season and said, it would be huge

Rodgers said European football for Leicester would be a "phenomenal achievement" challenge for Leicester to get into Europe, so do that in my first season here, to guarantee that is a phenomenal achievement."

The hosts, who dominated most of the game, went ahead when impressive 19-year-old debutant Luke Thomas crossed low to set up Perez after 29 minutes.

They should have extended their lead after the break when Harvey Barnes was twice denied by United goalkeeper Dean Henderson after clever through balls by Jamie Vardy.

The Foxes' top scorer also hit the post, and it looked as though Sheffield United might be fortunate enough to equalise when Jack O'Connell's shot was tipped wide by Kasper Schmeichel.

But, as the game hung in the balance, substitute Gray, on for Barnes, collected Vardy's pass and beat Henderson to finally seal the win after 79 minutes.

Leicester's victory was only their second in six games since the restart but it was a timely boost for Rodgers' team, who moved three points clear of fifth-placed Manchester United.

Blades boss Chris Wilder was fuming with his players afterwards as the result ended a four-game unbeaten run which included wins over Tottenham, Wolves and Chelsea.

taken them on this long unbeaten run.

It leaves them in contention for that top-four place, as well as the Europa League, and they also have an FA Cup semi-final against Chelsea at Wembley this weekend.

Most mouth-watering of all, they face a potentially decisive visit to Leicester on the final

Pep's £150m win

■ Guardiola given huge transfer kitty as court appeal secures Champions League spot

MANCHESTER CITY will give Pep Guardiola the green light for a £150million summer rebuild after their two-year European ban was overturned.

Their appeal against UEFA's ban was upheld by the Court of Arbitration for Sport on Monday.

With Champions League football now secured, the ruling allows boss Guardiola to press ahead with at least three big signings. City have made plans to boost their defence with another centre-half and a left-back. They are also looking for a replacement for Leroy Sane, who left for Bayern Munich, and possibly a striker.

Having dodged a possible £200m black hole with their successful appeal they are now ready to splash the cash. Guardiola is keen to secure the long-term future of young centre-half Eric Garcia, while Bayern Munich's David Alaba and Napoli centre-half Kalidou Koulibaly are on City's radar.

CAS cleared City of UEFA charges of breaching Financial Fair Play rules and overturned the ban from European club football. The Swiss court reduced a fine from £27m to £8.9m but said City failed to cooperate with UEFA's initial investigation.

A UEFA statement read: "The CAS panel found there was insufficient conclusive evidence to uphold all of the Club Financial Control Body's conclusions in this specific case and that many of the alleged breaches were time-barred due to the five-year time period foreseen in the UEFA regulations."

City, who firmly denied any wrongdoing, said: "The club welcomes the implications of today's ruling as a validation of the club's position."

United keep up the pace for top four

Manchester United maintained their relentless pursuit of a place in the Premier League's top four with a hard-fought 2-0 win against Crystal Palace at Selhurst Park on Thursday.

Ole Gunnar Solskjaer's side were under pressure after Leicester City's earlier victory over Sheffield United and responded with a victory that keeps them in fifth place, level on points with the Foxes but with an inferior goal difference.

United were made to work for their victory, Marcus Rashford breaking the deadlock with a stylish finish in first-half stoppage time before playing his part in a sweet move involving Bruno Fernandes that was rounded off by Anthony Martial in the 78th minute.

United were not at their best and were grateful to goalkeeper David de Gea for some fine saves, particularly from Zaha, while he also did well to keep out Luka Milivojevic's free-kick. This, however, is a United team developing a ruthless streak, demonstrated by Rashford's calm finish for the opener, and then an artistic move constructed by Rashford and Fernandes that enabled Martial to complete the job in style. to their sixth consecutive league loss and their night was made worse by what looked like serious injury to Patrick van Aanholt, who was carried off on a stretcher after trying to prevent Martial scoring United's second.
