New winter of discontent on the way, warns Liverpool mayor

■ City slapped with Tier 3 risk curbs as virus numbers spike

LOCKED-DOWN Liverpool's mayor has warned Covid-stricken northern cities will face a new winter of discontent without extra Treasury cash.

Joe Anderson saw his city slapped with Tier 3 "very high" risk curbs on Wednesday, closing much of its hospitality industry such as pubs and bars.

And it later emerged the Army has sent staff to Liverpool to aid public services and help with track and trace.

Mr Anderson, 62, said it would have been reckless to ignore the rising infection cases, but warned: "The health and wellbeing of the nation is crucial, but so is the economic wellbeing of the UK too."

"Disappointingly, the Government seem to have a red line on proper furlough terms for businesses their new Tier 3 closes.

"These new furlough terms that only pay two-thirds of wages are simply unfair to lowest-paid workers.

It's a massive kick in the teeth and struggle for them.

"Businesses are going to close and not come back. I worry they could end up laying off thousands of people.

"That means people out of work needing benefits to support themselves and fewer businesses, meaning less business rates for us – its a double whammy."

Mr Anderson added: "The 1980s was a decade of despair but I can see a new winter of discontent coming."

tipping point

He later tweeted: "There are 250 people currently in the Royal Liverpool Hospital, 3,000 people infected, 700 new cases in last week and doubling. Ignoring that and doing nothing is reckless."

Liverpool has the highest number of coronavirus hospital admissions in England and is feared to have Europe's third highest number of Covid hospital patients.

It is understood 20 per cent of hospital admissions caused by the virus is a tipping point which could harm their ability to cope with regular medical cases.

On Saturday the number was 15 per cent, which will have increased in the last 24-36 hours.

Liverpool Metro mayor Steve Rotheram said the economic effect of a Tier 3 lockdown would be massive.

He told BBC News: "While the Chancellor did the right thing in March when there was a national lockdown and had packages of support that reflected the severity of those lockdown measures, Tier 3 is probably similar to what happened all the way back in March.

"There is comparable lockdown issues in each of those two dates.

We are not getting anywhere near what the national lockdown restrictions got in regard to a financial package all those months ago.

"If it was right then, it has to be right now. And that is what we are in detailed negotiations with Government to try and sort out."

News From Britain

Unforgivable not to act now, insists Boris

- PM introduces three-tier lockdown rules
- Covid cases flashing 'like alerts on a jet'

BORIS Johnson has warned a full national lockdown is looming unless Britons stick to coronavirus rules.

The Prime Minister said the nation faces a "crucial phase in our fight" with hospitalisations and deaths rising.

He told regional leaders on Wednesday that failing to act now would be "unforgivable", adding: "We must act to save lives. These figures are flashing at us like dashboard warnings in a passenger jet – and we must act now."

Mr Johnson also unveiled a new three-tier Local Covid Alert System.

But his Chief Medical Officer Chris Whitty is "not confident" pub closures and other restrictions under the highest level alert will be enough to "get on top" of the second wave.

Mr Johnson warned regional leaders who are resisting new restrictions in their areas that he could impose them regardless of their objections.

He appealed to politicians in coronavirus hotspots to develop a package of measures with the Government.

The PM said: "I believe not to act would be unforgivable, so I hope that rapid progress can be made in the coming days. If we can't get agreement then clearly it is the duty of national Government to take the necessary action to protect the public and public health, and we will."

Mr Johnson also hinted at a possible "circuit breaker" to short a lockdown to coincide with the school half-term holidays.

He added: "We don't want to go down that extreme route right now." But he did not rule out the measure in the longer term.

Under the new system, areas will be designated at medium, high or very high risk of the coronavirus spreading.

Setting out the new regime at a Downing Street news conference, he said: "We are entering a new and crucial phase of our fight against coronavirus because the number of cases has gone up four times in four weeks and it is once again spreading among the elderly and vulnerable.

"There are already more Covid patients in UK hospitals today than there were on March 23 when the whole country went into lockdown and deaths, alas, are also rising once again.

"No one, least of all me, wants to impose these kinds of erosions on our personal liberty, but I am as convinced as I have ever been that the British people have the resolve to beat this virus and that, together, we will do just that."

Britons have to stick to the rules to give the country any chance of a relatively normal Christmas, the PM said.

He added: "We'll do our absolute best to try to make sure we can get life back to as close to normal as possible for Christmas.

BORIS JOHNSON: "No one, least of all me, wants to impose these kinds of erosions on our personal liberty...."

"But that is going to depend, I'm afraid, on our success in getting this virus down and our ability as a country to follow through on the package of measures."

Also speaking at the news conference, Prof Whitty said the new system included "a lot of flexibility" for local authorities to go far further than closing pubs and banning household mixing.

He said the basic Government proposals for such regions were "not sufficient" to tackle the worst rates of infection.

Speaking in the Commons earlier, Mr Johnson warned the coming weeks will test the "mettle" of the country.

He said: "With all the lessons we have learned in the past few months we are becoming better and better at fighting this virus.

"I must warn the House again that the weeks and months ahead will continue to be difficult and will test the mettle of this country. I have no doubt at all that together we will succeed. This is not how we want to live our lives but this is the narrow path we have to tread between the social and economic trauma of a full lockdown and the massive human and indeed economic cost of an uncontained epidemic."

Restrictions for the three-tier system set out Wednesday include:

- Tier One – Medium Risk: Existing national measures announced last month, including the rule of six limit on social gatherings and 10pm curfew for the hospitality industry, stay in place.

- Tier Two – High Risk: Mixing between households or support bubbles indoors will be banned.

- Tier Three – Very High Risk: All household or support bubble mixing in any setting will be banned.

Mr Johnson pledged an extra £1 billion of Government support to help councils in high and very high risk areas cope with the challenges.

Chancellor Rishi Sunak said a "comprehensive plan" will protect jobs and businesses over the winter, ensuring "no gap in support".

Whitehall documents released this week showed the Government's scientific advisers called for a two-week "circuit breaker" lockdown in England three weeks ago.

Minutes from a meeting of the Scientific Advisory Group for Emergencies held on September 21 said the move "should be considered for immediate introduction".

PM 'ready to walk away' from Brexit trade talks

The Prime Minister is waiting for a clearer picture to emerge after leaders of the 27 European Union countries set out their positions at a dinner Wednesday night in Brussels.

Mr Johnson wants a "strong and credible" sign a breakthrough can be made after clashes over B fishing rights continued to hold up progress.

UK negotiators are frustrated that the last round of discussions "lacked energy" – despite pledges they would intensify as the clock counts down.

Mr Johnson spoke to Ursula von der Leyen, president of the European Commission, and Charles Michel, president of the L European Council, to assess the EU's position.

A Downing Street spokesman said: "The Prime Minister...

expressed his disappointment that more progress had not been made over the past two weeks.

"He said that he looked forward to hearing the outcome of the European Council and would reflect before setting out the UK's next steps in the light of his statement of September 7."

It was on that date that the PM threatened to Police break up 100-person wedding

Police have broken up a wedding reception where more than 100 guests congregated in breach of coronavirus restrictions.

The event at the Tudor Rose in Southall, west London, on Tuesday evening was described as a "flagrant and arrogant violation of the law".

The venue's owner has been reported and could face a fine of up to £10,000.

Under current guidance, the number of guests allowed at weddings is limited to 15 people.

Body-worn camera footage of the reception, released by the Metropolitan Police, showed guests being led from the venue.

Area Commander, Ch Supt Peter Gardner, said: "This was a dangerous and foolish breach of the regulations, which have been designed specifically to keep people safe from transmitting a deadly virus.

"Restrictions on large gatherings, such as weddings, have been in place for months and quite frankly there can be no excuse for this flagrant and arrogant violation of the law.

"There was clearly no attempt by the venue owner to enforce the regulations or keep their patrons safe. It is for this reason we have reported them for a £10,000 fine."

London is among a number of places in England which will face Tier 2 lockdown restrictions beginning on Saturday, including a ban on households mixing indoors.

London moves into Tier 2 lockdown

Millions of people in London, Essex, York and other areas face tougher Tier 2 Covid measures from Saturday, Health Secretary Matt Hancock has said.

Under this "high" alert level, there is a ban on households mixing indoors, including in pubs and restaurants.

Greater Manchester mayor Andy Burnham is resisting the region moving to Tier 3, ahead of a final decision on this.

More than half of England's population will now be living under high or very high-alert restrictions.

The areas to go into high alert restrictions this weekend are: London, Essex (apart from Southend and Thurrock), York, North East Derbyshire, Chesterfield, Erewash in Derbyshire, Elmbridge in Surrey, and Barrow in Furness, Cumbria.

'not easy'

As unitary authorities, Southend and Thurrock councils are not included in the move and will remain in Tier 1, Essex County Council has said.

The health secretary said "things will get worse before they get better".

"Now, I know that these measures are not easy but I also know that they are vital," Mr Hancock told MPs.

"Responding to this unprecedented pandemic requires difficult choices, some of the most difficult choices any government has to make in peacetime."

On Thursday, a further 18,980 cases and 138 deaths within 28 days of a positive test were reported in the UK.

The new three-tier system sees every area of England classed as being on medium, high or very high alert - also known as Tiers 1 to 3, respectively.

It came into effect on Wednesday, and the Liverpool City Region remains the only area currently in the highest tier.

Meanwhile, the government announced that travellers returning to the UK from Italy, Vatican City and San Marino must self-isolate for 14 days from 04:00 BST on Sunday.

Discussions are continuing over whether Greater Manchester will be moved into the highest tier of restrictions, with a financial support package yet to be finalised.

Speaking at a press conference on Thursday, Mr Burnham said the region's leaders were "unanimously opposed" to the introduction of Tier 3 measures, calling the government's plans "flawed and unfair".

He said: "They are asking us to gamble our residents' jobs, homes and businesses and a large chunk of our economy on a strategy that their own experts tell them might not work."

Repeating his calls for a financial support package for parts of the North West, he added: "Greater Manchester, the Liverpool City Region and Lancashire are being set up as the canaries in the coalmine for an experimental regional lockdown strategy as an attempt to prevent the expense of what is truly needed.

"The very least they should be offering the people of Greater Manchester who will be affected by these closures is a full and fair 80% furlough for all affected workers, 80% income support for people who are self-employed and a proper compensation scheme for businesses."

Tier 3 involves pub

London moved from its current 'medium' alert level to 'high' on Friday closures and a ban on household mixing indoors, in private gardens and in most outdoor hospitality venues and ticketed events.

Mr Hancock confirmed in the Commons that no decision had been made on moving more regions to Tier 3, but added "we need to make rapid progress".

BREXIT:

cut off negotiations on today's date if there was no progress.

An EU official, familiar with the contents of the call, said the EU side pushed back against what it saw as UK attempts to leave fisheries as the last sticking point to be sorted out.

Meanwhile, the NHS Test and Trace system in England recorded its worst week for reaching community contacts since the middle of June.

Data showed some 62% of non-household contacts of people who tested positive in the community were reached through the system in the week ending 7 October.

They told Mr Johnson it was part of a whole package needed for an overall agreement, according to the official, including on energy ties from 2021 and financial services - areas where London's negotiating position is weaker than on fishing rights.

Splits have emerged between France and Germany, with Angela Merkel wanting Emmanuel Macron to reconsider his hardline fishing demands, which threaten to prevent a deal.

The French president wants to maintain the same level of access to the UK's coastal waters after the end of the transition period.

A German government source said: "Everybody knows that if there is no deal then European quotas in British waters is zero - now it's 100."

Palace sword terrorist runs up £300,000 legal aid bill

A TERRORIST who attacked police with a sword outside Buckingham Palace and plotted indiscriminate death on the streets cost nearly £300,000 in legal aid.

Mohiussunnath Chowdhury, 28, is serving life with a 25-year minimum jail term following three trials for terror offences.

The first two related to the 2017 palace sword attack which left two unarmed officers injured.

An initial jury was discharged after failing to reach a verdict on a charge of preparing an act of terrorism. A second jury cleared him – a verdict that left police astonished.

Chowdhury told the Old Bailey he was depressed and only wanted to be shot dead by police. He claimed he had no intention of hurting anyone.

After he walked free, the terrorist mocked the jury who gave him his freedom claiming his ruse of shaving off his beard had helped fool them.

Within weeks, he was planning attacks with guns, knives and a van.

Proposed targets included Madame Tussauds, an open-top tourist bus and the Pride parade in London.

'huge legal bills'

Snared by an undercover operation, Chowdhury was found guilty of preparing acts of terrorism at London's Woolwich Crown Court in February this year and was jailed for life in July.

Figures from the Legal Aid Agency show that Chowdhury's lawyers were paid £284,125 for representing him between 2017 and 2020. Human rights campaigner Peter Tatchell said: "While poor people are entitled to legal aid, it is shocking to learn Chowdhury cost the taxpayer nearly £300,000 in legal fees between 2017 and 2020.

"If he had been properly convicted for the sword attack in 2017, he would not have been free to plot subsequent terror offences and pile up further huge legal bills at public expense."

Working as an Uber driver, he had planned to launch the sword attack at Windsor Castle in August 2017, the Old Bailey heard.

But he put the wrong details into his satnav and ended up at a pub called the Windsor Castle close to the Queen's Berkshire residence.

Chowdhury then drove to London and threatened police with a 42-inch sword outside Buckingham Palace as he shouted "Allahu Akbar!"

In a struggle, two unarmed officers suffered minor cuts. He was cleared in December

Chowdhury: revealed his plans to undercover officers

2018 after a retrial but was determined to become a martyr while committing mass murder.

He was soon plotting further attacks and buying an imitation Glock pistol. Chowdhury was inspired by Khalid Masood who murdered five people in a car and knife rampage at Westminster in 2017.

The would-be suicide killer, of Luton, Beds, was working as a takeaway driver when he was arrested in July 2019.

The Legal Aid Agency pointed out that without legal representation defendants could argue their trial was unfair and convictions could be quashed.

LOCKDOWN:

the mayor of Greater Manchester, which escaped the worst measures by going into high-risk Tier 2, said: "We had no evidence that hospitality was the primary course of spread in our city region."

"However any restrictions will choke off trade to our pubs, restaurants, even our shops so [they] must come with a full economic support otherwise we are going to see redundancies and business failure running up to Christmas."

The measures were scheduled after press time on Friday, when Liverpool City Region was to be placed under the very high risk level on the Government's Covid chart.

Town halls will be able to introduce further restrictions including closing gyms, casinos and betting shops if needed.

Labour MP and shadow health secretary Jonathan Ashworth, whose Leicester South constituency is in the high tier of restrictions, backed the measures but said he was "sceptical" they will drive down infections.

'total confusion'

He said: "With rising hospital admissions including into critical care, will today's announcements be enough?"

"Lockdowns are blunt tools but buy time. We should use that time to expand testing and fix tracing."

West Midlands Tory mayor Andy Street said he was "very disappointed" areas including Birmingham, Sandwell, Solihull, Walsall and Wolverhampton would be classified as high risk. Meanwhile Liverpool businesses demanded more clarity over who must shut and or keep trading.

Hairdresser Adele Allan, of Wavertree, said: "People are frightened and worried. There's total confusion."

At the nearby TriBeCa bar, manager Niall Scott said as it sells pizzas he is not sure if it can stay open.

He said: "We're always planning ahead for the week, ordering thousands of pounds worth of food and drink."

"We need guidance."

'grave concerns'

Connor O'Brien, who runs gyms in the city centre, said closure was "catastrophic and heartbreaking".

He said no virus cases had been traced to his gyms since they reopened and insisted science and data "does not justify this closure".

A joint statement by Mr Rotheram, Mr Anderson and the leaders of Liverpool City Region's six local authorities said: "Since we were first informed by the Government...they would be placing the Liverpool City Region on to new Tier 3 restrictions, it was made clear to us that Government would be doing this regardless of if we engaged with them or not."

"Since then we have been in dialogue...to try to negotiate a package of support in the best interests of the people."

"We share the Government's grave concerns about the increasing pressure on our hospitals and remain absolutely committed to working with the Government to drive down the spread of the coronavirus and the number of Covid-19 cases."

New ban on travel to Wales

A ban on travelling to Wales from coronavirus hotspots elsewhere in the UK came into effect on Friday evening.

First Minister Mark Drakeford asked Prime Minister Boris Johnson twice to stop people in areas of England with high coronavirus rates from travelling.

But after receiving no reply, the first minister used devolved powers to shut Wales' borders to people from hotspots.

The ban will cover all of Northern Ireland, England's tier two and three areas and the Scottish central belt.

The UK government's Welsh Secretary Simon Hart said the decision risks "stirring division and confusion", but Scotland's First Minister Nicola Sturgeon said she fully supported Mr Drakeford's move.

There was a warning from the head of the Police Federation in Wales that the rules could be "unenforceable".

The first minister said the police will have extra patrols on main roads into Wales.

As is the case within Wales, there are reasonable excuses for travelling in and out of locked down areas, including to go to work, school and to provide care.

Announcing the ban, Mr Drakeford said: "Evidence from public health professionals suggests coronavirus is moving from east to west across the UK and across Wales."

"As a general rule, it is concentrating in urban areas and then spreading to more sparsely populated areas as a result of people travelling."

Blue Peter presenter 'a real gentleman'

Former colleagues of TV presenter John Leslie have described him as a "gentleman" who was "adored by women" to a jury.

The 55-year-old denies grabbing a woman's breasts at a party in 2008.

At Southwark Crown Court, ex-Blue Peter presenter Anthea Turner said Mr Leslie had always been "incredibly respectful" towards her.

Mr Leslie faces a single charge of sexual assault by touching a woman without her consent.

Ms Turner, who worked with him on the popular children's television show, said he was "absolutely adored" by women who worked with him.

She had "never, ever, ever seen John behave in any way inappropriately with any woman," she said.

Ms Turner said the charge against Mr Leslie was "not the man that I know, not at all".

Character evidence was also heard from Mr Leslie's former This Morning co-host Fern Britton.

In a statement read to the court, she said: "I can confidently say that the allegations that have been made about John do not sound like the man that I know in the slightest."

Mr Leslie told the jury he has "never crossed the line between behaving gregariously and criminal behaviour".

He said he could not remember being at the 2008 Christmas party where assault is said to have occurred.

On Wednesday, Mr Leslie told the court he would have been "paranoid" on any social outing after being painted as a "sexual monster" by newspapers.

The trial continues.

Make Old Firm game free, Sturgeon urges Sky Sports

■ Fears that popularity of fixture could lead to fans breaking quarantine restrictions

Nicola Sturgeon has urged Sky Sports to show this weekend's Old Firm match for free, saying it would be a "small but important contribution" to help "keep people safe".

The First Minister made the comments during her update to MSPs on Scotland's Covid restrictions.

Currently, pubs in Glasgow are closed, and there's a ban on household visits.

There's been widespread speculation Rangers and Celtic fans could be heading south of the Border to watch Saturday's game in a bar.

One pub in Blackpool has already made the decision to close its doors this weekend, saying they'd had more than 1,500 booking requests to watch the Old Firm match.

The Gallant Pioneer team announced that they usually "live for days like Saturday" but won't be welcoming Rangers fans to watch the Glasgow derby as they don't want to risk breaking any restrictions.

The First Minister urged fans not to make the trip: "I said yesterday that people should not, if they can avoid it, travel to Blackpool. That's not because I've got anything in for Blackpool.

"Blackpool is a great place, many people in Scotland love going to Blackpool at this time of the year, lots of us have got very happy childhood memories of visits to Blackpool and we look forward to getting back to normal, but we know through test and protect that a significant number of people who have travelled to Blackpool have gone on to test positive.

"We can't be certain that's where they got it but it is an increasing theme of the test and protect interview, so people should not travel to Blackpool right now, if they don't have to.

"And that applies particularly to Old Firm supporters this weekend. We know or have heard some suggestions that some of them may have been planning to travel to Blackpool to watch the match in pubs.

"Please don't do that.

"I know how important football is to so many people across the country. Old Firm matches are big occasions, everybody understands that, but please watch at home, don't travel elsewhere to watch it with other people either in pubs outside of your own area or in other people's homes because by doing that you're putting yourself at risk and you're putting other people at risk."

Sturgeon encouraged

BIG DEMAND: one pub in Blackpool received 1,500 booking requests

Sky Sports to make the match free to view for supporters, "as a small but important contribution that they could make in helping keep people safe right now".

This, she said, would enable people to "watch the match in the comfort and the safety of their own home" and would "reduce the temptation to people who don't have access to pay to view services to go and watch the match somewhere else."

There was no immediate comment from Sky Sports.

Brits in LA

We all have a story to tell: mine goes from Ghana to Scotland to LA....via London

To commemorate Black History Month UK (www.blackhistorymonth.org.uk) we decided that it is of the utmost importance that we continue to amplify the voices of some of our Black British members. This week Maleeza Korley takes us on a trip down (her) memory lane...

1970, Edinburgh: Weary of the demands and expectations of marriage to an appropriate bachelor, mum was a free spirit. Blessed with a strong will, a statuesque physique, a blonde beehive of crowning glory and a passion for all things creative arts. A show-stopping personality which arrived ten minutes before she did, renowned for being a natural leader, doing things the right way, aka her way. Dad dreamed of whimsical cobbled

British streets paved with gold. Ghana was his place of birth yet his family's desire for him to marry a local merchant's daughter filled him with dread, so he sought his fortune in lands afar. Departing the shores of the Atlantic Ocean Daddy stowed away on a ship set sail for pastures anew. Oblivious to the actual destination of the ship, fate was his compass. My grandfather was a Sergeant Major in World War Two. At 6'2" his height and mere presence commanded attention; a natural leader replete with a commanding Scottish brogue. His indifference to mum's penchant for the arts cast a shadow over their already strained relationship. His evident derision at her choice of career and a desperate desire to ensure she was at the least married into a good Scottish family before he passed over was significant. Granddad was in failing health - ever the protector he had neglected to share this time-sensitive information with his family.

Suffocated by conservative familial expectations, mum dreamed of becoming an actress. The desire to spread her wings evolved into a clandestine adventure departing Edinburgh, the only home she had known. Invisible under the shroud of nightfall and the guidance of a full moon. An hourglass figure with sparkling blue eyes, patent leather winkle-picker shoes and her signature beehive encapsulated in her favourite Mulberry silk scarf mum was a runaway, she departed on the night train. It was the last time she would on stand on Scottish soil.

Arriving at a smog-laden Paddington station naive to an imminent crash course in racial awareness. Her ignorance was bliss. Unbeknownst to her, the timing of arrival coincided with a rising time of activism against racial discrimination. Overjoyed at the freedom and splendour London had to offer, within a fortnight a life changing metamorphosis was about to encapsulate her entire identity.

Days after settling into her new flat a chance meeting with a charismatic stranger with an indomitable sense of self ensured their initial friendship fast-tracked into a taboo love affair. Intoxicated by his dulcet tones an added bonus was that he treated her like a queen as she swiftly found herself falling head over heels. Forbidden love with the epitome of the very likeness of a man whom her family would disapprove. Vicariously living through the daily experiences of a Ghanaian immigrant mum's alabaster skin to dad's blue black-hue, they stood out like sore thumbs. They took necessary precautions however the verbal assaults were unrelenting.

Mum and dad eloped. Withstanding the backdrop of Enoch Powell's divisive "Rivers of Blood" speech. Oblivious of naysayers their tenacious love was impenetrable.

We moved to Cornwall, UK. I was raised on a farm and became an avid equestrian. To this day when I drive past The Equestrian Centre, I receive looks of disdain from my children as I open all of the car windows and inhale as my olfactory glands delight in the fragrance of mother nature's manna. Moving to Los Angeles revealed every aspect of life was different, from the juxtaposition of the NHS (National Health Service) to the peculiarities of the US healthcare system. Craving a break from the British winters and access to the creative arts Los Angeles was a veritable onslaught of colloquialisms with the expectation of familiarity with hindsight as I type with African American I realise in the abstract I am vicariously living her ebionics of which took me many years to decipher. Mum is my guardian angel and creative arts dream.

The Strongest Link.....

Fresh from his appearance on TV's The Weakest Link, Brits in LA member Prem Goyal proved the strongest link at our latest virtual pub quiz.

While he might not have won on NBC's trivia show revival, Prem Zoomed to victory this time, taking the glory and the Cat and Fiddle gift card.

"I'd rather have won this anyway," said Prem, who will try to defend the title on Tuesday October 20.

Please join him, quizmaster Sandro Monetti and your fellow Brits in LA for more fun and games then.

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Now is a good time to put your financial goals at the top of your to-do list. Do not think that because it's been dormant for a while past that you should procrastinate.

TAURUS: You are likely feeling concerned about your future finances this coming week. This is understandable considering the current situation, but it's not going to last forever.

GEMINI: Make time to lay low and rest as your boss Mercury is going backwards for three weeks. It will be good to just focus on things a day at a time.

CANCER: Your moods can change quickly now so it's good that you are mostly low key. You have some stuff lying around not needed that could help others. Gather it together as giving will make you feel better.

LEO: You should be starting to understand things in your life from your distant past. Time to let go of old hurts, possibly from childhood years. Late in this month begin to feel lighter.

VIRGO: Do not push too hard, let yourself breathe and relax. You are the big worrier of the signs. Show your organized side to those that need the help. Mercury your boss going backwards, which will make you a little lazy.

LIBRA: You can expect to receive financial surprises these next couple weeks. Mercury is in your money house going backwards which can bring it in and take it out. It's not so bad, it only lasts for three weeks. Happy Birthday.

SCORPIO: Life has been not as bad as you expected in this downtime. You should have cleared space mentally or physically for a clearer vision of what is next. Be careful how you reply to past matters.

SAGITTARIUS: It's not currently a time to be self-indulgent or down-hearted. You are the free spirit of the signs and your boss Jupiter is currently in Aquarius and something good can transpire from this time.

CAPRICORN: You should be lightening up in your outlook on any situation now Mercury is going backwards. Your boss Saturn is in your money house for a while and so is lucky Jupiter. Good news financially.

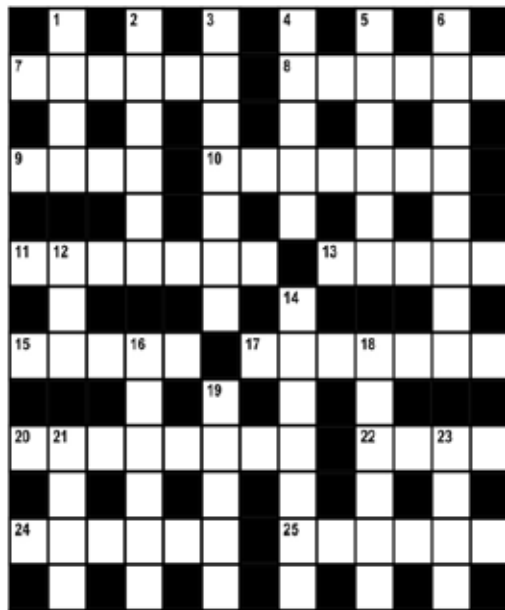

AQUARIUS: Be honest with yourself and others about what is not working for you in the long term. It's a good time to set your intentions and be ready to move on them soon as this current time lightens up.

PISCES: Don't look backwards, just look up and at what is positive and enjoyable. You can be like a sponge picking up others' feelings. Keep your distance as much as possible from outside your own circle for a while.

Cavani targets title – and more

EDINSON CAVANI has told Manchester United fans to dream big, insisting Ole Gunnar Solskjaer's side are capable of landing the Premier League title this season.

The Uruguay striker, 33, who arrived at Old Trafford on deadline day, sees no reason why his new club cannot grab a first top-flight title since 2013.

He said: "I've just joined one of the biggest clubs in the world and one of the first objectives it has, as a club, is to win and be champions.

"Any player who is competitive by nature always wants to be able to win silverware. You always work hard so you can give the best account of yourself and you can get the right results.

"You can't help but think that a club like Manchester United can aspire to win the title."

Cavani won six French titles with Paris Saint-Germain and became the club's record goalscorer.

He said: "Starting with the Premier League and then moving on to other trophies. That's what I would like to achieve with this club, to make the same impression here that I've always tried to make with every club I've played at."

Cavani has been training in a house provided by the club and says he is close to full fitness.

"I'm probably just missing that contact with my team-mates, and getting up to speed with small-sided drills on the training ground and the intensity of a game itself," he said.

He is unavailable for Saturday's trip to CAVANI: "Any player who is competitive by nature always wants to be able to win silverware."

Newcastle on account of quarantine restrictions, but the Champions League clash in Paris next week against PSG could provide the perfect platform for his debut.

"That's life, isn't it? Incredible.

Things happen for a reason, and sometimes in the most unbelievable ways," said Cavani.

"It's something that I'm very pleased about."

WALES:

Boss Giggs made four changes with Kieffer Moore and midfielder Joe Morrell suspended.

Luton defender Rhys Norrington-Davies, on loan from Sheffield United, made his debut at left wing-back and Liverpool's Neco Williams got his first start on the right. It was a young line up with eight of the starting line-up aged 22 or under.

Wales always remained an appearance for Spurs because he has been working his way back from a knee injury picked up over the summer.

The 31-year-old withdrew from the Wales squad in order to build up his fitness and has spent the past few weeks working hard at Tottenham's training ground.

Mourinho was understandably coy about his team selection when asked whether Bale had done enough to earning a starting spot this weekend, but he did not rule it out either.

Dirty Harry the villain

■ Dismal night for England as Denmark win at Wembley to leave Three Lions facing uphill battle to make finals

UEFA Nations League
England.....0
Denmark1

Harry Maguire's miserable start to the season continued with a red card as England had two men sent off for the first time in their Nations League defeat by Denmark on Wednesday.

Manchester United's captain suffered a 31-minute nightmare, shown a yellow card for a reckless early challenge on Yussuf Poulsen and then dismissed by Spanish referee Jesus Gil Manzano after he brought down Kasper Dolberg trying to retrieve his own poor touch.

England's night got worse four minutes later when Christian Eriksen scored his 34th goal for Denmark on his 100th appearance after Kyle Walker was harshly adjudged to have fouled Thomas Delaney.

Chelsea defender Reece James was shown a red card after the final whistle for confronting referee Manzano.

In a low-key affair, England had their moments and it took a magnificent save from Kasper Schmeichel to claw away Mason

Mount's close-range header as Denmark closed out the win.

England are now third in their group, with only the winners progressing to the Nations League finals in 2021.

Maguire endured what must have been one of the most miserable nights of his career before he was sent off after only 31 minutes.

It was bad from the opening moments when he needlessly left his foot in on Poulsen, and the rest of his performance was distracted and chaotic.

Maguire was ill-at-ease with England's three-man defensive system, often out of position, even pulling up holding the top of his hamstring at one point before his fate was sealed by a shocking first touch which he tried to retrieve with a lunge that injured Dolberg.

He looks like a player suffering mentally as well as physically following his recent arrest in Greece and it would be no surprise if he was also taken out of the line of fire at club level given his recent poor form.

England never seriously troubled

Denmark apart from a couple of late scares, Harry Kane looking out of sorts and the failure of manager Gareth Southgate to introduce the creativity of Jack Grealish ahead of Jordan Henderson - which is no slight on the Liverpool captain - a mystery.

There was also more uncertainty involving goalkeeper Jordan Pickford and Walker that led to a somewhat dubious penalty award - summing up what was a very unsatisfactory and disjointed night for England and Southgate.

Chelsea's James was arguably England's best player on his full debut - only to ruin all that good work after the final whistle when he got verbally involved with referee Manzano and was shown a red card.

It was a moment of frustration for the 20-year-old but also inexcusable ill-discipline, which has been a trend in England's recent games given Walker's sending-off in Iceland last month and the two dismissals here.

This was a bad night for England but James was one of those who could have held his head high, until he unwisely showed dissent to the officials.

RED MIST: Maguire was sent off in the 31st minute

James had been solid in defence and a real threat in attack, on a night when England were struggling with reduced numbers and were being held at bay by a resilient Danish rearguard.

Sadly for James, a fine performance will now be remembered for the wrong reasons.

Scots profit from blank Czechs

SCOTLAND 1 CZECH REPUBLIC 0

RYAN FRASER inspired Scotland as they kept their unbeaten run going against Covid-hit Czech Republic Wednesday night.

The Newcastle winger fired in after just six minutes to make it eight matches unbeaten for Steve Clarke's side.

Last week's win over Israel might have been more important as it booked their place in the Euro 2020 play-off final against Serbia next month.

But this extended their lead at the top of their Nations League group to four points ahead of Wednesday's opponents.

Stephen O'Donnell won the ball deep in the Czech half before moving it on to Lyndon Dykes, who found Fraser and the Newcastle man fired home.

Flying Finns sink Ireland

FINLAND 1 REP OF IRELAND 0

FREDRIK JENSEN returned to haunt the Republic of Ireland as he fired Finland to Nations League victory in Helsinki on Wednesday night.

The Augsburg striker, who scored the only goal in a 1-0 win in Dublin last month, did it again with a 66th-minute strike after an error by keeper Darren Randolph in front of a crowd of about 8,000 at the Olympic Stadium.

Forward Aaron Connolly said: "It was tough. We deserved to win that game. I'm not even sure what happened for the goal. Obviously we've lost it at the back and they've punished us."

New manager Stephen Kenny has seen his first five games pass without a win.

Bale set for Spurs start?

Jose Mourinho has refused to rule out handing Gareth Bale his second Tottenham debut against West Ham this weekend, but says any decision taken will be for the good of the team.

The Wales winger has been working hard at Spurs' training ground during the international break in the hope of featuring this weekend.

Though he re-joined the club nearly a month ago, Bale has yet to make JONNY WILLIAMS smashed in his first international goal in brilliant fashion to keep Wales top of their Nations League group Wednesday night.

The visitors dominated in Sofia but could not find a breakthrough at the Vasil Levski National Stadium until Williams came off the bench.

The sub created a superb chance for Rabbi Matondo before finding the back of the net himself in the 85th minute. He struck with a high near-post shot from a cross from man-of-the-match Neco Williams.

It means Giggs' side stay top of Group B4 ahead of Finland, who visit Cardiff next month.

A small number of fans were allowed in but there was little excitement for them as Wales recorded their sixth successive competitive clean sheet.

But Wales were shot-shy without record scorer Gareth Bale plus Aaron Ramsey, Joe Allen, David Brooks and Hal Robson-Kanu.
