Boris blasts Trump after shameful scenes at Capitol

■ PM calls for “peaceful and orderly transfer of power”

Donald Trump was “completely wrong” to cast doubt on the US election and encourage supporters to storm the Capitol, Boris Johnson has said.

The UK prime minister said he “unreservedly condemns” the US president’s actions.

Four people died after a pro-Trump mob stormed the building in a bid to overturn the election result.

Mr Trump had urged protesters to march on the Capitol after making false electoral fraud claims.

He later called on his supporters to “go home”, while continuing to make false claims - Twitter and Facebook later froze his accounts.

The president has now said there will be an “orderly transition” to President-elect Joe Biden, whose November election victory has now been certified by US lawmakers.

On Wednesday night, Mr

Johnson condemned the “disgraceful scenes” and called for a “peaceful and orderly transfer of power”.

But asked by the BBC’s political correspondent Alex Forsyth if President Trump was directly responsible, he said: “All my life America has stood for some very important things. An idea of freedom, an idea of democracy.

‘politics of hate’

“As you say, in so far as he encouraged people to storm the Capitol, and in so far as the president has consistently cast doubt on the outcome of a free and fair election, I believe that was completely wrong.

“I believe what President Trump has been saying about that has been completely wrong and I unreservedly condemn encouraging people to behave in the disgraceful way that they did in the Capitol.”

The PM, speaking at a Downing Street briefing, then welcomed the confirmation of President-elect Biden, saying “democracy has prevailed”.

UK politicians from different parties have all condemned Mr Trump’s actions in encouraging the storming of the Capitol.

Earlier, Home Secretary Priti Patel said the president’s comments had “directly led” to the events and he “didn’t do anything to de-escalate that”.

She added: “He basically has made a number of comments yesterday that helped to fuel that violence and he didn’t actually do anything to de-escalate that whatsoever... what we’ve seen is completely unacceptable.”

BORIS JOHNSON: “I believe what President Trump has been saying about that has been completely wrong and I unreservedly condemn encouraging people to behave in the disgraceful way that they did in the Capitol.”

Speaking on Thursday, Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer said Mr Trump should “take responsibility” for what happened, calling it the “culmination of years of the politics of hate and division”.

‘dark period’

Sir Keir added he welcomed the outgoing president’s agreement to an orderly handover, but told reporters “he should have said it a long time ago.”

Scottish First Minister Nicola Sturgeon said Mr Trump had been “inciting insurrection in his own country,” and called it a “dark period” in US history.

“What we witnessed last night is not that surprising. In some senses, Donald Trump’s presidency has been moving towards this moment almost from the moment it started,” she told ITV’s Good Morning Britain.

Scotland’s Justice Secretary Humza Yousaf said the home secretary should “give serious consideration” to denying Mr Trump entry to the UK after he leaves office.

No Scottish golf for you, First Minister tells Trump

■ Only visitors with 'an essential purpose' are welcome

Donald Trump may have to confront another disappointing outcome should he try to travel to Scotland to play golf—he won't be allowed in, says Nicola Sturgeon.

Responding to rising speculation that the outgoing US President will avoid attending Joe Biden's inauguration by retreating to his Scottish golf course, the First Minister commented: 'Coming to play golf is not what I would consider to be an essential purpose.'

Sturgeon told reporters on Tuesday that playing golf would not be deemed an "essential" reason for transatlantic travel during the coronavirus pandemic.

Speaking during a press conference, Sturgeon added: "I have no idea what Donald Trump's travel plans are, you'll be glad to know. I hope and expect...that the travel plan that he immediately has is to exit the White House. But beyond that I don't know.

"We are not allowing people to come into Scotland without an essential purpose right now. And that would apply to him just as it applies to anybody else," she added. "Coming to play golf is not what I would consider to be an essential purpose."

Scotland's Sunday Post reported that Prestwick airport - less than an hour's drive from Trump's Turnberry golf resort - has been told to expect the arrival of a U.S. military aircraft on January 19 - the day before Biden is due to be inaugurated in Washington DC.

1.1m IN UK INFECTED WITH VIRUS...AS 1.3M GET JABS

■ But Johnson 'full of optimism and hope things will be different in spring'

BORIS Johnson has revealed that one in 50 Britons has coronavirus – but 1.3 million, including a quarter of all over 80s, have been vaccinated.

The Prime Minister sought to reassure the nation after the daily new infection rate soared past 60,000 for the first time on Wednesday.

In his second address in two days, he revealed that around 1.12 million people are infected but that the vaccination programme will provide the path out. He also promised to publish the number of jobs given every day "so that you can see day by day and job by job how much progress we are making".

And he declared he was full of "optimism and fundamental hope" that "things will be very different in the spring" – as long as there was widespread adherence to the new lockdown rules, which he announced on Monday.

The televised news conference from No10 Downing Street was arranged after the latest figures revealed a record 3,351 people were admitted to hospital with Covid-19 in England on Sunday.

As of 8am yesterday, the total number in hospital with the virus was 26,467, with the new variant said to be mainly behind the surge. Meanwhile 62,322 new cases were reported on Wednesday – just days after the milestone of 50,000 was reached – along with 1041 further deaths within 28 days of a positive test.

Defending his decision to impose a third lockdown across England, Mr Johnson said: "I believe that when everybody looks at the position, people understand overwhelmingly that we have no choice.

"We know that there will still be long weeks ahead in which we must persevere with these restrictions."

Adherence to his stay-at-home plea would mean "there really is the prospect of beginning the relaxation of some of these measures" from the middle of next month.

And, in a clear sign of progress, he said that one in four people aged over 80 in England, which is around 650,000, had been vaccinated against the killer virus and will have "a significant degree of immunity" within three weeks.

In total 1.3 million people across the UK have received a first dose of coronavirus vaccine, he added, a day after he said the aim was to get 13 million people from the four most clinically vulnerable groups vaccinated by mid-February.

"Above all, provided that everybody follows the guidance now and sticks to the measures that we have now, we think that by the middle of February when a very considerable portion of the most vulnerable groups will have been vaccinated, then there really is the prospect of beginning the relaxation of some of these measures."

He went on to outline how 1,000 vaccination hubs would be operational by the end of this week, while venues including stadiums and exhibition centres were being considered.

England's chief medical officer Professor Chris Whitty went into detail on the statistics. He explained how figures from the Office for National Statistics infection survey for England showed one in 50 people in private households had the virus in the week to January 2. The estimate, based on random swab testing, suggests two per cent of the population are infected.

The infection rate is even higher in London, with one in 30 people thought to have the virus, followed by the South-east and the East of England at one in 45. It was lowest in the South-west at one in 125.

Prof Whitty said the data showed the country was facing "a really serious emergency".

"One in 50 is really a very large number indeed," he added. "If we look around England, what we find is that in every area there has been a relative increase in the new variant of this virus that is spreading around the country.

Prof Whitty said deaths were still "quite a long way below the first peak", due to better treatments, younger people being affected and a lag time between infections and deaths.

However, the number would inevitably increase in the coming weeks. Meanwhile chief scientific adviser Sir Patrick Vallance said vaccines would probably need to be altered in the future to continue to be a good match for the virus – but this would be easy to do.

After the news conference, NHS Providers chief executive Chris Hopson said the number of jobs carried out so far were "a tribute to the careful planning, skills and commitment of so many NHS staff."

Third lockdown given the nod by MPs

BORIS Johnson's third lockdown received overwhelming backing from MPs this week – despite a mini-revolt by Tory backbenchers.

The Commons backed the Prime Minister's latest package of restrictions by 524 votes to 16.

The emergency parliamentary sitting had been called following Monday's announcement of the new lockdown across England.

But many Tories were dismayed at revelations the rules will stay in force until the end of March rather than the middle of next month, as originally suggested.

The restrictions will be reviewed every two weeks with "a legal obligation to remove them if they are no longer deemed necessary to limit the transmission of the virus".

Twelve Tories and four DUP MPs voted against the regulations while more than 100 MPs declined to take part in the vote.

Tory rebels included Sir Graham Brady, the chairman of the party's powerful 1922 Committee of backbenchers, as well as former Cabinet minister Esther McVey.

In a five-hour debate, several of the party's backbenchers branded the lockdown an "assault on civil liberties".

But Mr Johnson told MPs he hoped the restrictions will be lifted before the March 31 expiry date.

He said: "Our emergence from the lockdown cocoon will be not a big bang but a gradual unwrapping. That is why the legislation...runs until March 31.

"Not because we expect the full national lockdown to continue

Tributes flow for Gerry Marsden

■ Leader of The Pacemakers remained an icon on Merseyside until his death

GERRY Marsden's family have paid tribute to the singer following his death this week at 78.

In a heartbreaking tribute his daughter Yvette said: "He was our hero. We are absolutely devastated. He was a fabulous man and a fabulous grandad and husband."

The Gerry and the Pacemakers singer will always be remembered for his hit You'll Never Walk Alone which has become the world's most famous football anthem after it was adopted by Liverpool and Celtic.

Yvette added: "He has always been a good man. He had his feet on the ground. He made us laugh every single day. It was a very short illness – an infection in his blood – and too quick to comprehend.

"Unfortunately he died in hospital which was devastating for us because we were not allowed in due to the current regulations."

Born in Toxteth, Liverpool, in September 1942, Gerry married Pauline in 1965 and had another daughter Victoria. He underwent a triple heart bypass in 2003 and more heart surgery in 2016, having his own pacemaker fitted.

Yvette said Gerry, grandad to Tom and Maggie, had been isolating since March and became poorly recently before being taken to hospital, where he passed away.

It was unrelated to Covid.

"The love we are getting on social media is incredible," said Yvette. "It means so much to us all."

Sir Paul McCartney led tributes, saying: "My sympathies go to his wife Pauline and family. See ya, Gerry. I'll always remember you with a smile – Paul."

Singer Elvis Costello posted a link to the song Away From You and added: "His voice will always lead the way at Anfield, in times of celebration or lament."

Gerry Marsden leading the crowd in a rendition of "You'll Never Walk Alone"

You'll Never Walk Alone had a resurgence this year after a cover of the song featuring Captain Sir Tom Moore reached No 1 in the UK singles chart.

In April, Gerry, who was awarded an MBE in 2003, recorded a new version with a video.

Yvette recalled Gerry saying that day: "I'm just a lad from Toxteth, I don't know how this is happening".

Gerry and the Pacemakers, whose other big success was Ferry Cross the Mersey, enjoyed sell-out tours around the world.

The Beatles manager Brian Epstein signed

HEYDAY: Gerry performing in Germany in 1966 them up in 1962 and their first three releases – How Do You Do It, I Like It and You'll Never Walk Alone – reached No 1 in 1963. The group split in 1967 and Gerry pursued a solo career before the band reformed in 1974 to tour. He also raised £35million for charity, including with recordings with other artists after the 1985 Bradford City stadium fire and the Hillsborough tragedy in 1989.

Jail term for naughty screw

A prison officer who had an affair with a convicted double murderer and allowed him to assault one of her colleagues has been jailed for three years.

Lauren McIntyre, 32, from Ryde, had a four-month relationship with Andrew Roberts at HMP Isle of Wight in 2018.

Roberts, who had murdered his girlfriend and their baby daughter, inflicted "significant head injuries" on the other officer, prosecutors said.

McIntyre pleaded guilty to four charges of misconduct in a public office.

The mother of three was "drawn into Roberts' world" after initially trying to gather intelligence, her defence barrister said.

She failed to warn colleagues about Roberts' plan to attack a prison officer, Isle of Wight Crown Court heard.

The inmate was later prosecuted for causing actual bodily harm to the officer, who was knocked unconscious from blows to the head, the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) said.

McIntyre, of St John's Wood Road, also knew the prisoner unlawfully had a mobile phone, prosecutors added.

She gave him the fellow officer's phone number as part of a plan to cause trouble by planting a phone containing the number on another inmate, the court heard.

Judge Roger Hetherington told the defendant: "The effect of this sort of misconduct... has a corrosive effect on everyone within the prison system. You had no regard for that, only for your own selfish interests."

Former City star Colin Bell dead at 74

Manchester City legend Colin Bell has died, aged 74, after a short illness, the Premier League club have announced.

The former England midfielder made 501 appearances for City between 1966 and 1979, scoring 153 goals. He won 48 caps for his country.

"Few players have left such an indelible mark on City," said a club statement on Tuesday.

In 2004, Manchester City fans voted to name one of the stands at Etihad Stadium in Bell's honour.

"Colin Bell will always be remembered as one of Manchester City's greatest players and the very sad news today of his passing will affect everybody connected to our club," said City chairman Khaldoon Al Mubarak.

"I am fortunate to be able to speak regularly to his former manager and team-mates, and it's clear to me that Colin was a player held in the highest regard by all those who had the privilege of playing alongside him or seeing him play.

"The passage of time does little to erase the memories of his genius."

After starting his career at Bury, Bell moved to Manchester City - then in the second tier - midway

BELL: 501 appearances for City in a 13-year spell through the 1965-66 season in a £47,500 deal.

He helped Joe Mercer's team win promotion that season and was instrumental in the Blues winning the First Division title two years later.

During his 13 years as a player at Maine Road, he also won the FA Cup, League Cup and Cup Winners' Cup.

'World's unluckiest burglars' nabbed after calling police

■ Staffordshire police arrest two men on suspicion of burglary after one sits on phone and dials 999

As pocket dials go, it was a fairly costly one: two suspected burglars have been arrested after accidentally calling the police on themselves, officers have said.

Staffordshire police confirmed they arrested a 49-year-old and a 42-year-old after receiving a call from one of them, who appeared to have unwittingly sat on his phone.

Officers said they listened in to the call as the men carried out the burglary and could even hear their colleagues arrive to make the arrests.

"I think we have just arrested the world's unluckiest burglars," said Ch Insp John Owen.

Police said they arrested the two men in the Middleport area of Stoke-on-Trent on suspicion of burglary after receiving the "suspicious call" on Wednesday evening. They were still in custody on Thursday morning.

Poking fun at the unlucky pair, Owen included an image of Marv, the hapless burglar from the Home Alone film series, in a Twitter post on Wednesday evening.

"Whilst committing a burglary one of the bungling burglars has accidentally sat on his phone and dialled 999. We receive a call detailing all of their antics up to the point of hearing our patrols arrive to arrest them," he wrote.

The pair are not alone in the annals of bungling burglars caught out by their cellphones. Last September 25-year-old Callum Tumilty managed not to call the police on himself when he broke into Cambois first school near Blyth, in Northumberland, to steal a load of laptops, but his mother was less obliging.

Tumilty left his phone behind at the crime scene and was caught after his mother called it to try to track him down and asked the person who answered if Callum was there. Officers on the scene were quickly able to identify and track down the guilty party.

According to Newcastle's Chronicle newspaper, Tumilty was later sentenced to 26 weeks in prison after pleading guilty to several charges.

Stella Tennant death was suicide, family reveals

Stella Tennant killed herself after struggling with mental health problems, her family have revealed.

The model was found dead at her home in Scotland on 22 December, a few days after her 50th birthday.

In a statement to the Telegraph newspaper, her family said she had been "unwell for some time".

They said: "We have been humbled by the outpouring of messages of sympathy and support since Stella died. She was a beautiful soul, adored by a close family and good friends, a sensitive and talented woman whose creativity, intelligence and humour touched so many.

"Stella had been unwell for some time. So it is a matter of our deepest sorrow and despair that she felt unable to go on, despite the love of those closest to her. In grieving Stella's loss, her family renews a heartfelt request that respect for their privacy should continue."

Lockdown:

until then, but to allow a steady, controlled and evidence-led move down through the tiers on a regional basis.

"Carefully breaking free of our confinement, but without risking the hard-won gains that protections have given us."

Mr Johnson told MPs that vaccines were "the means of our escape" from the lockdown.

He added: "We have already vaccinated more people in this country than in the rest of Europe combined."

The PM said the Government had acted because the new mutant variant of coronavirus was "spreading with frightening ease and speed" despite the efforts of the public.

He said: "We now have no choice but to return to a national lockdown in England. We are in a tough final stretch made only tougher by the new variant. But this country will come together.

"And the miracle of scientific endeavour, much of it right here in the UK, has given us not only the sight of the finish line but a clear route to get there.

"After the marathon of last year we are indeed now in a sprint, a race to vaccinate the vulnerable faster than the virus can reach them."

Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer warned the third national lockdown followed "a pattern" of the PM being "too slow" to act.

Sir Keir, who ordered his MPs to back the new lockdown in the vote, said: "This is not just bad luck, it's not inevitable, it follows a pattern.

"In the first wave of the pandemic the Government was repeatedly too slow to act and we ended 2020 with one of the highest death tolls in Europe and the worst-hit economy of major economies."

Brits in LA

Transatlantic crossing in time of Covid-19

BiLA member Chris O'Neill traveled from Manchester to Heathrow to LAX just before New Year. Here is his report of the current Covid-19 protocols for transatlantic passengers.

I chose to view this trip with a sense of humour.

Arriving at Heathrow's T2 terminal just after Christmas en route to LAX I made a beeline for the Virgin Atlantic customer service desk. A lady in a VA outfit sat there swiping through her phone. She looked mildly annoyed as I spoke. She told me to check the website for updates on Covid test requirements.

I had been double-checking with the VA website, GovUK and the CDC websites. It seemed GovUK was getting the updates and publishing them first, followed by the CDC press releases (sometimes 24 hour delays) and then arriving on the VA website - but with the previous posts still up and not scrubbed (12 hour delays).

I waited about an hour or so for the Collinson Covid test (antigens for the USA, fifty quid, done). Fastfood virus testing. Twenty minutes later I had my test results in hand and made my way through the T2 car park to the Hilton Garden Inn across the way, where I was booked in for the night.

Next morning, I strolled back into T2 via the connecting bridge from the hotel and was the first to check in. I had booked Premium Economy so I could have two bags and also be in a smaller cabin with less people around me.

The Terminal was pretty empty and I breezed through. At the gate, they collected the Passenger Attestation Form I'd had to print off the VA website to confirm I was Covid-free and if I wasn't then

I could be arrested at LAX. They did not collect the antigen report.

The staff on board cleaned the loos and surfaces constantly through the flight. Announcements assured us this brand new A350 plane had a special air filtration system (hopefully not made by the team at Collinson) which killed EVERYTHING and that fresh air was being pumped in from outside constantly. Flight was great, seats were awesome, cabin was maybe one third full, service was terrific.

At LAX, we were informed we could only get off ten at a time as the CDC were inspecting paperwork. I was met at the end of the jetway by a lady who looked like she'd been in the airport since the Christmas party - her festive outfit looking a bit old hat now we were closer to New Year, but hey, we've all been there. She sing-songed at me in a Texas drawl that she was with the CDC and I immediately looked round for Dustin Hoffman and his "Outbreak" squad but instead Office Christmas Party grinned at me with lifeless eyes as she asked if I had been around anyone with Covid recently. I gave her a simple "no" and she informed me I was "free to go".

I had my Green Card in hand, holding it up so every camera would see it and hopefully stop watching me. A wave of joy washed over me as I entered the Customs Hall and saw that those hideously useless passport machines that do little other than photocopy your passport and give you a bad selfie were switched off. I was beckoned to one of the Customs desks, thankfully getting the rather jovial chap out of the group instead of one of the more aggressive ones. I was through in about three minutes and almost exploded with happiness when I saw the baggage carousel downstairs already had our luggage coming out - fastest unload EVER.

I walked out of the secure area, one of the Customs dogs sniffing at my WH Smith bag that was now bereft of sandwiches, and past a group of Customs officers who were yammering to each other and grabbing anyone who literally looked them in the eye. And then I was in print outs d) expect tunnel and out into LAX ANYTHING and e) stay safe.

The best advice I can pass on is a) have a good attitude b) triple check everything c) have Best wishes for 2021 and happy trails!

QUITTAKE? Who's next season will be the last for Jodie!

Jodie Whittaker is set to hang up her sonic screwdriver at the end of the next doctor Who series, when she will vanish and regenerate into the 14th Time Lord.

The actress (pictured, above right) has told bosses she intends to keep to the "three years and out" rule upheld by most of her predecessors, which sees the doctor quit the Tardis after a third full series. Insiders say that Jodie, 38 – the first female doctor – is keen to try other roles. The current run of the BBC sci-fi series is due to finish filming this summer, to air in the autumn.

A source close to the show said: "Jodie is leaving and they are gearing up for a regeneration. Her departure is top secret but at some point over the coming months the arrival of the 14th doctor will need to be filmed. It's very exciting."

Other doctors to leave after three runs include William Hartnell, Patrick Troughton, Peter Davison, Sylvester McCoy, Matt Smith and Peter Capaldi.

The BBC has already said that the series which started filming in November has been cut to eight episodes because of Covid restrictions slowing production. Jodie, who has starred in TV thriller Broadchurch and medical drama Trust Me, is in all eight.

As she announced a year ago that she was staying on for her third run as the time traveller from Gallifrey, she said: "I absolutely adore it. At some point, these shoes are going to be handed on, but it's not yet. I'm clinging on tight."

Mother-of-one Jodie was revealed as the 13th doctor in July 2017 and made her debut in the closing scenes of a Christmas special when she regenerated from Capaldi, who was shot by the doctor's long-time Cybermen enemies.

She had kept her casting a secret for many weeks. "It was a full military operation, I basically whispered for three months," she said.

The actress has said that landing the role was as tough as battling the Daleks on screen.

"It certainly was not handed to me on a plate. There was a long process, as there should be. They needed to make sure I was right for the part. You want someone who's fighting for it, because it's such an honour.

"You can't just be blasé about it."

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

now meet Manchester City the final at Wembley in April.

"If you see the winners you realise the big clubs want to win it," Mourinho said.

"Who was the last winner apart from the normal top six? Swansea? I remember Manchester City winning a lot of times, Chelsea winning a lot of times, I remember United winning a few times.

"I remember Liverpool in finals, Arsenal. The big clubs care about it."

Mourinho makes it his business to win trophies - and this competition has always been a building block in his strategy for success.

He regards the EFL Cup as vital in not just making his mark at a new club but also in giving his players the confidence that comes with securing silverware.

Mourinho's first trophy, in his first season at Chelsea, was the 2005 League Cup. It was the first trophy of his second spell there too, as he won it in 2015. He then marked his first season at Manchester United by winning it again in 2017.

JOB DONE: Son Heung-Min sweeps home Tottenham's second Tuesday night

He believes that if this competition can end Spurs' long trophy drought, it can be the platform for bigger things. He wants to rid the club of their "nearly" tag, of a reputation for falling just short of success, as they did most recently in the 2019 Champions League final against Liverpool in Madrid.

Mourinho always takes the competition very seriously and rarely fields anything other than full-strength sides. If Spurs beat either Manchester United or Manchester City in the final on 25 April, that policy will be fully justified.

"What I sense in the team is that desire," he said. "I'm not saying a winning mentality, I'm not saying we are this or that.

"I just say we are honest people. Try to be serious, respect the opponents, and try to progress."

Arsenal have taken out a short-term £120m loan to help deal with the impact of the coronavirus pandemic.

The club say they "met the criteria set by the Bank of England for the Covid Corporate Financing Facility" and a loan which is repayable in May 2021.

The Gunners were one of the clubs to briefly welcome back some fans recently.

However, the return of supporters was halted as coronavirus cases increased and greater restrictions were enforced.

Wolves manager Nuno Espirito Santo fears the impact of Covid-19 on English football will only get worse.

Four Premier League and 52 EFL matches have been postponed this season because of the virus. In addition, Southampton's FA Cup third-round tie at home to Shrewsbury has been called off.

City ease past United to book final berth

Manchester City deservedly beat Manchester United 2-0 on Wednesday night to reach the Carabao Cup final and will now face Tottenham at Wembley as they look to win the competition for a fourth straight year.

Second-half goals from John Stones and Fernandinho secured their progress as City cut loose after a first period in which both sides had goals disallowed.

Stones exposed poor United set-piece defending when he nudged home Phil Foden's free-kick from close range five minutes after the restart.

"We take it seriously": Jose relishing City showdown as Spurs take sting out of Bees

Jose Mourinho said Tottenham Hotspur had been rewarded for taking the Carabao Cup seriously as they moved to within one game of a first trophy in 13 years with a 2-0 semi-final win over Brentford on Tuesday night.

Spurs have not claimed silverware since they beat Chelsea in the 2008 League Cup final and they were made to work hard before seeing off the Championship promotion chasers in this one-leg semi-final at Tottenham Hotspur Stadium.

Mourinho has won the cup on four occasions and goals from Moussa Sissoko and Son Heung-min ensured he now has the chance to make that five, having become the third manager to reach the final with three different teams.

"I came to England in 2004 and I remember that in that period I had to learn the meaning of the cups here and I always took it seriously," he said.

"If there is any secret it's to take it seriously.

Pep Guardiola's side looked the more likely scorers afterwards, despite United's increasing desperation, and when Anthony Martial and Aaron Wan-Bissaka could only combine to clear a corner to the edge of their own box, Fernandinho drilled a first-time volley into the bottom corner from 20 yards.

City will equal Liverpool's record of winning the League Cup four times in a row if they beat Jose Mourinho's Spurs on Sunday, 25 April.

It will be a first final meeting between Guardiola and Mourinho since 2011, when the current Spurs boss' Real Madrid side denied Barcelona the treble by winning the Copa del Rey.

It was a disappointing night for United boss Ole Gunnar Solskjaer, whose side have now lost four cup semi-finals in the past 12 months and failed to heed their manager's call to win some silverware as tangible proof of their recent improvement.

In a sense, it was fitting these two old rivals should meet the day after the death of Colin Bell.

Bell won the League Cup in 1970, when he scored in a semi-final win against United and, sadly, his career was wrecked by a tackle in a derby.

There are not many box-to-box players like Bell now but, even though he was again deployed in a false nine role, Kevin de Bruyne is a worthy heir to a man City supporters called "the King".

To respect what English football is, what English clubs are, what English lower divisions are.

"That's what I hope to do on Sunday in Crosby against Marine [in the FA Cup]."

Brentford had beaten four Premier League sides in a run to their first major semi-final but they were behind after only 12 minutes when Sissoko headed Sergio Reguilon's cross beyond keeper David Raya.

Thomas Frank's side thought they had equalised after the hour when top scorer Ivan Toney headed in but the goal was ruled out for the most marginal of offsides when the striker was actually down on his haunches earlier in the move.

Spurs increased Brentford's sense of injustice when Son raced clear to add a second after 70 minutes before the visitors were reduced to 10 men following Josh Dasilva's foul on Pierre-Emile Hojbjerg.

Mourinho's side will

HAIL STONES: the revitalized City defender put in an eye-catching performance Wednesday night, including opening the scoring for Pep Guardiola's side

The Belgian's shot, which thudded off the post at such pace it bounced straight out to Wan-Bissaka, who was fully 12 yards away from his goal, was majestic in its brutality.

It was the high point of a first half City dominated in terms of possession, though they did have two goals ruled out because of offside compared with their hosts' one.

Stones was an unlikely candidate to break the deadlock given it was over three years since the centre-back's last goal, but it underlined the resurgence in his game after spending almost 18 months on the periphery of Guardiola's squad.

Joao Cancelo and Riyad Mahrez both went close to doubling City's lead before Fernandinho did, although even before that the visitors seemed to have the tie in their own form of lockdown.

For United, this was another disappointing semi-final defeat - a fourth in the past year for Solskjaer after also losing a two-legged tie to City in last season's EFL Cup, going down to Chelsea in the 2019-20 FA Cup and also being beaten by Sevilla in the Europa League last four.

That will be too many for the Norwegian's liking. Sir Alex Ferguson only lost six in his entire 26 years as United boss.
