ANDY'S IN TROUBLE - AGAIN!

■ Call for Parliamentary inquiry into why banker who loaned Prince Andrew £1.5million gave him the same amount in cash to pay it back

A call has been made for an investigation after reports emerged that Prince Andrew had a loan from a major Tory donor's private bank extended to £1.5million to cover his 'living expenses' just days before the tycoon transferred a similar amount of money into his account.

Businessman David Rowland, 76, wired the money to a London bank account held by the Duke of York - a long-term friend of his - in December 2017, it was claimed.

The prince's account was with Banque Havilland SA - a Luxembourg based private bank owned by Mr Rowland and his family.

The transfer to Prince Andrew's account was earmarked for a repayment of a £1.5million loan from Banque Havilland, according to documents reportedly seen by Bloomberg News.

The unsecured loan had, according to reports, been increased 11 days earlier by £250,000 to cover the Prince's 'working capital and living expenses' - despite concern that it was 'not in line with the bank's risk appetite'.

But, according to Bloomberg, bank staff approved the extension, having noted that the loan opened up 'further business potential with the Royal Family'.

Norman Baker, a former government minister and the author of a book about the royal family's finances, today said there were 'significant questions' to answer about Prince Andrew's business dealings.

backlash

He added that Parliament should investigate the matter with 'some urgency'.

Mr Rowland is the son of a London scrap dealer who has donated more than £6million to the Conservative party. He has enjoyed a long-term friendship with the 61-year-old Duke.

The property mogul, who since leaving school without qualifications has amassed a £650million business empire, even visited Balmoral to meet the Queen in the summer of 2010.

He also reportedly flew to Libya with Andrew in 2011 when the Prince met Colonel Gaddafi.

The businessman has come under fire for his own dealings, including reportedly travelling to North Korea to become a private banker for the family of dictator Kim Jong Un. His son Jonathan, who like his father is a businessman, denied at the time of the 2019 reports that his family had anything to do with North Korea.

A Guernsey resident, Mr Rowland backed out of becoming a Tory treasurer in 2010 amid a backlash over his former status as a tax exile.

'fog of pea soup'

His relationship with Prince Andrew has also previously been called into question. It emerged in 2019 that Prince Andrew had promoted Mr Rowland's bank while on official trade business for the UK. The Duke officially opened the bank for the Rowlands in Luxembourg in 2009.

Representatives for Prince Andrew described any transfer of funds between the pair as a 'private', while Havilland Bank denied any wrongdoing.

Andrew, (below), is reported to have taken a loan of £1.5m from David Rowland (above) a Tory party donor who owns Banque Havilland

Mr Baker told Bloomberg News today: 'This demonstrates yet again that significant questions need to be asked about Prince Andrew's business dealings...'

'Parliament should investigate this matter with some urgency.'

David McClure, who wrote a book about the royal family's finances, said: 'The report in some ways raises more questions than it answers and the question it raises is what does he need the money for?'

Queen back to work after missing Remembrance Sunday duties

■ Nonagenarian monarch meets with Chief of Defence Staff in Windsor after being sidelined with health scare

LONDON: The Queen has resumed her usual in-person public duties after missing the Remembrance Sunday ceremony due to a sprained back.

The 95-year-old was pictured having a face-to-face discussion with General Sir Nick Carter, UK Chief of the Defence Staff, for a military audience at Windsor Castle's Oak Room without the aid of a walking stick.

It marked the first time in nearly a month the Queen was carrying out a formal in-person engagement since she had been advised desk-based duties from her medical advisers earlier this month.

Before the meeting with Sir Nick, the Queen held an audience by video link with the Commanding Officers of the Royal Scots Dragoon Guards, Buckingham Palace said.

'great regret'

The Remembrance Sunday Cenotaph service in central London was due to be the first time the Queen was seen in public since taking time away from her duties for health reasons. But the palace issued a statement earlier that day to say she would miss the service with 'great regret', "having sprained her back".

The palace previously said it was the Queen's "firm intention" to attend the service, after taking time away from her duties for health reasons.

She made the decision to miss the event "with great regret" this morning, a statement said.

As in previous years, a wreath was laid on her behalf by the Prince of Wales.

Cornwall, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, the Earl and Countess of Wessex and The Princess Royal also still attended as planned.

At his Downing Street news conference on the COP climate deal, Prime Minister Boris Johnson said he had an audience with Her Majesty last week and "she is very well".

The monarch had been advised by doctors to rest until mid-November after she spent a night in hospital on 20 October for checks.

Asked about his mother during his ongoing overseas tour in Jordan, 73-year-old Charles said: "She's alright thank you very much."

"Once you get to 95, it's not quite as easy as it used to be. It's bad enough at 73."

Liverpool bomber 'had been planning attack since April'

AN IRAQI-born bomber who died on Remembrance Sunday when his homemade explosive device blew up in a taxi at the weekend, was a convert to Christianity, police have revealed.

Emad AlSwealmeen, 32, was a passenger in a taxi when his bomb exploded outside Liverpool Women's Hospital shortly before 11:00 GMT on Remembrance Sunday.

Counter-terror police said Emad Al Swealmeen rented a property in the city seven months ago and had launched a fresh legal appeal to stay in the UK in January. He then began making purchases for his attack in April.

He had suffered from periods of mental illness which will "form part of the investigation", they added.

Earlier police extended a cordon at an address linked to the asylum seeker.

The driver David Perry escaped seconds before his car was engulfed in flames and has since been discharged from hospital.

Details of Al-Swealmeen's immigration legal history show he had a long and complicated series of applications and appeals to remain in the country.

It remains unclear whether the Home Office tried to remove him after his first failed application to stay more than six years ago and why his final appeal was unresolved.

According to court records provided by officials, Al Swealmeen was first refused asylum in 2014 and also lost further appeals in 2015.

The records show in August 2015 he began seeking to convert to Christianity and adopted a new name, Enzo Almeni, as part of the conversion.

They also document that he renewed his immigration appeal under this alternative name in January this year.

His submissions were under review at the time of his death and the Home Office has refused to discuss the case.

Adele blames it all on Daddy....

■ Alcoholic father walking out led her to hurt her partners, singer tells Oprah
 ■ Absence of her late dad shaped the way she navigated relationships as an adult

POP SUPERSTAR Adele has opened up about how her late father Mark Evans' absence has shaped the way she has treated romantic partners during her adult life.

The singer, 33, said that she believes her 'inevitable' split from ex-husband Simon Konecki followed the pattern of the breakdown of her parents' marriage.

During her CBS special Adele One Night Only with Oprah Winfrey on Sunday, Adele said that she has 'hurt' partners first as a defense mechanism to avoid being hurt herself.

Adele said her alcoholic father's absence when she was a child had affected the way she navigated relationships as an adult.

'I hurt the first, not in a malicious way, but to protect myself,' she said.

'so disappointed'

The singer, who is now dating sports agent Rich Paul, also talked about her divorce and how she felt 'embarrassed' that her relationship with ex-husband Simon Konecki had failed, just as her parents'.

'I take marriage very seriously and it seems like I don't... That's what it should be. When we have kids, we stay together, and I tried. I was so disappointed for my son, I was so disappointed for myself,' she said.

'Nothing as scary as what I've been through in the past two years behind closed doors,' she added. After Oprah touched on Adele's 'interesting relationship' with alcohol, the singer said her father's death had made an impact in her lifestyle.

'It [Alcohol] took my dad from me,' Adele said. 'Once I realized I had to do a lot to work on myself, I stopped drinking and started working out a lot.'

Adele's estranged father, Evans, died in May at the age of 57 after a long battle with bowel cancer. She said she met with her father in Wales shortly before his death, and got closure after the heartbreak she suffered as a little girl due to Evan's absence in her life.

I finally understood that it was the alcohol,' she said.

Evans and his daughter famously fell out in 2011 when Evans - who walked out on the singer when she was a child - claimed in an interview that she struggled to find love because of her abandonment issues.

'rotten father'

It was revealed in 2019 that Evans - who announced his bowel cancer diagnosis six years earlier - was earning just £50 a day as a Yodel delivery driver after giving up his career as a plumber.

Evans admitted he was a 'rotten father' to his daughter when she was growing up, blaming his alcoholism - triggered by the collapse of his

JOHN MURRAY: the former colleague of the late Yvonne Fletcher hailed the verdict 37 years on, Libyan man found liable for death of Yvonne Fletcher

A Libyan man has been found jointly liable at the High Court for the fatal shooting of PC Yvonne Fletcher, 37 years ago.

PC Fletcher, 25, was killed outside the Libyan Embassy on 17 April 1984 during a protest by anti-Gaddafi activists.

Her former colleague and friend John Murray, 66, brought a civil case against a Libyan man, Saleh Ibrahim Mabrouk, said to be close to the country's ex-leader Colonel Gaddafi.

Mr Mabrouk did not defend the case.

He has been barred from the UK and is currently in Libya but in an email to Mr Murray's lawyers he denied any involvement in PC Fletcher's killing.

Mr Mabrouk was not alleged to have been the gunman but was found to be jointly liable.

key figure

A three-day trial at the Royal Courts of Justice in London heard that Mr Mabrouk was a key figure in a "revolutionary committee" that had taken over the Libyan Embassy on Colonel Gaddafi's orders prior to the shooting.

On 17 April, two Sterling sub-machine guns were used to fire on anti-Gaddafi protesters outside the building from a first floor window, killing PC Fletcher and injuring others.

There was spontaneous applause inside an emotional courtroom packed with former police officers when the judge gave his verdict on Tuesday.

The battle by John Murray to live up to the promise he made to his former friend and colleague, Yvonne Fletcher, has been long and difficult.

But, even after 37 years, Mr Murray is not willing to give up hope he will one day see those he holds responsible in a British court.

Mr Mabrouk was he was arrested in connection with the killing but in 2017 the case was dropped because crucial evidence could not be used on grounds of national security.

Mr Murray claimed assault and battery related to the shooting and brought a civil claim against Mr Mabrouk for a nominal amount of £1.

In a statement, a tearful Mr Murray, from Chingford, east London, spoke of his relief at the court's ruling, saying it was a "huge weight off [his] shoulders" after a 37-year battle for justice.

But he said despite the "many obstacles" along the way, his promise to his dying colleague to bring those responsible for her murder to justice had "taken a huge step forward".

I am the first of thousands, says Rafiq after giving emotional testimony on racism in cricket to Parliament

■ Former Yorkshire bowler makes damning appearance in front of the Digital, Culture, Media and Sport Select Committee

Cricketer Azeem Rafiq predicts 'hundreds and thousands' could share experiences of racism in English cricket after giving damning testimony at Westminster this week.

The 30-year old former professional cricketer, who spent the majority of his career at Yorkshire County Cricket Club, appeared before a UK parliamentary committee on Tuesday to face questions from MPs. He told them he believes that he lost his career to racism, and that he would not want his son "anywhere near the game".

Rafiq rocked the sport with a damning parliamentary appearance in front of the Digital, Culture, Media and Sport select committee on Tuesday, during which he outlined in disturbing detail his own account of racial harassment and discrimination.

'floodgates'

Between that and a newly published employment tribunal witness statement he made several fresh allegations against high-profile individuals, including ex-England players Gary Ballance, Tim Bresnan, Matthew Hoggard and Alex Hales, and expects the spotlight he has attracted to encourage others to speak up in their droves.

Rafiq told Sky Sports News: "I think you're going to get it into the hundreds and thousands, possibly. I do feel it's going to be a little bit of 'floodgates' and a lot of victims of abuse are going to come forward."

Former White Rose

JUST NOT CRICKET? Rafiq said he would not want his son "anywhere near the game".

spinner Rafiq, who battled tears as he told MPs how he fought depression and thoughts of suicide, said he felt an element of "closure" after his appearance, but the same may not be true for those he has accused.

Meanwhile, three former Yorkshire players have come forward to say that they heard former England Yorkshire captain Michael Vaughan make racist comments

Vaughan admitted on 4 November that he was named in the report, but said he "completely and categorically" denied any instance of racism on his part. Vaughan did not appear on his BBC Radio 5 Live show on Monday; a BBC spokesperson said the organisation "remains in discussions with Michael and his team".

'seismic change'

The affair has resonated with other British Asians involved in cricket, some of whom have shared similar stories, including being forced to accept racist abuse as "banter".

News presenter

Krishnan Guru-Murthy tweeted that "there will barely be a brown-skinned person in Britain who hasn't felt that smarting, holding back the tears feeling, while being told it was just banter".

The former England captain Nasser Hussain, who was born in India, wrote in the Daily Mail this week that Rafiq's case will be all too familiar to many British Asians. But he added that if talk of "seismic change" in the game is true, then the game may be ready for a "brighter, more inclusive future"

Rafiq was born in Pakistan and moved to England when he was 10 years old. He captained England at youth level and eventually became captain of Yorkshire in 2012.

In September 2020, he gave an interview to ESPN Cricinfo, in which he claimed that "institutional racism" at Yorkshire County Cricket Club had left him close to taking his own life.

Rafiq says he suffered consistent abuse, including the use of racist language about his Pakistani heritage during his time at the club.

'insufficient evidence'

The club launched "a formal investigation" in response to Rafiq's claims.

A year later Yorkshire said it accepted that Rafiq was the "victim of racial harassment and bullying" and an independent panel upheld seven of the 43 allegations made by Rafiq.

However, it refused to release the full report for legal reasons "in relation to privacy law and defamation".

On 28 October Yorkshire determined that no player, employee or executive would face any disciplinary action for the report's findings.

Club chairman Roger Hutton concluded that there was "insufficient evidence" to say Yorkshire was "institutionally racist".

There were calls from MPs - including Health Secretary Sajid Javid - for the Yorkshire board to resign over the affair.

a property in Sutcliffe Street in the Kensington area of Liverpool for some time and began renting a property in Rutland Avenue, near Sefton Park, in April.

Assistant Chief Constable Russ Jackson, head of Counter Terrorism Policing North West, said "significant items" had been recovered from the Rutland Avenue address, where searches have been taking place

Home Secretary Priti Patel said the UK terror threat level had been raised from "substantial" to "severe", meaning an attack is "highly likely", because the explosion in Liverpool was the second incident in a month.

Assistant Commissioner Matt Jukes, the most senior counter-terrorism policing officer in the UK, has urged the public to be vigilant in the run up to Christmas.

He said that in the past terrorist attacks have led to other attacks and that is why the threat level has been raised.

Mersey Care NHS Foundation Trust, which provides mental health services, said Al Swealmeen had received treatment in the past but was not under their care at the time of the explosion.

Mr Jackson, head of Counter Terrorism Policing North West, said: "A complex picture is emerging over the purchases of the component parts of the device, we know that Al Swealmeen rented the property from April this year and we believe relevant purchases have been made at least since that time."

He said police were "not finding any link to others in the Merseyside area of concern but this remains a fast moving investigation and as more becomes known we cannot rule out action against others".

On Monday evening, police released without charge four men who had been arrested under terrorism laws in Liverpool in connection with the attack.

Malcolm Hitchcott, a Christian activist in Liverpool, said he and his wife offered Al Swealmeen a place to stay for eight months in 2017 after he told them he had lost his case and was destitute.

"He was absolutely genuine, as far as I could tell. I was in no doubt by the time that he left us at the end of that eight months that he was a Christian," Mr Hitchcott told BBC Radio Merseyside.

Al Swealmeen was baptised at Liverpool Cathedral in 2015 and confirmed in 2017 but the Diocese of Liverpool's communications director, Stuart Haynes, said they lost contact with him in 2018.

Timeless in Los Angeles

■ No matter how long you've lived here, it's always rewarding to explore like a tourist, writes Jon Wingent

My first visit to LA was as a teenager in 1996 on a family holiday.

I feel as excited and drawn to the city as much today as I did back then. Our holiday had all the makings of a classic: Disneyland, Universal Studios, the Hollywood Sign and the Walk of Fame and Star home tours. Look up the top ten things to do in LA on any website today and every one you can do in 2021, you could do in 1996. Big landmarks and attractions are timeless and, in that sense, so is LA.

I met my now-wife who is from LA in 2008 at a mutual friend's wedding in England. We had a long-distance relationship at first before she moved to London. For 13 years during my twenties and thirties we would visit usually a couple of times a year, often over Christmas. We now have young children and moved here earlier this year to be closer to my wife's side of the family. So now in 2021 I can relate experience for every decade of my life and you know what, there have been little gems of discovery within the city along the way, but all in all I have learnt over time that LA remains timeless. Whatever stage of life you are and having been fortunate to have travelled to a lot of places I can safely say that it is truly one of the world's best cities.

If you are making the journey here yourself, the best things to do are easily Googled, and they are, as I say timeless. The gems though will come from insider knowledge, some still might seem obvious, but you know if they are recommended by a local it's a "must do". So here are my timeless ten experiences that are still around and that I have enjoyed and would recommend from my experience in my twenties in 2008 through to the present day with young children.

Go to a Dodger game - Dodger stadium is one of the oldest stadiums in the MLB and it has been in LA since 1962. If you're new to LA, your timing is perfect as the team is currently one of the best, winning the World Series in 2020 and in the most recent season, you would've had a 65% chance of seeing a win. Night games have the best atmosphere and are more bearable than being in the blazing sun for hours.

Have an In N' Out Burger on the beach - Since 1948, nothing is more Californian than an In N' Out and you don't just have to be a burger lover to enjoy. There is a 'secret menu' which covers everything from multiple patties to none at all. It's not so secret these days, and the most popular (and tasty) is having your burger "Animal Style". Have it on the beach simply because you can.

Go to the Museum of Jurassic Technology - I first visited this years ago when it wasn't an

BACK ON THEIR PERCH: Jon and his partner enjoy the LA skyline and a libation at Perch downtown

Instagrammers haven. Opened in 1988, this is a place of curiosities and wonders. Despite it not being so secret now, this quirky little place in Culver City will not leave you disappointed. Locals know it fairly well, but it is not on the tourist trail as much so when you have visitors, it should be a memorable experience.

Have brunch on a rooftop - Downtown has most of the skyscrapers in LA so that is where you will find a few places with rooftop bars and restaurants. Brunch is a big deal here too, so combine the two and you have an immediate winner. On New Year's Day in 2015 I visited Perch for brunch.

Having a bloody Mary in the glorious sunshine was a great start to the year. It was pretty cool then and a quick look on Yelp still has it as one of the best places to go for rooftop brunch in LA.

Get groceries at Trader Joe's - Although there are stores all over the US now, this California staple first opened in Pasadena in 1967 and remains independent. It's kind of like M&S food and has a lot of home comfort food like crumpets, shepherd's pie, fish fingers, curry etc. The English Breakfast tea in deceptive tartan patterned packaging is the closest I've found to tea back home.

Hang out with celebrities - Ok this sounds glib and many of us expats are in the showbiz industry however one thing you will definitely notice in LA is that celebrities are everywhere and more often than not they are grabbing lunch or a coffee somewhere where the establishment has paid for it, but who cares, if you're dining at the same time, you're officially at a place to be seen! It will happen at some point and don't be fazed by it. One of my experiences involved nearly knocking Rod Stewart over into the baggage belt at LAX. I still owe him a beer at Ye Olde Kings Head next time I see him.

Get outside and go hiking or running - It's not Always Sunny in Philadelphia, but it is in LA. You will spend more time outdoors here and there are loads of great places to go hiking or trail running if that's your thing. Griffith Park soaks in the classic views and is worth a visit as is the extremely popular Runyon Canyon as featured in any movie set in LA that has a hiking scene.

Check out a different neighborhood - LA is vast and it's similar to London insofar it has lots of diverse communities with different vibes. You could go somewhere different every weekend. One of my favorites in East LA is Highland Park. There are lots of good bars and restaurants and if you have ever seen the series "Love" on Netflix, this is the area it is set in. I've always enjoyed Highland Park Bowl which is an old school bowling alley from the prohibition era. Established in 1927 it is now a hipster bar/restaurant/bowl experience and well worth a visit.

Visit Descanso Gardens - When we lived in London, my family loved Kew Gardens. Descanso Botanical Gardens in La Cañada has filled that void. It is peaceful, fantastic for kids and adults alike and has plenty a seasonal display.

Get out of LA: - there is so much to do in California as a whole with many things in easy reach of LA. If you want mountains and snow (sometimes), head to Big Bear Lake. If you want wine (who doesn't!), head to Santa Barbara County and visit towns like Solvang (watch Sideways first). If you want Old Hollywood, head to Palm Springs. You will need a car, but if you have CarPlay you can listen to BBC Sounds during your journey and pretend you're at home!

There is always inspiration for places to visit found in shows like Californication, Entourage, Modern Family or Curb Your Enthusiasm. Whenever you visit or settle in LA, one thing's for sure is that all of these experiences are timeless in Los Angeles.

Quizzzy McQuizFace!

With Thanksgiving approaching, plenty of trivia players had reason to be thankful they attended the latest Brits in LA Pub Quiz at the Market Tavern.

Among them was Markus Bailey who triumphed in the singing round to win a flaming sticky toffee pudding.

Team of six Quizzzy McQuizface (above) were also in the prizes as one of the runners up at the packed pub patio on November 16.

But no one could stop trivia trio Brrr It's Cold Outside (top) who saw off 12 other teams to take first place and the title.

Get your Thanksgiving celebrations started early by joining quizmaster Sandro Monetti and your fellow Brits in LA at the next quiz night on Tues Nov 23, 7.30 start. (pictures: Glenn Kinsey)

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ABRAM MARK CHECHELNIISKY AKA ABRAM CHECHELNIISKY CASE NO. 21STPB10874

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of ABRAM MARK CHECHELNIISKY AKA ABRAM CHECHELNIISKY. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by MARK CHECHELNIISKY in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that MARK CHECHELNIISKY be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 01/03/22 at 8:30AM in Dept. 67 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner NICHOLAS G. EVERETT SBN 298306, LAGERLOF, LLP 155 N. scenes after the final whistle demonstrated how much of a result to cherish this was for Wales.

Although Belgium enjoyed as much as 75% possession at times, Wales applied themselves superbly with a spirited team effort and had chances to claim another memorable victory over Belgium, whose only defeat in their previous 47 qualifying matches had come here at Cardiff City Stadium in 2015.

That European Championship qualifying win was eclipsed the following summer with Wales' momentous Euro 2016 quarter-final triumph over Belgium, the greatest night in Welsh football history.

NBC in £2bn EPL deal

The Premier League has announced a new £2bn deal with American broadcaster NBC Universal to show live games for the next six years.

The deal dwarfs the £740m NBC agreed in 2015 for six years.

The new US agreement covers all Premier League matches in seasons 2022-23 to 2027-28.

"It's an exciting time for football in the US," said Premier League chief executive Richard Masters.

"NBC Sports has significantly strengthened the popularity of the league in the United States through its fantastic coverage and promotion."

In May this year the Premier League agreed to roll over its existing £4.7bn television deal with domestic broadcasters Sky Sports, BT Sport, Amazon Prime Video and BBC Sport for the next three years.

Hamilton's Sao Paulo GP win 'one of the greatest drives I've ever seen', says Damon Hill

Sky F1's Damon Hill has described Lewis Hamilton's "utterly awesome" against-the-odds victory in the Sao Paulo GP as "one of the best drives I've ever seen in F1".

Hamilton's 101st F1 triumph on Sunday, from 10th on the grid after two separate demotions across the sprint format weekend, keeps him firmly in the title hunt against Max Verstappen just as his Dutch rival had looked poised to edge away.

Showing relentless speed across the Interlagos weekend, Hamilton was comfortably the fastest driver in Friday night's qualifying session, but was then sent to the back of the grid for Saturday's short-format sprint due to a technical disqualification.

The performance earned plaudits far and wide - particularly from fellow world champion, Hill.

"That was one of the best drives I've ever seen in F1," tweeted Hill, the 1996 title winner.

"By anyone. Utterly awesome

When his countryman's comments were put to him in the post-race press conference, Hamilton said: "Well, it never gets old hearing positive comments from such a great driver in Damon.

"I remember being such a big fan of his when I was younger, when he was racing and obviously we're now men, we don't kind of

Bronckhurst 'so lucky' as he takes Rangers hot seat

Giovanni van Bronckhorst says he feels "so lucky" after being confirmed as the new manager of Rangers.

The Dutchman, 46, will replace Steven Gerrard - who left for Aston Villa - subject to being granted a work permit.

Van Bronckhorst played for Rangers between 1998 and 2001, claiming five trophies including two league titles.

He went on to win more with Arsenal and Barcelona, including the Champions League with the latter, before coaching Feyenoord to the Dutch title.

The versatile midfielder also won 106 caps for his country, captaining the Netherlands to the 2010 World Cup final, which was his final match as a player.

Van Bronckhorst, whose last job in management was a year with Guangzhou R&F in China, said he was "absolutely delighted" to become Rangers' 17th permanent manager.

"I feel so lucky to be going to work with a squad which is in a great position on all fronts and largely has that experience of being winners," he added.

"I look forward to carrying on and enhancing the work that has been done already and I'm grateful for the chance to work again at this huge football club.

"I cannot wait to meet the club's incredible supporters again and begin this new era for us all."

MASTER AT WORK: Hamilton produced an astonishing fight back in Brazil get too much... but I've always admired Damon and I think he's always been super supportive, so I really do appreciate that."

Southgate 'gives players special belief'

■ Tyrone Mings lauds boss as England cruise to World Cup qualification

England defender Tyrone Mings says Gareth Southgate gives his players 'special belief' after the Three Lions secured their 2022 World Cup place with a 10-0 demolition of San Marino.

Southgate is in talks with the FA about extending his contract, which expires after the Qatar World Cup, and Mings hopes the England boss agrees a deal.

He told BBC Radio 5 Live: "I would welcome that every day of the week.

"The opportunities he gives you and the belief he gives you is very special."

England were unbeaten in qualifying, finishing six points ahead of play-off bound Poland, with eight wins from 10 matches.

Southgate has previously led the side to a World Cup semi-final and a European Championship final, after succeeding Sam Allardyce in 2016.

"What he has created in this England set up is very special", added Mings. "He has been a fantastic manager for me and a fantastic manager for England.

"I don't need to speak too much about him because his record speaks for itself at tournaments. I would love to see him carry on as manager."

England's thrashing of San Marino, which saw Harry Kane score four first-half goals to move joint third in the scoring charts with Gary Lineker on 48, included debuts for Arsenal goalkeeper Aaron Ramsdale, 23, and Crystal Palace loanee

SAVORING THE MOMENT: England beat San Marino 10-0 on Monday

Conor Gallagher, 21.

Arsenal midfielder Emile Smith Rowe, 21, was also handed his first senior start, as Southgate fielded a youthful side, which included his Gunners teammate Bukayo Saka and Borussia Dortmund's Jude Bellingham.

Mings, who scored his first England goal on Monday night on his 16th England appearance, said: "We were speaking about competition for places the other day. It is not an elephant in the room, it is something we thrive on and that pushes us.

"It speaks volumes for the depths of the squad.

There is a lot of football to be played between now and the World Cup.

"We take immense pride in the way we have qualified. We did it with great humility and great respect as well. We have qualified for the greatest show on earth, so another challenge is around the corner."

Memorable night in Cardiff as Wales clinch play-off berth

Wales earned a precious 1-1 draw against Belgium on Tuesday to secure a home World Cup play-off semi-final.

Kevin de Bruyne's elegant 20-yard shot put the world's number one ranked side in front in the 12th minute.

Cardiff City Stadium erupted as Kieffer Moore equalised later in the first half for the hosts, whose tenacious performance fed a febrile atmosphere.

Neco Williams almost snatched a late win for Wales but his vicious swerving shot was well saved by Koen Casteels.

As it transpired, the draw was enough to seal what could be crucial home advantage in March's play-off semi-finals.

Wales had already guaranteed a play-off place thanks to their success in the Nations League, and their point against Belgium was enough to secure second spot in Group E despite the third-place Czech Republic's win over Estonia.

Now they are seeded for the semi-finals, Wales have managed to avoid daunting away ties against European champions Italy or Euro 2016 winners Portugal and could instead host the likes of North Macedonia.

Wales will discover their semi-final opponents when the draw is made on Friday, 26 November.

Regardless of the opposition, however, Wales can take great pride and hope from the fact they have taken such a significant step towards qualifying for a World Cup for the first time since their only other appearance in 1958.

While this was a potentially complex evening for Wales, there were two simple facts about the task they faced.

Beat Belgium and they would be guaranteed a home play-off semi-final; lose and they would be away.

It was a draw which would bring in the other permutations. Then Wales would rely on results in other groups, needing Turkey not to win in Montenegro by four goals.

Montenegro kept their side of the bargain by limiting Turkey to a 2-1 victory - but the added complication for Wales was that they were up against the best team in the world.

They continued to threaten after Moore's leveller, most notably when De Bruyne's free-kick was floated out to the edge of the penalty area, where Thorgan Hazard connected with a sweet volley which hit the post.

But even as the game became stretched in the closing stages as Wales tired from the physical exertions of competing against such class opposition, it was the home side who finished strongest.

Williams came close to scoring a spectacular late winner and, although Casteels pushed the shot away, the celebratory
