Pubs Open Until 1am To Toast The Queen

PUBS, clubs and bars in the UK will stay open for an extra two hours to celebrate the Queen's 70 years on the throne.

Plans are being drawn up for bumper latenight celebrations of Her Majesty's Platinum Jubilee.

On February 6 she will become the first British monarch to have reigned for seven decades.

Home Secretary Priti Patel wants to lengthen licensing hours from 11pm to 1am from Thursday June 2 to Saturday June 4 over an extended bank holiday weekend.

Ms Patel said: "This extension will enable families, friends and communities across England and Wales to raise a glass to toast Her Majesty the Queen and mark her incredible service to our country."

Culture Secretary Nadine Dorries said: "No other British monarch has served for 70 years and it is fitting that we toast Her Majesty for her dedication and service."

Under licensing laws, pub hours in England and Wales can only be extended after a monthlong public consultation.

Celebrations will begin on June 2 with the traditional Trooping the Colour at Horse Guards.

Fergie left out in the cold for Christmas - again

■ The Duchess Of York spent her first Christmas Day as A grandmother on her own while her family had lunch with the Queen at Windsor Castle

THE Duchess of York spent her first Christmas Day as a grandmother on her own while her family had lunch with the Queen at Windsor Castle, sources have revealed.

It had been thought Sarah Ferguson would be brought in from the cold after being apart from her daughters at Christmas and the rest of the royals since her 1996 divorce from Prince Andrew.

But Fergie remained at Royal Lodge, the home she shares with exhusband Andrew.

The prince, along with the couple's daughters and their husbands and children, joined a large party of family celebrating with the Queen three miles away at the castle, according to multiple reports in the British press.

After Andrew and Fergie's breakup, Prince Philip could not stand to have his former daughter-in-law, 62, in the same room as him unless absolutely necessary.

It meant that she either spent Christmas elsewhere or stayed at Wood Farm on the Sandringham estate so her daughters Princess Beatrice, 33, and Princess Eugenie, 31, could see her for part of the day when the royals were in Norfolk.

The Queen has always been more accommodating and some insiders thought she might be joined by Fergie this year following Philip's death in April. But sources at Windsor insisted the Duchess was missing from the large gathering.

Buckingham Palace declined to comment but it is understood the Queen hosted lunch for more than 20 of her family. Guests included Prince Charles and the Duchess of Cornwall, the Earl and Countess of Wessex and their children, Lady Louise Windsor, 18, and James, Viscount Severn, 14.

It is understood Andrew was joined by Beatrice, her husband Edoardo Mapelli Mozzi and their three-monthold daughter Sienna, as well as Eugenie and her husband Jack Brooksbank with their 10-month-old son August.

Other guests are said to have included Mike and Zara Tindall with their three children and Princess Margaret's daughter Lady Sarah Chatto, 57, with her family.

Notable absentees were

FERGIE: "If you leave the Royal Family, you can't have it both ways."

Princess Anne, 71, and husband Vice Admiral Sir Tim Laurence who were understood to be isolating at their Gloucestershire home after he tested positive for Covid.

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge celebrated

Christmas with their children at their Anmer Hall home on the Sandringham estate with Kate's family.

Fergie may have seen her daughters and their family at some point in the day at Royal Lodge. But in an interview with Italian TV this month she said: "I'm used to it. For 26 years, I've not spent Christmas with my children.

"If you leave the Royal Family, you can't have it both ways."

A List Of Banned Words For 32,400 Civil Servants In Wales

A list of banned words for 32,400 civil servants in Wales – including "Brexit" and "Her Majesty" – has been drawn up by its Labourrun government.

Workers are puzzled by the "do not use" list of politically correct words and phrases in the A to Z style guide, which was updated this month.

There are more rules laid down in Cardiff than in the Westminster guide for civil servants over the border.

One Welsh civil servant said: "The only one missing is W for woke.

"It is just becoming so nit-picking... well, if I was allowed to say that."

Another civil servant said: "If you ask the ordinary person in the street then they still call it the Welsh Assembly.

"But we are now banned from saying that – it has to be Welsh Government or the Welsh Parliament. It is like looking over your shoulder every time you send an email."

Under "Brexit", staff are told: "Brexit has happened. Use 'transition period' to refer to the time between 1 February and 31 December 2020."

Also banned is the phrase Her Majesty's Government.

The guide says: "UK government. Never HM government."

Another one banned is BAME, a common acronym for black, Asian and minority ethnic. The guide says: "Do not use this. Use Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic. For any subsequent references on the same page use 'ethnic minority' or 'ethnic minority communities'."

Civil servants are also blocked from saying "able-bodied" or "vulnerable." The book says: "Do not use this. Use non-disabled."

Queen leads tributes to human rights activist Archbishop Desmond Tutu

The Queen has led tributes to human rights activist Archbishop Desmond Tutu, following his Boxing Day death aged 90 after a long cancer battle.

Her Majesty said she was "deeply saddened" at the passing of the South African clergyman, who led the fight against apartheid alongside Nelson Mandela.

Boris Johnson, Tony Blair, Barack Obama, the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Dalai Lama were among those paying tribute.

Tutu, who was awarded the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize, died peacefully yesterday at the Oasis Frail Care Centre, in his home city of Cape Town.

The Queen said: "I am joined by the whole Royal Family in being deeply saddened by the

"I remember with fondness my meetings with him and his great warmth and humour.

"Archbishop Tutu's loss will be felt by the people of South Africa, and by so many people in Great Britain, Northern Ireland and the Commonwealth, where he was held in such high affection and esteem.

"A man who tirelessly championed human rights in South Africa and across the world."

'spiritual leadership'

The Duke and Duchess of Sussex said: "He was an icon for racial justice and beloved across the world.

"It was only two years ago that he held our son, Archie, while we were in South Africa."

The Prime Minister said the Archbishop would be remembered for his "spiritual leadership and irrepressible good humour".

He added: "He was a critical figure in the fight against apartheid and in the struggle to create a new South Africa."

Former PM Mr Blair said: "He made an immense contribution to the ending of apartheid and South Africa's transition to democracy.

'rainbow leader'

"His spiritual leadership and willingness to take action in pursuit of peaceful change earned him the respect of millions in South Africa and the rest of the world."

Justin Welby, the Archbishop of Canterbury, called him a "man of words and action". He said: "He was the rainbow leader. He didn't stick with one group. He defended the rights of LGBT people in the Constitution. He defended the rights of former enemies."

The Queen: "I am joined by the whole Royal Family in being deeply saddened by the news."

Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer said: "Desmond Tutu was a tower of a man and a leader of moral activism. He dedicated his life to tackling injustice and standing up for the oppressed."

Former US president Mr Obama tweeted: "Archbishop Desmond Tutu was a mentor, a friend and a moral compass for me and so many others.

"Archbishop Tutu was grounded in the struggle for liberation and justice in his own country, but also concerned with injustice everywhere. He never lost his impish sense of humour and willingness to find humanity in his adversaries."

Lord Steel, ex-president of the British Anti-Apartheid Movement and former Liberal Party leader, called him a "gigantic and effective opponent of apartheid".

Virgin founder Sir Richard Branson highlighted the campaigner's sense of humour. He said: "Arch was one of the most positive, funny, life-affirming people I have ever had the pleasure of knowing. He had no airs and graces, and always made everyone laugh. 'I don't know why, but some people accuse me of name-dropping,' he told me once.

"I just happened to have lunch with the Queen at Buckingham Palace the other day and she said, 'Arch, you are such a namedropper."

Prince challenges accuser's right to sue

PRINCE Andrew has challenged his accuser Virginia Giuffre's right to sue in the US – arguing she lives in Australia.

The Duke of York, 61, yesterday filed papers in Manhattan asking for her case to be halted until the issue is resolved.

His lawyers stated: "Evidence suggests that the Court does not have subject matter jurisdiction over this action.

"Ms Giuffre alleges she is a citizen of the State of Colorado, the evidence demonstrates that she is actually domiciled in Australia, where she has lived for all but two of the past 19 years.

"At the time she filed this action, Ms Giuffre had an Australian driver's licence and was living in a AU$1.9million (£1million) home in Perth, Western Australia, where she and her husband have been raising their three children.

"Ms Giuffre's ties to Colorado are very limited. She has not lived there since at least 2019. It appears that Ms Giuffre only recently registered to vote in Colorado using her mother and stepfather's mailing address there.

"Prince Andrew respectfully requests that the court order Ms Giuffre to respond to targeted written discovery requests."

Ms Giuffre, 38, has used New York's Child Victims Act to pursue the Duke for damages, alleging he sexually abused her on three occasions in 2001 when she was 17. He "absolutely and categorically" denies her Ms Giuffre, right, says she was taken to London where she was made to sleep with him while she was a "teen sex slave" of his then friend, paedophile financier Jeffrey Epstein who killed himself in 2019.

Mum-of-three Ms Giuffre says in her suit: "Prince Andrew's actions constitute sexual offences as defined in New York Penal Law Article 130", including sexual misconduct, rape in the third degree and rape in the first degree.

Prince Andrew's move is the latest attempt to have her case dismissed. He earlier launched a bid to have the lawsuit thrown out, calling it "unintelligible" and deliberately vague. He argued the law allowing her to sue in America was "unconstitutional".

Crossbow law review after Windsor breach

Priti Patel has ordered a review of laws around the sale and possession of crossbows after a Christmas Day security breach at Windsor Castle.

The Home Secretary has told officials to examine ways of "strengthening controls" on the lethal weapons.

Jaswant Singh Chail, 19, was arrested allegedly with a crossbow after he climbed over a fence into the castle grounds.

A video said to have been sent to Chail's friends just minutes before his arrest showed a menacing figure in a dark hoodie and white mask, wielding a crossbow and threatening to murder the Queen.

The teenager was later sectioned under the Mental Health Act.

The crossbow review was launched earlier this year, but the Home Secretary has instructed officials to "incorporate any lessons" from the shocking incident at Windsor Castle.

One area under scrutiny is believed to be whether the age for legal possession should be raised from 18.

A Home Office spokesman said: "Crossbows are subject to controls, and legislation is in place to deal with those who use them as a weapon. At the Home Secretary's request, we are considering options to strengthen controls on crossbows

"Work on this has been ongoing throughout the year, and we keep all relevant laws under review to maintain public safety."

Under current legislation, it is an offence for anyone under 18 to purchase or possess a crossbow.

It is also a crime for anyone to sell a crossbow to someone aged under 18.

Crossbows may also be considered offensive weapons. It is an offence to carry one in a public place without lawful authority or a reasonable excuse.

Demands for tighter controls were made last May following an inquest into the death of Shane Gilmer in Southburn, East Yorkshire.

Mr Gilmer, 30, was killed by a crazed neighbour who broke into his home in January 2018.

Killer Anthony Lawrence, who owned several crossbows, also shot and wounded Mr Gilmer's partner Laura Sugden, 27.

Lawrence, 55, was later found dead as police investigated.

In a report, coroner Professor Paul Marks told Ms Patel he was concerned there is "no ongoing control, record or licensing requirement for crossbows", unlike with firearms.

LP sales hit 30-year high

SALES of vinyl records in the UK hit their highest level for more than three decades during the pandemic.

More than five million were bought in 2021 – eight per cent up in a year, said the British Phonographic Industry (BPI).

It marks the 14th consecutive year of growth for the format and the highest sales since the early 90s, when Phil Collins' But Seriously was the top seller.

Campaigns such as National Album Day, Record Store Day, The Record Club and Tim's Listening Parties, run online by The Charlatans' frontman Tim Burgess, boosted sales at independent record shops and specialist chains.

Windsor Castle crossbow suspect Jaswant Singh Chail was "odd" and "nerdy" at school

■ Intruder allegedly harbored deep hatred of royal family

WINDSOR Castle crossbow suspect Jaswant Singh Chail was "odd" and "nerdy" at school, his former classmates have said.

One friend told how the teenager used to try to make fellow pupils laugh with "inappropriate jokes".

But others described the youth at the centre of the royal security breach as "quite normal" and ordinary.

The 19-year-old's friends and family were stunned when it emerged he was arrested on Christmas Day after allegedly climbing into the grounds of Windsor Castle.

Just minutes before he was seized, Chail allegedly sent a bizarre and chilling video to friends. It featured a hooded figure wearing a mask and carrying a crossbow.

During the footage, the mystery man threatened to assassinate the Queen in revenge for the Amritsar Massacre in India in 1919.

The author of book about the 1919 Jallianwala Bagh massacre said Chail contacted him in 2019, saying the monarchs needed to apologize for the colonial bloodbath in India — in which British troops killed 379 unarmed protesters and wounded some 1,200 on April 19, 1919.

Saurav Dutt said Chail sent him an email saying "the royals should say the words outright and that Prince Philip in particular was culpable as he served in the Navy with the son of Brig.-Gen. Reginald Dyer whose order led to the massacre."

The teenager lives with his parents and sister on a private estate in North Baddesley, Southampton.

Friends said he attended a "posh" primary school before going to Toynbee School in Chandler's Ford, about four miles from home.

One former friend described Chail as an "odd" boy who tried to make others laugh.

The friend said: "He was always a bit odd and quiet most of the time."

Another commented: "He was nerdy, but not in a way like, 'I'm so clever.' He was pretty normal."

Chail's family are struggling to come to terms with his arrest. His father Jasbir Singh Chail, 57, had allegedly told neighbours at the height of the lockdown that he was concerned about the impact it was having on his son, claiming it had left him "isolated and demotivated".

In the video allegedly sent to Chail's friends, the masked figure said he was also acting in revenge for those who had suffered discrimination due to their race.

A former friend said: "I was in his religious studies class and he never had many views on anything to do with racism."

Meanwhile, neighbours of the family suggested the pressures of lockdown may have affected the youngster.

One said Chail's father "mentioned a few times how difficult it was getting his son involved in anything positive or trying to motivate him and was blaming the lockdown".

The neighbour added: "The dad told me that his son was spending more time alone in his room on social media and the lockdown had made this worse."

Cancel culture: so 'boring' says Dame Joan Collins

DAME Joan Collins has joined the fight over cancel culture, branding it "tragic" and "boring".

The former Dynasty star (pictured, right) also reflected on the MeToo movement and actor Chris Noth, who has been fired from shows following allegations of sexual assault.

Her comments followed those of Maureen Lipman who last week warned that the UK was on the "cusp of wiping out comedy" through fear of offending people.

She said at the time: "I think it's in the balance whether we're ever going to be funny again."

Asked if her outspoken attitude made her worry she would be cancelled. Dame Joan said: "I don't worry about it. I think it is tragic that people can get cancelled for having an opposite opinion to one that is currently en vogue. It is just closing down debates, closing interesting down conversations.

"Whv should everybody feel the same way about everything? It is very boring really."

The 88-year-old actress spoke to Radio 4's Woman's Hour to promote her New Year's Day BBC documentary This Is Joan Collins.

On Sex And The City star Noth, 67, who has denied multiple allegations of sexual abuse in recent weeks, Dame Joan said: "Who knows what he did? I know him and I am not going to judge him because who knows who these women are? But his career is wrecked, absolutely wrecked from doing what he did."

Dame Joan also addressed her own fight for equality during her early showbiz career.

While her father warned her men in the entertainment industry were "predatory", she said she had to handle poor treatment.

The star said: "It didn't just start when I went to Hollywood. I started in the business at 16 and it started then.

"I coped with it by laughing a lot. Men cannot stand it when you laugh at them."

NEW LA RULESOK?

Every new year in LA brings new rules and regulations - and this year there are some quite interesting ones; for example the amount of room a pig can enjoy before getting sent to the slaughter house is now 43 sq feet. This rule has some farmers up in arms, and they claim it will most definitely affect the price of bacon!

Good news for our hens too! They all have to be cage- free and have to be housed in no less than 144 square inches per hen.

More good news for the cocktail at home crowd - restaurants can keep operating an offy - where you can order your fave cocktails and have them delivered to your house or take that 1/2 empty bottle of wine home with you from the table. - Make mine a tequila Manhattan!

Speaking of getting things delivered - Uber delivery peeps can keep their tips. Yay! In a push for transparency, this new law states that tips via food delivery services and apps must go to the individual worker, and cannot go to the delivery service.

It also makes it against the law to charge a customer a purchase price higher than what is listed on the website at the time of order. If you order for pickup, the gratuity will go to the restaurant - not the app.

The Covid crisis has brought the western world's growing mental health crisis to the forefront - thank goodness. And this is reflected in a new education policy which requires that for middle and high schools which already have a health education course, part of the curriculum must now be dedicated to mental health. The aim of the bill is to teach mental wellness young people, but also to help them identify when then need to ask for help.

Free menstrual products are also to be included in each college campus, finally! The Menstrual Equity for All Act of 2021 requires public schools stock restrooms from grades 6-12 with an adequate supply of free products in all women's restrooms and all-gender restrooms, and in at least one men's restroom, before the start of the 2022-23 school year. It also requires California State University schools and each community college district to stock free menstrual products, and make them easy to get to.

So with all of my recent postings telling everyone to be careful about COVID-19 I'm afraid to report - "well I only gone and blown the bloody doors off! and contracted it." We came into close contact with the virus via a house guest who had traveled from the UK to NY and came with the gift of Omicron, just in time for Christmas! Luckily both my husband and I were double vaxxed and boostered - so our symptoms were very mild - a sore throat for a couple of days and a splitting headache - but no fever and no loss of taste or smell. As we know the numbers exploded in the week of christmas and we canceled our travel plans - luckily we got a full refund and got to enjoy our first Christmas in our own home! It was great to not let our gorgeous tree go to waste! And to be honest with this terrible weather I was quite glad we got to isolate through it all! And to top it all off my guilty houseguest decided to buy me a bread maker for Christmas. I am obsessed..... literally putting myself forward for the Great British Bake Off next year.

UNWELCOME GIFT: Craig recovering from Covid this week

If anyone is in knead (pardon the pun) of a slice and maybe a cuppa tea? I'm now negative, full of antibodies and happy to break bread with those who need it?

Be well, stay dry and here's to a better and brighter 2022!

British realtor shot dead in Florida was 'kind and selfless'

■ Alleged killer mistook Essex transplant as a former landlady, with whom he had a feud

A FRIEND of a British estate agent who was shot dead in her car in the US has described her as "kind, vivacious and selfless.

Sara Trost, 40, died from multiple gunshot wounds last Thursday as she waited outside a house in Coral Springs, Florida.

Married with a threeyear-old daughter, Ms Trost ran her own property business.

She was also a motivational speaker and a long-time volunteer at a local animal rescue centre.

Ana Y Lopez, cofounder of Floridabased Paw Patrol Animal Rescue, said Ms Trost had been volunteering and fostering with the charity since 2017.

She said: "Sara was one of our most trusted, knowledgeable and beloved fosterers.

"We are still in complete and utter shock about this senseless tragedy. Thinking about her husband and baby makes me absolutely heartsick. We truly cannot come to grips with what has happened.

"It may sound trite, but Sara will truly be missed. She was kind, vivacious, sweet, caring, helpful, giving, selfless... I could truly go on.

former tenant

"I pray for her family, that they may be able to find some peace someday.

"I know they say, 'Everything happens for a reason', but this makes no sense at all."

Ms Trost, originally from Southend, Essex, is believed to have been shot dead by an aggrieved former tenant at the Coral Springs property who mistook her for his former landlady.

It is thought Ms Trost was there to show a potential new renter around the home.

Two hours after the shooting police arrested Raymond Reese, 51, at West Palm Beach, around 45 miles north of where the killing took place.

Reese, of Boca Raton, Florida, was charged with first degree murder and was due to appear in court after press time.

Ms Trost, an outspoken critic of American gun culture, lived with her husband Jason and daughter Avery in Parkland, a short distance from where she was killed.

Rabbi Shuey Biston, a close friend, said: "We are all devastated. Sara was so loving and caring

"She was just a really special person."

Brighton carved out 18 chances in total at Stamford Bridge but looked set for disappointment before Welbeck met Marc Cucurella's chipped cross.

On a bad night for Chelsea, they also lost defenders Reece James and Andreas Christensen to injury.

They head into 2022 second in the table - one point above third-placed Liverpool, who they face on Sunday at Stamford Bridge (16:30 GMT).

But they trail Manchester City by eight points after Pep Guardiola's side won 1-0 at Brentford.

On what felt like a pivotal night in the title race, Chelsea closed 2021 - a year to remember thanks to their Champions League triumph - on a disappointing note.

The mood was upbeat when Lukaku scored for the second successive game.

After coming off the bench to inspire the Blues to victory at Aston Villa on Sunday, he marked his first league start since 16 October with a busy performance capped by his first-half header.

TENNIS: Murray eyes Melbourne glory

ANDY MURRAY returned Down Under this week with a "clear mind" and the nagging belief he should have already won the Australian Open title.

The Scot announced his retirement after losing a first-round match in 2019 before undergoing a second successful hip operation. Murray then missed the first Grand Slam of 2020 with a pelvic injury and missed out again 11 months ago due to Covid-19.

But the double Wimbledon champion has been handed a wild card to play at Melbourne Park next month after a year of working his way back to match fitness – and in recognition of his fine record, having reached five finals, losing first to Roger Federer and then four times to Novak Djokovic.

World No.134 Murray said: "There's no shame having lost to the greatest players who have played the game.

"I feel I deserve to have an Australian Open.

"My memories and how I feel about the place, I love it there and I can't wait to step back out on court at Melbourne Park."

Murray, 34, won only 15 matches in 14 ATP events in 2021. But he beat Rafa Nadal and Dan Evans in a recent exhibition in Abu Dhabi and says he is seeking a final "fairy-tale scenario" of a deep run in a Grand Slam.

"In Abu Dhabi, there were things I was doing as well as I was back in 2016," he explained.

"My movement isn't as quick as it was back then. I am not expecting it to be as it was in 2016.

"I know what it takes in terms of the dedication and work to get there. That is not easy now, I have restrictions in certain things I can do training-wise.

"Also mixing family life is hard at times.

"In some of the matches I played at the end of the year, in Stockholm for example, I made a lot of good decisions in the match against Jannik Sinner there – I didn't do that in the months before that.

"Now I am a lot clearer in my mind about the way I want to play and the way I will go about my matches.

"Decision-making comes from having a clear mind and clarity about the way you want to play.

"That's something I was strong at in my career, making good decisions in important moments.

"Providing I am clear on how I want to play, I will be able to do that again."

E N G L A N D ' S humiliation Down Under was complete this week as they lost the Third Test in a little over two days to provide an unwelcome cherry on the top of a shocking 12-day Ashes surrender.

The hosts cantered to victory by an innings and 14 runs, despite only scoring 267 in their first innings. But that was more than enough as England collapsed to 68 all out on the final day after scoring just 185 in their first innings.

The Aussies could barely believe the feebleness of the resistance offered by the tourists, and this humbling rout left most

STATS TELL A SORRY STORY

12 Days: The amount of time it took for the Ashes to be lost. Shorter than England's time in quarantine at the start of the tour.

412: The total number of extras for England this year, making it their third highest run-scorer behind Joe Root and Rory Burns.

9: The number of Test defeats for England in 2021, the most they have ever had in a year.

13: England's current record winless streak in Australia, beating the run of 12 between 1937 and 1951.

68: England's lowest total in Australia since 1904.

27.4 overs: England shortest Ashes innings since 1905.

267: Second-lowest total to win an Ashes match by an innings.

19: Equal fewest number of balls needed to take five wickets in an innings in Test cricket (by Scott Boland).

of the England team shell shocked.

Captain Joe Root, doing his best to find a silver lining in the post match interviews, could only offer the following platitude: "We need to put some pride back into the badge and make sure we come away from this tour with something, it's as simple as that."

The speed with which his team-mates disappeared into the changing room at the close of play to leave Root to face the press on his own was reminiscent of the lack of support they have given him with the bat this year.

Both Root and head coach Chris Silverwood are under pressure to keep their jobs once this shambles has been brought to a close.

Despite getting so many of the big cricketing calls wrong, neither man was prepared to walk away from their role mid-series.

"I'm in the middle of a very important series," said Root.

"My energy has to be

all about trying to win the next game. I can't be selfish and start thinking about myself."

The biggest task for Root is to pick his players off the floor, having been steamrollered by the home side without even a whimper.

"Everyone in that dressing room is gutted," said Root.

"Mentally we need to be very resilient and strong and show that character that you need to survive and thrive in Test cricket." "Worrying about myself is at the bottom of the list."

"What we have to do is look forward to these next two Tests, stay positive if we can and make sure we are there, we compete and we take something from this tour."

Legends deliver damning verdict

England's dismal performance in the Ashes Series had numerous commentators lining up to pile on Joe Root and his hapless teammates. Here are three of our favorite quotes:

IAN BOTHAM: "I'm a little embarrassed. To lose the Ashes in 12 days ... I think England have lost their way. The performance today summed it up. It's been a walk in the park for the Australians. It burns me to say that but they've completely outplayed England.

RICKY PONTING: "The fact that Anderson and Broad didn't play in Brisbane was staggering. The fact Joe Root didn't bowl first in Brisbane was staggering. The fact that Mark Wood didn't play in Adelaide was staggering.

"All their planning and thought and structures have just been completely wrong and it's come back to bite them."

GEOFF BOYCOTT: "Now Australia are 3-0 up and the Ashes have gone, will Root please stop saying Australia are not much better than us? I don't mind him living in cuckoo land but stop trying to kid us.

"If he really believes what he says then maybe it is time he gave up the captaincy."
