ANDREW SETTLES OUT OF COURT: GUESS WHO PICKS UP THE TAB?

PRINCE ANDREW has dramatically agreed a £12million out-of-court settlement with Virginia Giuffre who had accused him of sex abuse.

It is believed the Queen will help pay towards the deal in order to draw a line under the case that threatened to overshadow her Platinum Jubilee year. But the Prince has been told he has no route back to public life as a senior Royal.

He agreed to pay the huge sum, using money from the Queen, to stave off the US civil case brought by Ms Giuffre, who claimed she was forced to have sex with him three times when she was as young as 17.

She said she was trafficked around the world by the Duke's then friend the paedophile financier Jeffrey Epstein and his socialite partner Ghislaine Maxwell.

The settlement was outlined in a letter filed to a court in New York on Monday – and legal experts said it was the best of a bad bunch of options for Andrew, 61.

He was stripped of his remaining military affiliations and royal patronages last month by the Queen, who – ahead of her Jubilee – wanted to distance the monarchy from the scandal engulfing her second son and free him up to handle the case as he sought fit.

Buckingham Palace officials have declined to discuss the settlement, which prevents more embarrassing claims in court.

Prince Charles and the Duke of Cambridge have made it clear they see no future for Andrew as part of the working Royal Family – and insiders this week said the decision to strip the prince of all his Royal roles would stand.

Under the deal, Andrew agreed to make a "substantial donation" to Ms Giuffre's charity for victims of sex trafficking. He also said he never intended to smear her character and that he regrets his association with Epstein, found dead in a US cell in 2019.

The wording states he has pledged to "demonstrate his regret" by supporting the "fight against the evils of sex trafficking, and by supporting its victims".

The agreement is not a formal admission of wrongdoing by the Duke, who has always strenuously denied all the allegations.

An attachment to the letter announcing the settlement gave brief details of the agreement between him and Ms Giuffre, 38, but indicated the sum would not be revealed.

It read: "Virginia Giuffre and Prince Andrew have reached an

Ms Giuffre's character, and he accepts that she has suffered both as an established victim of abuse and as a result of unfair public attacks.

More turmoil for Queen as police launch cash-for-gongs probe

■ Controversy centers on Charles's support of controversial knighthood for Saudi benefactor

THE Queen faced fresh turmoil this week as police launched a cash-for-honours probe into Prince Charles' charity.

A day after it was announced the Duke of York's had settled his sex abuse lawsuit, royal aides said that Charles was happy to answer Scotland Yard's questions over claims that his one-time most trusted confidant offered to help a Saudi benefactor be knighted.

Piling more woes on Her Majesty, 95, calls grew for Prince Andrew to lose his dukedom, but the Queen is expected to resist calls to strip her middle son of his last titles.

Her Majesty has made it clear Prince Andrew will retain the rank of Vice Admiral and will stay a Knight of the Garter, the highest order of chivalry in England.

The Duke of York will also remain one of four Counsellors of State – with Charles, Prince William and Prince Harry – who can deputize if the monarch is abroad or ill.

But Rachael Maskell, Labour MP for York

Central, urged the Duke to give up his association with the North Yorkshire city as a mark of "respect for those affected by abuse" and for York's residents.

Meanwhile Charles' aides confirmed he would discuss with police allegations that Michael Fawcett offered to help sheikh Mahfouz Marei Mubarak bin Mahfouz, who had made large donations to the Prince's charitable foundation.

fresh nightmare

His former valet is also said to have pledged to support the billionaire's bid for British citizenship.

The Yard's criminal investigation is a fresh nightmare for the monarch and Royal Family. It was announced less than 24 hours after the Duke agreed an humiliating £12million out of court deal with Virginia Giuffre to stop her US civil case.

Allegations involving Mr Fawcett, then-chief executive of The Prince's Foundation, stunned the Royal household last September.

Special Enquiry Team detectives started "scoping" the claims last year after anti-monarchy campaign group Republic formally reported the Prince and Mr Fawcett for suspected breaches of honours laws.

Former Lib-Dem MP Norman Baker wrote a similar letter urging Met Police chief Cressida Dick to take action.

Mr Baker – author of And What Do You Do?, a book about Royal Family finances – said: "There appears to be prima facie evidence that an offence has been committed under the 1925 Honours (Prevention of Abuses) Act. It needs to be investigated."

Prince Charles categorically denies knowledge of any wrongdoing. A spokesman for his London residence Clarence House said: "If he was asked, of course he would help."

The police inquiry will focus on allegations that Mr Fawcett offered to help Dr Mahfouz receive a knighthood (KBE). He is said to have made several six-figure donations to the foundation – its central aim is the regeneration of Dumfries House, an 18th century mansion in Ayrshire – in a total of up to £2million given to Royal charities. A Sunday newspaper published a letter apparently signed by Mr Fawcett, offering to make an application for Dr Mahfouz to be made KBE and supporting his bid for citizenship.

Dated August 2017 and addressed to an aide of Dr Mahfouz, it acknowledges the sheikh's "ongoing and most recent generosity". There is no suggestion Prince Charles knew of the letter or offer.

Dr Mahfouz has made it clear he had no expectation of reward when he made his donations. Aides said the sheikh had once expressed an interest in becoming a British citizen but did not pursue the matter.

According to letters leaked to a second newspaper, there were discussions about a lesser-ranked OBE for the sheikh in 2014.

A possible donation of £10million was mentioned for building and designing houses on the Dumfries estate but it is not thought to have been made. The sheikh's representatives made it clear he had no knowledge of any such discussions.

Prince Charles gave him an honorary CBE, one rank below a knighthood, in 2016 at a private ceremony at Clarence House "for services to charities".

Andrew:

"It is known that Jeffrey Epstein trafficked countless young girls over many years. Prince Andrew regrets his association with Epstein, and commends the bravery of Ms Giuffre and other survivors in standing up for themselves and others.

"He pledges to demonstrate his regret for his association with Epstein by supporting the fight against the evils of sex trafficking, and by supporting its victims."

Responding to the settlement, David Boies, one of Ms Giuffre's lawyers, said: "I believe this event speaks for itself."

Sigrid McCawley, who also represents her, added: "I am very pleased with the resolution of Virginia Giuffre's litigation against Prince Andrew."

In January the Duke's legal team submitted 11 reasons why the case against him should be dismissed and said he demanded a trial by jury.

His lawyers painted Ms Giuffre as someone who recruited other girls to work for Epstein and suggested that she might be suffering from false memory syndrome when describing Prince Andrew as abusing her.

Royal biographer Penny Junor noted the dramatic change in tone and said the settlement would be a "huge relief" for the rest of the Royal Family in removing the threat of a trial hanging over jubilee celebrations:

"At last, he's expressing some regret and some empathy for those girls."

Mark Stephens, a media lawyer, agreed that the deal would protect the wider Royal Family from fallout: "With this settlement, [Andrew] has prevented this court case overshadowing the tributes and acknowledgement of the Queen's 70 years of selfless sacrifice and service to the country.

"And whilst he is reputationally toast and will never appear on a royal balcony ever again and has effectively been airbrushed from polite society and the Royal Family, he does prevent wider problems for the Royal Family."

The Duke is still expected to attend a memorial service for his father Prince Philip at Westminster Abbey next month plus a service of thanksgiving for the Queen's jubilee at St Paul's Cathedral in June.

Rare red weather warning issued as Eunice bears down on Britain

■ Storm could be the worst to hit UK for 30 years

A rare red weather warning for coastal parts of south Wales and south-west England has been issued by the Met Office before what could be the worst storm to hit the UK in 30 years.

Storm Eunice is expected to arrive at 5am on Friday, bringing potentially dangerous weather for much of the UK.

People were being urged to consider staying at home and rail services were being cancelled on a day with winds of up to 90mph expected and, farther north, possible heavy snow and blizzards.

Coastal areas of Cornwall, Devon, Somerset and south Wales will bear the brunt of Eunice, with the red warning in place between 7am and midday. People can expect flying debris presenting "a danger to life", forecasters said, as well as roofs blown off, power cuts, uprooted trees and major travel disruption.

People have been warned to "tie down" objects in their gardens and be wary of fierce winds which could cause trees to topple over and tiles to fly off buildings.

'major incident'

A major incident was declared in Cornwall, with residents advised not to travel unless absolutely necessary, and to stay away from exposed coastal areas, with Cornwall council warning winds could hit 100mph. Residents in Bournemouth, Christchurch and Poole were also urged to travel only if essential by the local council.

Eunice was declared a major incident by authorities in Avon and Somerset due to the potential for severe disruption. Police said it was likely both Severn crossings would be closed.

Flood warnings were issued by the Environment Agency for parts of the Severn and Wye estuaries. Residents were urged to check if they were in an at-risk area from a predicted tidal surge and "take action immediately" to implement emergency flood plans.

All Welsh train services were suspended for Friday and Network Rail said disruption across the wider network was

BLEAK UP NORTH? the seafront at Blackpool as Eunice approached on Thursday

"inevitable".

A number of attractions, likely to have been busier because it is half-term for many schools, said they would not open on Friday. They included the London Eye, Legoland, Warwick Castle, Kew Gardens and Bristol Zoo.

In London, said Richmond, Bushy and Greenwich parks were all closed. "This decision is based on the strong winds, the age and vulnerability of trees in particular parks," it said. Playgrounds in other parks would also be closed.

Sadiq Khan, the mayor of London, also announced that shelters were being opened on Thursday evening for people who are sleeping rough, with other local authorities activating similar measures.

Eunice is the result of a process called explosive cyclogenesis, or weather bomb, which forms a deep area of low pressure that results in storms.

A red alert is the highest level, meaning a high impact is very likely. Amber warnings, the second highest alert level, for wind are in place across the whole of England from 5am to 9pm on Friday, while yellow weather warnings, the next level down, for wind and snow are in force for a large part of Scotland—where blizzards are predicted—and the whole of Northern Ireland.

The Met Office warnings came hours after Storm Dudley battered Northern Ireland, northern England and southern Scotland. A spokesperson said Eunice could be "one of the most impactful" storms to hit central and southern parts of the UK for many years.

Royal cousins catch up at the Super Bowl

PRINCESS Eugenie watched the Super Bowl with Prince Harry (above) on Sunday afternoon – after becoming the first Royal Family member to visit him on this side of the pond since he quit his duties.

The cousins wore masks as they sat in the premium seats at SoFi Stadium in Inglewood, California for the American football event. Prince Andrew's daughter, 31, is thought to be in Los Angeles for the Frieze art fair, to represent her firm Hauser & Wirth.

It is unclear whether she is staying with Harry, 37, in his £11million Montecito home. Eugenie – who met Harry's wife Meghan before he did through a mutual friend – has been living with her husband and infant son at Frogmore Cottage, the home on the Windsor royal estate vacated by the Sussexes in March 2020.

Veteran TV presenter sues PM's former lover over 'pedo elite train' claim

Andrew Neil has launched libel proceedings against Jennifer Arcuri, the former lover of prime minister Boris Johnson, after she made allegations about the broadcaster's inclusion in an address book owned by the convicted child sex offender Jeffrey Epstein.

Legal filings show Neil has made good on his threat to sue Arcuri after she publicly claimed the journalist was on the "pedo elite train". The former GB News presenter, who is now hosting a show for Channel 4, said Arcuri's comments were "evil lies" and "vile and untrue accusations".

Neil has repeatedly said he never met Epstein and the presence of his contact details in the "black book" is because he had previously met Ghislaine

Maxwell in New York during the 1990s. Last year Maxwell was found guilty of recruiting and grooming teenage girls for sexual encounters with Epstein.

Arcuri came to prominence after claiming she had an affair with Johnson when he was mayor of London, prompting investigations into the decision to award her startup business tens of thousands of pounds in public money. She also accompanied the future prime minister on trade missions, although Johnson will not face a police investigation over the matter.

Her exchanges with Neil began as a Twitter row about the effectiveness of vaccines before descending into mudslinging about his supposed connection to Epstein. Arcuri has now deleted some of the tweets that prompted Neil to issue his legal threats but this may be too late.

Arcuri, who now lives in the US, is listed as a litigant in person on the high court filings, suggesting she does not currently have legal representative. British libel law places the onus on the person who made the disputed allegations to substantiate their claims.

In a series of tweets about Epstein, Neil also told another Twitter user he had no connection to the deceased former financier: "I've never even met him, never mind visited any of his properties or been on his planes, cars, buses, helicopters, ponies," he tweeted. "Now what is it you don't understand about piss off. And apologise before you do, please, piss off."

We should protect the 'amazing' BBC, says Dame Helen

■ Oscar-winning actress takes aim at Tory plans to defund the Beeb

Dame Helen Mirren says the BBC must be preserved at all costs and appreciates it even more having lived in the US for many years.

The star, who plays the wife of a man who refused to buy a TV licence in her latest film The Duke, said she believes the corporation "has to be protected".

She said: "It's such an amazing thing, especially when you live in a country – like I do in America a lot of the time – which doesn't have anything like the BBC."

"Well, it has PBS, which is full of BBC programmes, but that just scrapes along with a lot of investment by very kind wealthy people.

"It would be terrible if that were to become the fate of the BBC. It's a fine, fine institution."

Dame Helen, married to American director Taylor Hackford, said the BBC was being used as a political pawn.

Speaking to Radio Times, she added: "It's so interesting that as politicians find themselves teetering on the pinnacle of their ambition, they all turn their beady eyes on the BBC because the BBC is turning its beady eyes on them. And they can't stand it.

"One after the other, they attack the BBC – and that is exactly why we need the BBC."

However, her biggest television roles have not been on the BBC. Prime Suspect, in which she played Jane Tennison, was a huge hit for ITV over 15 years, and she later played Elizabeth I in a mini-series for Channel 4.

In The Duke she is cleaner Dorothy Bunton, the long-suffering wife of Kempton Bunton, played by fellow Oscar winner Jim Broadbent. It tells the real-life story of a Newcastle bus driver's art heist. Kempton was said to have been enraged that £140,000 of national funds had been spent on Goya's painting of the Duke of Wellington when pensioners were being expected to pay £4 for a TV licence.

It is the only work of art to have been stolen from London's National Gallery and the audacious heist stumped the art world in the 1960s.

Broadbent says that his character would agree with Dame Helen if he was still alive.

"If Kempton was around now, he'd have

Mirren: "One after the other, they attack the BBC – and that is exactly why we need the BBC."

been fighting to save the BBC. He'd be on the side of the BBC against the Government."

Culture Secretary Nadine Dorries is currently looking at alternative ways to fund the BBC and wants to end the fee by 2027.

The Duke will be in UK cinemas on February 25.

London's smallest microflat up for sale at £50,000 - for 75 sq. ft.

Imagine distilling your life to fit in just 75 square feet.

There would just about be space for a bed, a toilet and shower, a sink, a microwave and some storage. But no room for a kitchen to cook in, decorations, a place to store equipment for hobbies, or to have anyone round to visit.

This is life in London's smallest microflat. Located in a Victorian conversion in Lower Clapton, east London it is thought by its sellers to be the smallest to have gone on the market in the capital. The minimum price set by auctioneers is £50,000, but but it is expected to go for more as it was bought for £103,500 in May 2017.

The flat is an example of what experts say is a growing phenomenon of tiny homes, driven by soaring rent and property prices. Microflats are becoming more sought-after and even smaller, they say.

The Clapton flat has recently been renovated and has a large window. To maximise space, it has a captain's bed above storage space and cupboards. The space between the bed and the wall is about wide enough to spread your arms in, and there's a foldout table for eating or working on. A toilet and shower are in a separate wet room.

The owner has already recouped their investment by getting £800 in rent each month. The current tenant lives elsewhere for most of the time and spends just a night or two each week in the flat as it is closer to work.

The auction minimum is well below the average deposit for first-time buyers in London, which Halifax calculated at £130,357 in 2020, but Neal Hudson, a London housing analyst, warned that first-time buyers should be aware it is not sustainable to live in a tiny flat long-term and that if they are unable to sell they could find themselves stuck.

LIVING SMALL: The property, in a Victorian conversion in Lower Clapton, East London, has a bed, microwave, bathroom and an incumbent tenant

The price is a powerful symbol of how inaccessible housing has become. The TV presenter Kirstie Allsopp recently upset British millennials by suggesting they could afford to buy their own homes if they spent less on the gym, easyJet flights, coffee and Netflix. Critics have pointed out that when she bought her first flat, the average home cost £50,000 and measured 750 square feet - 10 times bigger than the Clapton flat.

With rental income estimated at about £10,000, investors were likely to be able to recoup the £50,000 outlay within five years, he said. Suitable tenants would not spend much time at home and would be those who were tired of house-sharing but unable to afford more space, or who lived elsewhere and needed a crash pad for work, he said. For instance, doctors or nurses working in nearby Homerton hospital, or workers in the City, given the area's good transport links to Liverpool Street.

An English rose comes calling...

■ A visitor from home has Eileen scrambling for authentic LA experiences

This week I received my first visitor from the UK! When I say first I of course mean since Covid took over the world and closed our borders.

The honorable guest is my 23 year-old niece Rose, from London. She messaged me a few weeks ago to tell me that she was making an impromptu trip to Los Angeles for the Frieze art festival as her friend Imogen Allen had been invited to exhibit her work at the Ernie Wolfe Gallery in Culver City (erniewolfgallery.com)

It was going to be their first time setting foot in the USA and she had lots of questions for me. To start with (and possibly most important to many of us Brits) "Does America have normal tea?"; the real answer for me is no, although if you drink PG tips you will be fine, as many of the major supermarkets stock that. Rose was relieved when I offered to share my stash of Yorkshire Gold. Her next question was regarding transportation. I warned her that public transportation takes a lot longer than what she is used to in London. She is already familiar with Uber but I recommended she download Lyft too as it is often cheaper or quicker. For rental cars I sent her to fellow Brit Zoe McDonald Hengst who runs Express Rent a Car For Less which is probably the best deal in town - wish she would open a branch in the UK - We would save a fortune on our trips back home.

In my excitement I completely forgot how arduous the drive from Hollywood to LAX was and offered to pick her up...but to be honest even if I had remembered I would probably have done it anyway, as I do try my best to be a good auntie... albeit mostly a long distance one, so it was a nice opportunity to be able to do it in person on my home turf.

The Tom Bradley terminal is daunting at the best of times and was back to its usual pre-pandemic chaos, so I was pleasantly surprised that the process from the plane landing, going through customs and baggage claim to getting in the car was well under an hour. It would have been even quicker except I was stuck in the terminal ring road traffic.

It was all worth it, to not only see Rose but to also see Los Angeles through her fresh eyes. She was wowed from the start, and even enjoyed her mini interrogation with the border control officers as "they were so American and just like they are in the movies". She exclaimed in excitement when we drove past the Westfields Culver City (formerly the Fox Hills Mall), as it looks like the ones back home.

Rose is vegetarian so I sent her to Trader Joe's to grocery shop as not only do they have great prices but also a fantastic variety for the non-meat eaters amongst us (and lots of great stuff for carnivores too!) . Half an hour later I get a text exclaiming "I love Trader Joe's" followed by:

"I'm obsessed"

"Got a tote bag"

"Spent 80 dollars"

Her enthusiasm is contagious and mentally transported me to my first foray to a Trader Joe's. Coincidentally I was also 23 - I had driven past it many a time assuming it was a chain restaurant that was a Trader Vic's wannabe (turns out that was actually the inspiration for the name and the decor). One day a friend informed me that it was the best grocery store in town and 25 years on here I am passing on this insider knowledge to the next generation. If you haven't been, GO! As you can see I highly recommend it. And if you are a regular don't forget to tell all the new arrivals!

busy schedule

So far Rose has only been here 36 hours and not only has she been grocery shopping, but she has already beaten jet lag, visited Venice beach and stopped for noodles in Sawtelle Japantown - she is here for a month and eager to fit in as much as she can, so I will no doubt share more of her endeavors next time. She already has sky diving and a visit to Joshua Tree in her sights, as well as a weekend in San Francisco followed by 10 days in Mexico - (I'm worn out just thinking about it!), best of all she doesn't even realize it is actually quite cold here, as compared to London the weather this week is 'amazing'.

If you have any recommendations for things Rose and her friend Imogen should do whilst they are here drop me a line at eileen@britsin.la

Till next time!

Cheers
Eileen

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: It would be somewhat hasty to make any plans concerning travel until next week. Mars your boss in earthy Capricorn can slow down plans until then.

TAURUS: You have possibly been procrastinating over dealing with some unfinished business of some kind. You only have a couple of days to get this over with. Life will be better when you do.

GEMINI: Your boss Mercury has likely brought forward situations that are better dealt with upfront. He is in an earth sign now and this will help you go forward.

CANCER: You likely have many things on your mind right now so be ready to make some decisions. Mercury moving in a positive direction will assist you.

LEO: Positive thinking is the way to go this week or so ahead now that your boss the Sun is moving through watery Pisces. Try to up your daily exercise for a while - it will help.

VIRGO: The Sun traveling in your watery opposite sign of Pisces will probably not be a very productive time for you currently. Do what you can and enjoy the down time.

LIBRA: Some people could be over-reacting around you. It is probably nothing to do with you, however keep cool and do not get involved. It is all back to some kind of normal by mid-week ahead.

SCORPIO: It's time to lighten up as the Sun moves into your cousin sign of Pisces. Your finances are on your mind, however you have ways to increase them. Do not procrastinate.

SAGITTARIUS: You can expect to have to revisit a recent family problem these next few days. By now you know that it's not easy, however it has to be dealt with head on. Do not be bullied by anyone.

CAPRICORN: If you have no choice but to deal with family matters do not give it too much time. Your finances should be in good shape going forward.

AQUARIUS: Now you are in your new year get your plans ready to go. You are probably not sure if you are where you want to be overall. It is time to make changes. Happy Birthday.

PISCES: This is a time of positive messages to you and from you. While the Sun is in your own sign it's best to keep some time to yourself as there are a few nice surprises and you will enjoy the coming time frame. Happy Birthday!

Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 03/22/22 at 8:30AM in Dept. 11 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012 IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. 'Gers savor remarkable win

Rangers earned an incredible first-leg victory at Borussia Dortmund on Thursday to put themselves firmly in the driving seat for a Europa League last-16 place.

The visitors stunned the German giants when James Tavernier's penalty was followed by Alfredo Morelos' tap-in.

John Lundstram's fantastic strike made it three, but Jude Bellingham replied instantly with a fine drive of his own.

Dan-Axel Zagadou's

own-goal restored the three-goal lead before Raphael Guerreiro gave Dortmund a lifeline.

The game's first five goals came in an astonishing 16-minute spell across the end of the first half and the start of the second period, as Rangers continually sliced through a fragile Dortmund side who currently sit second in the Bundesliga.

Despite there being only 10,000 fans in attendance because of Covid restrictions inside the iconic cauldron of the Signal Iduna Park, the home crowd made their feelings clear as the pocket of delirious travelling fans celebrated throughout the game and on after the final whistle.

The return leg of the play-off knockout round tie will take place at Ibrox next Thursday.

Celtic are "only at half-time" said Ange Postecoglou after defeat to Bodo/Glimt in Glasgow left them with a mountain to climb to reach the Europa Conference League last 16.

Runar Espejord knocked the Norwegian champions into an early lead before Amahl Pellegrino finished a neat move.

Daizen Maeda brought the tie back to life, but Hugo Vetlesen's deflected shot immediately flattened the atmosphere in Glasgow.

"They were clinical," said Postecoglou.

It leaves Celtic with a two-goal deficit to chase in Norway next week.

"We've got to go there, play our football again. We've scored goals away from home in tough places, it's a good challenge for us."

The result brings to an end Celtic's nine-game winning run, and is their first defeat since losing to Bayer Leverkusen in November.

Reds master class in Milan

■ Firmino makes the breakthrough as Liverpool edge past tough Inter side

Liverpool took a huge step towards the Champions League quarter-finals after scoring two late goals against Inter Milan in the San Siro on Wednesday night.

The Reds had suffered several scares at the hands of a well organized and tactically disciplined Inter side, before a triple substitution from manager Juergen Klopp reaped rich rewards for the visitors.

As so often in big games, it was Brazil forward Roberto Firmino who made the difference, getting on the end of Andrew Robertson's corner to head his side into the lead with the deftest of touches.

Mohamed Salah added a second with a deflected effort from inside the box which means Jurgen Klopp's side take a sizeable advantage into the second leg at Anfield on 8 March.

Italian champions Inter hit the bar through Hakan Calhanoglu and were on top for long periods of the second half before Firmino struck in the 75th minute.

Liverpool scored from their only two attempts on target and will be firm favourites to progress when the two sides meet in the deciding leg next month.

It was a particularly memorable night for midfielder Harvey Elliott, who became the youngest player ever to start a match in the competition for Liverpool at the age of 18 years and 318 days.

Liverpool have now won seven successive matches in all competitions, with this arguably the most impressive of the current run.

But Klopp's team had to dig deep as Inter looked the more threatening side after a strong start by the Premier League club.

Former Manchester City forward Edin Dzeko found himself clean through in the first half before a vital challenge by Virgil van Dijk, who was captaining the Reds in the absence of Jordan Henderson.

The hosts went close again when Ivan Perisic whipped in a cross, but Lautaro Martinez was unable to give Inter the lead.

In a fascinating match, Liverpool took the lead through Firmino's glancing 75th-minute header before Salah doubled the lead eight minutes later.

There is still work to do for Klopp's team but it is going to require something extra special from Inter to turn this tie around.

IT'S THAT MAN AGAIN: Roberto Firmino has made a habit of scoring important goals for Liverpool. Wednesday night was no exception

Hail Cesar as Blues crowned world champs

Cesar Azpilicueta (right) lifted the Club World Cup on Saturday, and in doing so completed the full set of trophies available to him at Chelsea.

The Spaniard's joy was plain to see after the final whistle in Abu Dhabi after the Blues triumphed 2-1 in extra time over Brazilian side Palmeiras. It had taken him ten years to collect them all. Some he won as a left-back, some as a right-back, and some as a central defender, but for Chelsea fans for whom he is an icon, he has never given anything less than astonishing effort and commitment.

He played a leading role in the game's decisive moment, the penalty scored by Kai Havertz in the 117th minute. Amid a raucous scrum of Palmeiras players protesting the spot kick decision, Azpilicueta picked up the ball to suggest he was taking the spot kick—and he received the lions share of the abuse and gameship from the Brazilian side. Only when the ref had restored order the Palmeiras keeper was ordered back to his line did he hand over the ball to Havertz – who dispatched the kick without fuss.

Azpi is now on 459 appearances for Chelsea, 35 short of Petr Cech's record as the foreign player with the most games for the club. In order to break that record, he will have to stay another season, but age 32, Chelsea fans will be confident he still has much to offer the club.
