Putin guilty of 'war crimes' says Boris

Russian tactics in Ukraine are "barbaric and indiscriminate", insists PM

Boris Johnson has accused Russian President Vladimir Putin of committing war crimes in Ukraine.

At Prime Minister's Putin cannot commit Questions, he said bombing innocent civilians "already fully qualifies as a war crime".

He was responding to the Scottish National Party's Ian Blackford, who called for Mr Putin to be prosecuted.

Wednesday, On International Criminal Court prosecutor Karim Khan said he was now investigating possible war crimes and crimes against humanity in Ukraine.

The investigation was launched after 38 nations grouped together to refer the situation to the prosecutor's office, which said "collection of evidence" had started.

The UK government described the referral as the largest in the history of the court, which relies on co-operation with countries worldwide for support, particularly for making arrests.

Following announcement. Mr Johnson said in a tweet: "We are crystal clear that these horrific acts with impunity."

Ükraine's president Volodymyr Zelensky has already accused Russia of war crimes after air strikes on the country's second city, Kharkiv.

A week in to Russia's invasion of Ukraine, attacks on key cities have intensified, with fighting raging in the north, east and south.

'horrific acts'

On Tuesday, Mr Johnson described the tactics used by the Russian military under orders from Mr Putin as "barbaric and indiscriminate".

"With every passing hour, the world is witnessing the horrors of Putin's war in Ukraine," said the SNP's Westminster leader Mr Blackford. He called for Mr Putin to be prosecuted for the "full range" of war crime charges available.

Mr Johnson replied: "What we have seen already from Vladimir Putin's regime in the use of the munitions that they have already been dropping on innocent civilians, in my view, already fully qualifies as a war crime."

Justice Secretary Dominic Raab said the UK was "willing to provide the necessary technical assistance to support successful convictions" and stressed the importance preserving "all evidence of war crimes".

Asked about Johnson's remarks after PMQs, Downing Street said possible war crimes were occurring daily in Ukraine.

Mr Johnson's official spokesman agreed the Russian attack on the Babyn Yar holocaust memorial in the Ukrainian capital Kyiv and the targeting of apartment blocks constituted war crimes.

The spokesman said: "Obviously, formally it will be for a criminal court to make that ruling but I think no one can be in any doubt that what we're seeing daily, almost hourly now, are horrific acts that would certainly appear to be war crimes."

Earlier, in a phone call, Mr Johnson and Mr Zelensky agreed sanctions must go further to exert maximum pressure on Meanwhile. United Nations General Assembly has voted overwhelmingly to demand an immediate end to the invasion of Ukraine.

Just four countries -Belarus, North Korea, Eritrea and Syria - joined Russia in opposing a motion calling for the withdrawal of all occupying forces, while 35 nations abstained.

General Assembly resolutions are not legally binding but the move further isolates Russia diplomatically.

News From Britain

UK imposes sanctions on Russian billionaire and former deputy PM

■ Liz Truss announces moves against Everton backer Alisher Usmanov and Igor Shuvalov

The UK has sanctioned two new billionaire allies of Vladimir Putin, amid growing pressure to speed up the crackdown on Russian oligarchs, with delays blamed on legal issues and poor preparation.

Amid widespread criticism of the delays to sanctioning more Kremlin allies, ministers are now set to reform "intimidation lawsuits" to crackdown on multimillion legal bills from oligarchs.

The oligarchs Alisher Usmanov and Igor Shuvalov were added to the UK sanctions list on Thursday night, a week after it was announced there would be a "hitlist" of more than 100 oligarchs. Both will be cut off from their multimillion pound British mansions, with a full asset freeze and travel ban.

The telecoms magnate Usmanov owns the £48m palatial Beechwood House in Highgate and the 16th-century Sutton Place estate in Surrey, and has had significant interests in the English football clubs Arsenal and Everton. Shuvalov, the former deputy Russian PM, has assets including two luxury apartments in central London worth an estimated £11m. Both have been sanctioned by the EU.

taskforce

In a coordinated move the US government announced "full blocking sanctions" eight "Russian on elites and their family members who enable Putin". Those sanctioned include Usmanov and Shuvalov as well as Nikolai Tokarev, chief executive of the energy Transneft, company Dmitry Peskov, Putin's spokesperson, press and Yevgeniy Liz Truss, the foreign secretary, announced plans to establish a crossgovernment oligarch taskforce to help build cases against its targets.

Government sources blamed the slow pace on amendments to the 2018 sanctions law, but the crossbench peer Lord Pannick who proposed the changes said they should not mean the UK must act slower than the EU, which has named significantly more individuals linked to Putin.

litigious

Government sources said Truss was pursuing changes to limit the amount of damages that could be incurred should those who have their assets frozen and seized for close ties to Putin's regime challenge them in the courts.

Truss has told government lawyers to "find literally any way" to crack down on so-called Slapp suits – the Strategic Lawsuit Against Public Participation technique – often used by the litigious and mega-wealthy to censor and intimidate journalists and activists by burdening them with huge legal costs they cannot meet.

The justice secretary, Dominic Raab, is expected to launch a call for evidence on reforming Slapp cases, but it could take several weeks.

Vladimir Ashurkov, a Russian political activist who was executive director of the Anti-Corruption Foundation, said such lawsuits were "acts of hybrid warfare which are used to weaken the UK's democracy, judicial system and fundamental freedoms".

Lamps: it's the right decision

EVERTON on Wednesday cut their sponsorship ties with companies linked to Alisher Usmanov – and manager Frank Lampard said it was the right decision.

Uzbekistan-born billionaire Usmanov – described by the EU as a "pro-Kremlin oligarch" – is a close business associate of club owner Farhad Moshiri.

But the decision has consequences for Everton as it means a money tap has been turned off – all the more so because the club's most recent accounts showed a loss of £139.9million

They have been restrained by Financial Fair Play rules for the past 12 months despite Moshiri having millions ready to be invested, and it has contributed to their struggles this season. Everton have cut ties with USM Holdings, who began a five-year sponsorship of the club's Finch Farm training base in 2017 worth £12m annually.

The two other companies removed were MegaFon, where Usmanov is a majority shareholder, and Russian smartphone provider Yota.

Usmanov-related companies have been providing sponsorship of £20m a year. USM Holdings also paid £30m for a naming rights option on the club's new stadium at Bramley Moore dock.

Lampard said: "Those are club decisions above me but we are doing the right thing."

The sponsorship deals can be replaced but, for now, there remains a gap in Everton's accounts. The club said they are "shocked and saddened" by events in Ukraine.

They have removed all USM branding and the women's team shirts will have MegaFon and Yota removed.

There is concern about finances but Lampard's focus is on keeping Everton in the Premier League or they could be in serious trouble.

"I've got 14 league games to worry about before I worry about any of that stuff," he said.

Abramovich forced into Chelsea sale

■ London club's deep-pocketed benefactor finally feels blowback from friendship with Putin

Roman Abramovich says he will sell Chelsea FC with the "net proceeds" going to a charitable foundation helping victims of war in Ukraine.

The Russian-Israeli billionaire has owned the Blues since 2003 and helped steer the Stamford Bridge club to 19 major trophy successes.

But the 55-year-old's reign in west London is close to an end. Swiss billionaire Hansjorg Wyss and US investor Todd Boehly are understood to be two of the parties preparing to make a bid.

The club's current owner is said to want around £4billion for the club.

But potential buyers, including Mr Wyss, say the figure is too high.

In a statement on Wednesday Mr Abramovich said: "I would like to address the speculation in the media over the past few days in relation to my ownership of Chelsea FC.

"As I have stated before, I have always taken decisions with the club's best interest at heart.

peace deal

"In the current situation, I have therefore taken the decision to sell the club, as I believe this is in the best interest of the club, the fans, the employees, as well as the club's sponsors and partners."

Mr Abramovich has not yet come under UK government sanctions.

And he is also understood to have been attempting to broker a peace deal. He has vowed not to rush the sale of a club that have won two Champions League titles, as well as the Club World Cup title earlier this year, under his ownership.

Mr Abramovich is said to have loaned the club £1.5 billion but he said: "I will not be asking for any loans to be repaid.

"This has never been about business nor money for me, but about pure passion for the game and club.

"Moreover, I have instructed my team to set up a charitable foundation where all net proceeds from the sale will be donated.

"The foundation will be for the benefit of all victims of the war in Ukraine."

Daddy megabucks: the Russian-Israeli billionaire has owned the Blues since 2003 and helped steer the Stamford Bridge club to 19 major trophy successes.

The money will pay for the immediate needs of victims, and long-term recovery.

He said the sale was "an incredibly difficult decision" and wants to visit Stamford Bridge to say goodbye.

Labour MP Chris

Bryant said he hopes auction houses such as Sotheby's and Christie's are "taking action" while Russian oligarchs are "rapidly divesting".

He again questioned what the Government is doing to "speed up" sanctions.

Mr Bryant added: "We're a long way short of what the US has done and the EU."

Defence minister James Heappey said Britain could do more but "let's not forget just how punitive what has been done is".

End Russians' 'Mayfair lifestyle' Labour MP urges government

The UK government has been urged to place a total ban on exporting luxury goods to Russia to target the "Mayfair lifestyle" enjoyed by President Vladimir Putin and his inner circle.

Labour's Nick Thomas-Symonds said sanctions should be placed on high-end jewellery and designer clothing.

Government ministers have vowed to "use all the tools at our disposal" to target oligarchs.

But they are facing calls to extend sanctions.

Since Russia invaded Ukraine last week, the UK has frozen the bank accounts of some wealthy individuals, including Mr Putin and some of those linked to him.

It has also banned Russian airline Aeroflot from landing its planes in the UK, and excluded several banks from the UK's financial system.

The UK's Levelling-Up Secretary, Michael Gove, is exploring the possibility of seizing UK property owned by Russian oligarchs with links to Mr Putin.

Mr Gove raised the idea with cabinet colleagues last week, as part of a range of possible further sanctions, on trade and visas, but no final decision has been made.

Recent research by campaign group Transparen group Transparen cy International suggests £1.5bn worth of UK property has been bought by Russians accused of corruption or links to the Kremlin since 2016. Nearly £430m worth is in the City of Westminster, while £283m is in Kensington and Chelsea.

Conservative MP Tom Tugendhat, who chairs the Commons Foreign Affairs Committee, tweeted on Thursday: "We have flats that need seizing. Now."

The Liberal Democrats are calling for oligarch-owned properties to be seized and turned into temporary accommodation for Ukrainian refugees.

Meanwhile, the authorities in France and Germany have seized super yachts owned by Russian tycoons Igor Sechin and Alisher Usmanov.

Speaking in the House of Commons, Labour MP Nick Thomas-Symonds, the opposition's spokesman on international trade, said current UK sanctions did not go far enough, calling for a "total ban on the export of luxury goods" to Russia... so that Putin and his inner circle cannot live a Mayfair lifestyle in Moscow".

THAT'S RICH: London's Mayfair district is one of the richest in the City and is much-loved by ultra-wealthy Russians

Oligarchs have squirreled away almost £200m in prime English properties, says new report

Oligarchs under sanctions in the EU and US have been linked to almost £200m of property in London and the home counties, it was reported this week, as Boris Johnson came under mounting pressure from Labour to step up financial curbs.

Among those hit with sanctions by the EU in recent days over Russia's invasion of Ukraine are Mikhail Fridman and Petr Aven, who separately own mansions in London and Surrey. Both men stepped down from the board of their private investment group, LetterOne, on Tuesday.

art collection

Aven attended a business meeting with Vladimir Putin at the Kremlin last week, which his spokesperson said he was required to do. He bought the plot of Ingliston House in Virginia Water in the 2000s for an estimated

A VERY DES RES: Athlone House in north London, bought by Mikhail Fridman in 2016 for £65m

£8m, and he has spoken of housing a vast art collection there. The property is owned through a company.

Fridman bought and still owns Athlone House in north London, paying £65m for the property in 2016, according to the Land Registry.

A spokesperson for both men said the justifications for EU sanctions were "simply and demonstrably false" and stressed that the pair were in no way involved in politics, had condemned the war and would contest the allegations. Fridman has previously said he did not know whether he would face sanctions in the UK and hoped it would not happen.

'ashamed'

Igor Shuvalov, a former Russian deputy prime minister who chairs Russia's state development bank, is also said to be a London property owner under EU sanctions. He was named in the House of Commons by Labour as owning two flats in Westminster, bought for an estimated £11m.

On Wednesday Keir Starmer said the only reason Shuvalov was known to be the real owner of the flats was because it had been revealed by the jailed Russian opposition leader Alexei Navalny.

"Transparency is essential to rooting out corruption," the Labour leader said. "It should be built into our law, but it's not. And I'm ashamed that we only know about Shuvalov's Westminster flats because a dissident risked his life. Is the prime minister?"

Another billionaire oligarch and friend of Putin, Oleg Deripaska, is already under sanctions in the US and has previously challenged the restrictions in the courts.

He is listed by the US Department of the Treasury as residing at Belgrave Square in London. The property was bought in 2005 for an estimated £25m through Ravellot Ltd, a company based in the British Virgin Islands. A spokesperson for the businessman said the property was "owned by members of Mr Deripaska's family".

Harry: Meghan and I 'were brought together for a reason'

The Duke of Sussex said he and his wife had been "brought together for a reason" as they accepted a top accolade.

Harry and Meghan (pictured, right) appeared at the NAACP Image awards in LA at the weekend, which celebrate outstanding achievements and performances of black and minority ethnic people in the arts.

Accepting the President's Award for distinguished public service in the field of racial justice, Harry said: "I think it's safe to say I come from a very different background to my incredible wife, yet our lives were brought together for a reason.

"We share a commitment to a life of service, a responsibility to confront injustice and a belief that the most overlooked are often the most important to listen to."

Meghan added: "I couldn't be prouder that we're doing this work together."

Other winners included Samuel L Jackson, Jennifer Hudson and Will Smith.

FIFA U-turn delivers World Cup red card to Russia

RUSSIA were booted out of the World Cup this week, after bosses at football governing body Fifa performed a late U-turn.

The decision came hours after Fifa said Moscow, who hosted the 2018 event, could play this year under the name Football Union of Russia – but on neutral ground and minus their flag and anthem.

But sources say the body bowed to pressure from nations including England, Sweden and Poland, who vowed not to play Vladimir Putin's pariah nation.

The FA said it "wholeheartedly condemns the atrocities being committed by the Russian leadership" as both England and Wales voiced their objection at the weekend.

Prime Minister Boris it felt "an Johnson said Fifa's earlier punishment did not "go far enough". His official spokesman said: "Anyone seeing the situation and the horrific scenes we see on the ground would expect a body like Fifa to do more.

The Welsh FA said it "stands in solidarity with Ukraine". It said extreme amount of sadness and shock to the recent developments inthe country".

The International Olympic Committee's executive board has said sports federations and organisers should not allow Russian and Belarusian athletes to take part in world competitions.

Mirren was presented with the prestigious Lifetime Achievement honour by fellow Oscarwinner, Kate Winslet, who sang the actress's praises remotely from her home in England.

industry: That women just get better with age." Winslet said to thundering applause.

After taking the stage, Mirren, who has earned 13 SAG nominations and five wins, shared the simple secret to her success.

She said: "Lifetime achievement, sounds so grand. I suppose I'm alive so by that measure I'm eligible.

"But honestly any achievement that I've succeeded in is a result of my mantra, which is basically, 'Be on time and don't be an ass'. Thank you SAG, I hate to say the word sag at my age, it's always S-A-G.

"I'm simultaneously enormously proud but I'm riven with the understanding I absolutely do not deserve this."

Mirren also thanked fellow "rogues and vagabonds" for "all the giggles. Their emotional generosity and incredible energy".

She added: "Together we laugh, we weep, we worry, we change clothes, we throw up and suffer diarrhoea... don't you? I mean I do.

"Actors, you're a magnificent stretching across culture, history, and time. This is for the actors."

Dame Helen - in a Dolce & Gabbana baby pink dress with corsage - later partied with her tribe, including Meryl Streep, 72, Michael Douglas, 77, and Lady Gaga, 35.

Gaga missed out on Best Actress for House Of Gucci to Jessica Chastain, 44, for biopic Eyes Of Tammy Faye.

Jessica's win also meant Olivia Colman

PRETTY IN PINK: Dame Helen Mirren at the SAG Awards at Santa Monica Airport's Barker Hanger on Sunday night

My wife is the real star, says Walk of Famer Benedict

B E N E D I C T Cumberbatch paid tribute to his wife and children this week as he was honoured with a star on the Hollywood Walk Of Fame, saying his career "wouldn't be half the ride without you".

The actor and dad of three, 45, also thanked "a bunch of reprobates" – friends who he said would "love to be here to take the p*** out of me".

He said: "I'm British so part of me is finding this incredibly painful. The other part of me is quite enjoying this massive ego stroke."

Turning to his wife, theatre director Sophie Hunter, he continued: "Your support, your honesty, searing at times as it is, your style, your grace, your beauty, your generosity and your love are extraordinary.

"I'm really enjoying this but it wouldn't be half the ride if I was on my own without you as it is with you."

The actor (pictured above) added that they had created an "amazing family of three extraordinary human beings" and also thanked his sons for keeping him grounded by calling him a "stupid fart-face".

"One day, in disguises, maybe we'll sneak out here and have a little photograph all together on daddy's star," he said.

"But you're my little stars and I adore you."

The London-born Sherlock star was presented with the accolade by Star Wars director JJ Abrams and Marvel Studios president Kevin Feige on Monday.

His co-star in his new Netflix film, The Power Of The Dog, Kodi Smit McPhee, also attended the ceremony.

Cumberbatch is tipped to win best actor gongs at both the Oscars and the Baftas for his role as rancher Phil Burbank in Jane Campion's dark Western.

The star was also nominated at Sunday's Screen Actors Guild awards but lost out to Will Smith.

Cumberbatch will also be back on the big screen in May after reprising his role as superhero wizard Doctor Stephen Strange in Marvel blockbuster The Multiverse Of Madness.

Toffees end Minnows' unlikely run

National League Boreham Wood's FA incredible Cup journey came to an end on Thursday night but not without forcing Premier League Everton to dig deep for their narrow 2-0 fifth-round victory.

The Hertfordshire club have been the story of this season's tournament so far with their run but, despite a valiant effort roared on by thousands of travelling fans, they were undone by Salomon Rondon's two second-half goals.

The Venezuelan striker was set up by Seamus Coleman to steer in a shot just before the hour and then headed a second late in the game from a corner to settle the tie.

Richarlison also had the ball in the net, but saw his effort ruled out for handball by VAR, rubbing salt into still raw wounds from the penalty the Blues were denied by the technology against Manchester City at the weekend.

The result sets up a quarter-final tie at fellow Premier League side Crystal Palace for the Blues, who made six changes but still fielded a side strong enough to have produced a far more

much of the For game they struggled as the visitors staged a masterclass in how to frustrate a superior opponent, defending with intelligence and dogged determination.

Wood departed the competition to cheers and with more than just gate receipts and television money in the bank.

There were also emotional scenes before kick-off, with both sets of players coming on to the field with Ukrainian flags in support of the country and its people following the invasion by Russia.

The theme to Z Cars - the traditional anthem by which teams come out at Goodison then switched to John Lennon's 'Imagine', with the players holding aloft a banner together that read: 'Imagine all the people, sharing all the world'.

In another sign of solidarity, Everton's captain for the night was Ukrainian international full-back Vitalii Mykolenko.

Before the game, Boreham Wood manager Luke Garrard described it as a "free hit" - a no-lose game which his side could attack knowing everyone expected them to lose

The Wood boss is clearly smarter than that, though, as illustrated by the intelligent manner in which he set his side up to hamper the home side and play on their insecurities.

Operating with a flat back five, ably assisted by hard-working defensive midfielders, his team stopped a side full of internationals from hurting them for almost an hour.

fluffed shot, Every each misplaced pass and cleared cross was cheered on from an away end that then burst into song declaring that they were Wembley bound.

Rondon's secondhalf double ensured that would not be the case, while also sparing Everton's blushes.

There is no disguising that the home side were poor, but they did deserve their win, with Boreham's only real effort at goal a Tyrone Marsh shot after he had been gifted the ball by sloppy defending.

But with all due respect to the Toffees the evening was not really about them - Frank Lampard hinted as much in his programme notes by declaring it was "all business" for his side.

With that taken care of, the Blues players departed

Players from both sides lined up in the Ukrainian flag at Goodison on Thursday the field to leave the Boreham players and fans to bask in the romance and in a stunning run that left them just one stage short of matching Lincoln's record of being the only non-league side to reach an FA Cup quarter-final.

United sink deeper into the red

MANCHESTER UNITED's debts have risen to close to half a billion pounds on the back of increased wages after the arrival of Ronaldo and pay-offs for Ole Gunnar Solskjaer and his staff.

In their latest set of financial figures, for the quarter which ended in December, the Old Trafford club announced debt had risen by nearly £50m from £455.5m to £494.8m.

United have pointed to Covid restrictions which continued impact revenue as well as the lack of a pre-season tour as contributory factors.

But the removal of Solskjaer and members of his backroom staff is understood to have cost around £10m and the arrival of Cristiano Ronaldo inflated the playing staff wage bill.

Ronaldo's summer arrival as the highest earner in the Premier League on a reported £450,000-a-week contributed to a £16m hike in wage costs to £97.7m for that quarter. New chief executive Richard Arnold announced the club had still returned an operating profit of £5.4m, albeit a long way down from £48.5m in the comparable period in 2020.

But Arnold was also able to point to a post-Covid recovery which saw revenue increase by 7.3 percent and a healthy return of matchday income.

United's chief executive of digital products and experience, Phil Lynch, announced that the club had generated more than a billion digital interactions, cont. on page 15, col. 4
