Boris: I'm sorry. I will do better for Britain

■ PM contrite after getting fined for breaking lockdown laws

BORIS Johnson has vowed to serve Britain better after he was fined for breaking Covid laws on his birthday.

The PM, his wife Carrie and Rishi Sunak paid £50 penalties over the No10 party in June 2020 – but both Cabinet ministers have signalled they would not resign.

Mr Johnson said it “did not occur” to him that the nine minutes he spent at the bash for his 56th birthday broke lockdown rules.

But he apologized “in the spirit of openness and humility” and added that he understood voters’ anger after he “fell short”.

As the Opposition called for him to quit, the Prime Minister insisted that he wants to tackle the country’s problems – and to help Ukraine drive out tyrant Vladimir Putin.

Mr Johnson – the first premier to have been found to have broken the law while in office – on Monday pledged to “do what is best for the country I serve”.

Speaking from his Chequers country residence, he said: “I understand the anger that many will feel that I myself fell short when it came to observing the very rules which the Government I lead had introduced to protect the public, and I accept in all sincerity that people had a right to expect better.

“And now I feel an even greater sense of obligation to deliver on the priorities of the British people: strengthening our economy; creating jobs and opportunity; levelling up across the whole of the United Kingdom; now, of course, ensuring that Putin fails in Ukraine and easing the burden on hardworking families caused by higher energy prices.

“I will take that forward, that task, with due humility, but with maximum determination, to fulfil my duty, and do what is best for the country I serve.”

The PM said that he spent a short time at the gathering in a day when he chaired eight meetings and also visited a school.

Mr and Mrs Johnson have both paid their fines but are braced for further fixed penalty notices as Scotland Yard officers examine more serious and complex allegations of lockdown rule breaking in Downing Street.

He said he “couldn’t be everywhere at once” when asked about the widespread nature of “Partygate” events in Whitehall.

“Of course I take full responsibility for everything, but don’t forget the Downing Street is about, you know, 15,000 square feet. It’s got a lot of officials working in it – hundreds and hundreds of officials...I couldn’t be everywhere at once.

“But clearly once it became obvious what had been happening, the types of behaviour that unfortunately sadly we’d seen, we’ve taken steps to change things and Downing Street has been radically transformed. We’re focusing 100 per cent on delivering our agenda.”

Labour urged the Prime Minister to quit and to recall MPs from their Easter break so as to let the development be discussed in the Commons.

The surprise birthday get-together was organised by Mrs Johnson. Northern Ireland minister Conor Burns later said that the Prime Minister was “in a sense, ambushed with a cake”.

Mr Sunak had been in No 10 to attend a meeting about Covid.

He had not expected to receive a fine– and the police’s decision inflicted yet another political wound on him after days of negative stories about his family’s finances, and anger over his spring financial statement.

Foreign Secretary Liz Truss, who has long been viewed as having ambitions to be Prime Minister, threw her support behind both Mr Johnson and Mr Sunak.

She said: “The Prime Minister has apologized and taken responsibility for what happened in Downing Street. He and the Chancellor are delivering for Britain on many fronts including on the international security crisis we face. They have my 100 per cent backing.”

The PM insisted that he had spoken “in completely good faith” when he said repeatedly that all guidelines were followed in Downing Street, as it did not occur to him that he was in breach cont. on page 2, col. 4

Boris still '100%' behind under fire Chancellor

■ No 10 laughs off talk of a rift as pressure grows on Sunak over family finances

BORIS Johnson is backing under-fire Rishi Sunak "100 per cent" despite recent tensions between the pair as pressure intensifies on the Chancellor over family finances.

Mr Sunak ordered an inquiry to find the culprit behind leaks about wife Akshata Murty's 'non dom' tax status.

The issue is particularly controversial in Britain, since by claiming non-domicile tax status, Murty is able to avoid paying UK taxes on income earned elsewhere. This revelation has drawn criticism, especially in light of Sunak recently raising taxes for working households.

Mr Sunak protested his innocence, posting on Twitter: "I have always followed the rules and I hope such a review will provide further clarity."

He said in his letter to Mr Johnson his "overriding concern" was to retain public confidence in the answers that were given – and he added: "I am confident such a review of my declarations will find all relevant information was appropriately declared."

But Mr Sunak's critics claim he is focusing on the wrong issue.

Labour said the row was about "basic fairness" and the Sunaks should not enjoy "special arrangements" to reduce tax bills.

The Chancellor has taken the unusual step of moving out of Downing Street – with sources insisting they had always intended to spend more time in their west London home as their elder daughter, Krishna, entered her final term of primary school.

'best mates'

He is still expected to stay at No 11 during the week while joining them at weekends. Aides said claims that he was thinking of quitting his job were "not true at all".

Relations between Mr Johnson and has Chancellor were strained after the PM's future was pushed to the brink over allegations of lockdown rule-breaking.

But Whitehall sources said the pair had been laughing and joking together like "best mates" last week when they made a joint visit to a hospital.

Non-domicile tax status that has been available since the French revolution, and it allows a person who was born in another country, or if their parent is from another country, to pay tax in the UK only on their UK income. The system has allowed wealthy foreign immigrants to enjoy all the benefits of living in the UK, while paying very little in UK taxes because they make the bulk, if not all, of their income abroad.

The regime can be used, or sometimes abused, by foreigners, or British citizens, to avoid paying tax altogether. While in principle they are required to pay tax in the countries where income is earned, the fact that they live (and are tax residents) in the UK makes it easier to arrange their affairs and end up paying little or no tax at all.

The result is that many of the wealthiest families living in the UK are not contributing to direct taxation in the UK. The claim is that the system is still useful because these people tend to contribute indirectly, maintaining a small army of servants and service providers, who themselves pay income tax. Non-doms may also pay VAT on expensive goods and services in the UK.

Kit Malthouse, an ally of Mr Johnson, said Mr Sunak had been a "remarkable force for good" in British politics. The Policing Minister added that revelations about Ms Murty's non dom tax status was "not ideal". But he said the Chancellor was a "smart, clever, committed politician" who had helped steer the economy through the worst of the pandemic.

Yet Shadow Home Secretary Yvette Cooper said Mr Sunak's family should pay tax in the same way as everyone else and should not enjoy "special arrangements" to reduce their bills.

She added: "I don't think the Chancellor gets that. That raises real questions about his judgment."

Ms Murty, who remains an Indian citizen, announced on Friday that she would now pay UK taxes on all her worldwide income as she did not want her status to be a distraction for her husband.

It has been estimated that being non dom could have saved her £20million in taxes on dividends from her shares in Infosys, an Indian IT company founded by her father.

Mr. Sunak was in Santa Monica last week where the couple own a £5.5m seafront penthouse, and it is no secret in Westminster that Mr Sunak is attracted to the idea of a future life in California, a place he reportedly referred to as "home" during a recent official visit here. If this episode does prove the undoing of his Prime Ministerial ambitions, the expectation among friends is that he will move his family to Santa Monica and perhaps pursue a career in Silicon Valley.

of the rules. However he added: "I now humbly accept that I was. But I think the best thing I can do now is, having settled the fine, is focus on the job in hand. That's what I'm going to do."

Sir Keir Starmer, a former Director of Public Prosecutions, said that the police's decision to issue Mr Johnson with a fixed penalty notice marked the "first time in the history of our country that a Prime Minister has been found to be in breach of the law".

The Labour leader accused Mr Johnson of "repeatedly" lying about what happened during lockdown in Downing Street. Sir Keir also argued that the Tory leader and Mr Sunak had "dishonoured" the losses suffered by members of the public who did actually follow the Government's pandemic rules.

Full support

He said people "made the most unimaginable, heart-wrenching sacrifices and many were overcome by guilt."

"But the guilty men are the Prime Minister and the Chancellor. Britain deserves better, they have to go."

A spokesman for Mrs Johnson, a former Tory Party director of communications, said she had paid her fine, which is understood to have been £50 if settled within 14 days of being issued by police. He added: "Whilst she believed that she was acting in accordance with the rules at the time, Mrs Johnson accepts the Metropolitan Police's findings and apologises unreservedly."

The Transport Secretary Grant Shapps wrote in a tweet: "At [the] end of 2020 I was unable to visit my dad in hospital [for four months] ... so share the anger felt about Downing [Street] fines."

"But I also recognize PM has apologised, accepted responsibility & reformed No 10."

"Now, as he leads the West's response to Putin's evil war he has my full support."

TARGETED: Tory MP Michael Gove

End of marriage stopped attempt on Minister's life

End Of Marriage Stopped Attempt On Minister's Life

But the Levelling Up Secretary's failed marriage probably saved his life.

Police inquiries revealed how Ali stalked Mr Gove with an eight-inch kitchen knife in his rucksack.

A security source said: "Ali took significant steps to plan the possible murder of Mr Gove. But he aborted the plan after he and his wife split up. It seems the marriage breakdown has probably stopped an attempt...as Ali no longer knew where Mr Gove lived."

An image on the killer's mobile phone showed the minister outside the west London house he shared with his now estranged wife, journalist Sarah Vine.

Ali even listed possible opportunities to easily attack, and a favourite was to ambush Mr Gove while he was out for a morning jog.

He also considered smashing his front door. He noted: "Door is wooden and swings into house. Could be kicked in."

The list, last modified in May, ended with the note: "Scout on Wednesday."

Two months later, Mr Gove left home after his separation.

The terrorist also considered Mike Freer, Conservative MP for Finchley and Golders Green, north London.

The phone showed how he "scoped out" Mr Freer's constituency surgery less than four weeks before he attacked Sir David.

Ali was also caught on CCTV around Westminster as he plotted to murder MPs. But he was put off by the armed police. "I bottled out," he recalled.

He also did internet research on Opposition leader Sir Keir Starmer, Deputy Prime Minister Dominic Raab, Defence Secretary Ben Wallace and the ex-Chancellor Nigel Lawson, aged 90.

Terrorist assassin facing life in jail

■ Jury takes just 18 minutes to find Ali Harbi Ali guilty of murdering Essex MP Sir David Amess

TERRORIST assassin Ali Harbi Ali is facing the rest of his life in jail after he was found guilty of murdering MP Sir David Amess.

Jurors at the Old Bailey took just 18 minutes on Monday to return unanimous verdicts after one of the briefest retirements in living memory.

Ali, 26, was also convicted of preparing acts of terrorism by plotting to kill other politicians, including Levelling Up secretary Michael Gove.

Brendan Cox, the widower of murdered Labour MP Jo Cox, said Ali would "rot in jail and die in ignominy".

Armed with a kitchen knife, Ali murdered Tory Sir David, 69, at a constituency surgery at Belfairs Methodist Church, Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, on October 15 last year.

Ali, of Kentish Town, north London, posed as a new constituent to secure an appointment with the Southend West MP.

He hoped he would be shot dead by police after stabbing the father of five 21 times. But he was arrested in the church by two brave plainclothes officers armed only with batons and incapacitant sprays.

Ali is set to be handed a whole life term.

'ignominy'

Sir David is the second MP in five years to be murdered. Ms Cox, 41, was killed by a far-Right extremist in 2016.

After Ali was convicted, Mr Cox, 43, tweeted: "There was no other possible verdict.

"Like the killing of Jo, all it has achieved politically has been to allow millions of people to learn about David's decency and the causes he cared about.

"The terrorist will rot in jail and die in ignominy. David's name will be remembered, especially by the people of Southend who he served."

Mr Cox added: "Terrorists may cite different ideologies. But what unites them is their desire for infamy, their cowardly attacks on the unarmed and the total failure to advance their cause.

"All of my thoughts and love are with David's family today."

Ali said he had spent at least two years researching which MP to murder.

He killed Sir David because he had voted for air strikes against terror group Islamic State in Syria in 2014 and 2015.

Ali had been assessed by Prevent, the official UK anti-radicalisation scheme. But it is understood that in 2015, Prevent deemed he did not pose a significant danger of terrorist violence and his case was closed.

At the Old Bailey Ali denied both charges – a decision that meant Sir David's family had to endure the added torment of a trial.

And in a petty act of defiance, he refused to stand up in the dock before the verdicts were announced, mumbling: "I can't for religious reasons."

He was chillingly calm in the witness box last week, when he referred to his victim by his first name as he described the atrocity and his desire to be a "martyr".

Robber threatened to cut off Ashley Cole's fingers in terrifying home invasion

A ROBBER threatened to cut off ex-England footballer Ashley Cole's fingers during a terrifying raid on his home, a court was told this week.

The former Arsenal and Chelsea defender was led around his house wearing only shorts as a gang of burglars demanded jewellery, watches and other valuables, a jury heard.

Kurtis Dilks and three other intruders had smashed their way into the property in Surrey with a sledgehammer, it was alleged.

Both Cole and his partner Sharon Canu had their hands bound with cable ties, Nottingham Crown Court was told.

Dilks, 34, is also accused of being part of a six-strong gang that allegedly stole the £3.75million Portland Tiara from the Welbeck Estate, Notts, in 2018.

In a series of "ruthlessly executed" burglaries, it is claimed the raiders also struck at the home of ex-England and Spurs midfielder Tom Huddlestone, 35, and his wife.

Cole, 41, and Ms Canu, in her 30s, were targeted in January 2020, said Michael Brady, QC, prosecuting, as he opened the case against 11 defendants. The couple were at home with their two small children and had settled down to watch a film when the burglars broke in, Mr Brady said.

He told the jury: "Mr Cole mentioned that one of the attackers, a stocky more aggressive man who also spoke with an Irish accent, kept saying, 'Let's cut his fingers'.

"At the time, he was armed with a pair of pliers.

"Despite the efforts of the stocky robber to attack him with pliers, the robber who Mr Cole described as the 'boss man', prevented the attack from going ahead."

The gang escaped with watches, mobile phones, cash, a Gucci bag, headphones and a BMW smart key worth thousands.

Dilks, of Nottingham, Ashley Cumberpatch and Andrew MacDonald, both of no fixed address, are accused of conspiring to rob Huddlestone's wife, Joanna Dixon, of £500,000 of jewellery and handbags, including her wedding and engagement rings. Jurors were told Ms Dixon, who was alone at home in Lincolnshire, had her hands tied behind her back with cable ties.

The defendants deny all charges. The trial continues.

■ UK wife carrying race makes a comeback

COVID may not last forever but some British traditions certainly seem to.

A case in point: the UK Wife Carrying Race, which made a comeback on Sunday after a two-year Covid break.

Alex Bone and Millie Barnham braved hazards including hay bale obstacles and water lobbed by spectators for 1,264ft to cross the line first.

Male or female carriers were allowed and the "wife" could be any willing male or female adult.

All "wives" had to weigh at least 50kg – just under 8st – with anyone lighter wearing a rucksack with tins of baked beans or other ballast to meet the rules.

Heavy going: The pastime dates back nearly 900 years

Alex and Millie also took home a barrel of local ale from the annual race in Dorking, Surrey. And they received £250 to help them get to July's World Wife Carrying Championships in Finland.

A Pot Noodle and some dog food were awarded to the last-placed couple.

Event organisers Trionium say wife-carrying has its roots in Viking marauders 12 centuries ago and went on for 300 years.

The latest version, which began in 2008, brought the pastime back after nearly 900 years.

It was held annually until Covid struck, with the last race in February 2020.

LUXE LIFE: Brooklyn and Nicola arrive in their $500,000 whip

Spend it like Beckham!

Brooklyn Beckham and Nicola Peltz drove towards their future lives into a classic set of wheels from the past this weekend following their epic $3m Florida wedding.

The husband and wife cruised into the bride's family's stunning Florida estate in a gorgeous electric 1954 Jaguar XK140, a wedding present from their proud parents on day three of the star-studded extravaganza.

Their romantic arrival came minutes after Posh and Becks rolled up in the same type of vintage-style vehicle.

Guests at the Palm Beach bash included proud parents David and Victoria, Gordon Ramsay, TV star Eva Longoria, tennis champs Serena and Venus Williams and Victoria's former Spice Girls band mates Mel B and Mel C.

Brooklyn, 23, and 27-year-old Nicola have been friends since 2017 but started dating in October 2019. They danced for the first time as a married couple to a singer performing Elvis hit Can't Help Falling in Love.

Guests joined in with the loved-up pair as DJ Fat Tony – who played at Harry and Meghan's wedding – spun hits including the Ben E King classic Stand By Me. The Beckham family took centre stage at the ceremony, with Brooklyn's sister Harper, 10, a bridesmaid. His brothers Romeo, 19, and Cruz, 17, were his best men.

In hist last race, amateur jockey savors 'fairytale' Grand National win

■ 50-1 shot credited with reunited William and Kate

JOCKEY Sam Waley-Cohen is already being tipped to be named 2022 Sports Personality of The Year after his fairytale Grand National win – dedicated to his tragic brother.

Amateur jockey Sam, making his last competitive appearance, won Saturday's world famous steeplechase on the 50/1 outsider Noble Yeats, who dad Robert bought just two months ago.

After his win the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge tweeted: "Huge congratulations to @swaleycohen. What a way to retire!"

The 39-year-old is credited with reuniting pal Kate Middleton with Prince William after they split in 2007 while dating.

He invited them to a party at his 17th-century Oxfordshire mansion. In weeks they were back together and holidaying in the Seychelles.

Bookies say Sam's odds of winning the Sports Personality vote in December have halved to 50/1.

Coral said: "Now having ended his career with victory in the famous Aintree race, Sam Waley-Cohen surely has to be in the running for this year's BBC award."

Sam went to boarding school with Kate and she helped raise funds for a ward in his brother's Thomas's memory at Oxford's John Radcliffe Hospital.

Thomas died aged 20 of bone cancer in 2004. After Saturday's race, Sam said: "These days are big family days, and obviously Thomas isn't with us, so you always think about him on these days. I always ride with his initials on my saddle.

I do think he is sitting on my back.

"It's a fairytale, a fantasy. There's a lot of love and gratefulness."

Sam, his dad, the winning horse and trainer Emmet Mullins had a homecoming parade in County Carlow, Ireland.

Sam has been riding for 23 years and won the Cheltenham Gold Cup and had four other top-10 National finishes. After his win he said he would celebrate with a cup of tea.

Waley-Cohen – a father-of-three – also owns 250 dental practices.

Aintree's 70,000 sellout on Saturday follows Covid lock-outs.

Tory MP Ahmad Khan facing jail for sexual assault

TORY MP Imran Ahmad Khan has been warned he could be jailed after being found guilty of sexually assaulting a 15-year-old boy.

The victim claimed he was not "taken seriously" when he made the allegation to party officials days before the 48-year-old was elected in 2019 as Wakefield MP.

Now 29, the man contacted cops after Khan helped Boris Johnson win a large Commons majority.

This week a jury convicted Khan following about five hours of deliberations at Southwark Crown Court. His solicitors have said he will appeal.

Following the verdict, the Conservative Party said already-suspended Khan has been expelled with "immediate effect". The MP will be thrown out of the Commons if he is jailed for over a year, or he could be subject to a petition to oust him.

The judge, Mr Justice Baker, who will sentence Khan at a later date, freed him on bail but warned "all sentencing options, including immediate custody, are being considered".

The nine-day trial heard how Khan plied the teenager with gin upstairs, pushed him on to a bed and asked him to watch pornography before the attack at a house in Staffordshire in 2008.

The victim told the jury he was left feeling "scared, vulnerable, numb, shocked and surprised" after his feet and legs were touched within "a hair's breadth" of his privates.

The boy ran to his parents but police took no action as he did not make a formal complaint. But "it all came flooding back" when he learned Khan was standing in the general election.

He said he "vividly" remembered the gin taken to the party by Khan, who told him he was "good looking".

The MP, who is gay and a Muslim, denied the attack.

Brits in LA

From wellies to flip flops....

What bonkers weather we've been having!

I've just got back from a quick trip England and literally experienced "Four Seasons in One Day". It started with snow, that turned to hailstones followed by gusty winds, a fair bit of heavy rain punctuated with brief periods of glorious sunshine. It was very strange, particularly as I happened to be in a house that was raining out front but wasn't in the back. This has happened to me only once before but after talking to a few people I've learned that it isn't actually that unusual. I guess it's got to stop somewhere.

The unpredictability makes it really difficult to pack appropriately, fortunately I had brought both wellies and flip flops. Although, according to my Facebook newsfeed it appears that Los Angeles experienced a fair amount of extreme weather too?

Over on the Brits in LA page everyone is sharing the intel on where to buy Easter Eggs in LA - for those of you not on Facebook apparently you can still get them at Ye Olde Kings Head in Santa Monica, The Hare and Hounds in Thousand Oaks, Kitty O'Sheas in Eagle Rock, Oh Fancy That! in Encino or Coco and Candy in Studio City. Make sure to call ahead as they could well be sold out by the time you are reading this.

The other hot topic is still travel - at the moment there are no restrictions or extra requirements when traveling to the UK but to enter the US you will still need to take a test (and produce a negative result). There is some confusion over when the test has to be taken, some people say within 24 hours of your departure, however I found that it can be taken anytime the day before or the day of your flight. I also managed to find an affordable 'fit to fly test' through Randox. It only cost £11, although this week I noticed they had increased the price to £13.50 which is still a bargain compared to most of the other options. I was able to do 'click & collect' from the local corner shop although you can pay extra to have it delivered. Best of all I was able to self-test at home and was only required to submit a photograph of the result along with a scan of the barcode from the test they had sold me.

I had my "too good to be true?" doubts but took the risk and received an official certificate within the hour and that was accepted by my airline's verification process shortly after. The only negative is that you do need a smartphone or tablet to download the app and submit your test result but I did see there was an option to do it on someone's else's device. So if you don't own one, you can still ask a friend or family member to help you as once the result is uploaded you shouldn't need to access the app again.

I did wonder why it wasn't an observed test but also appreciated the level of trust given, as really why would anyone take the risks involved in falsifying results? To be honest it did half cross my mind that if I wanted to spend a little more time in England I could ask someone with Covid to lend me a sample.... Visit this link covid.randoxhealth.com for more details and make sure to read the description carefully and choose the one that says "CertiFly"

If you need a last minute test at the airport many of our members are recommending a company called Halo that operates out of Heathrow. You can learn

Here are two fun photos from April 12's packed Brits in LA Pub Quiz - the last one I hosted before beginning my two-week break to Italy and elsewhere.

The first one (top) shows my two excellent stand-in hosts, Robert Dimitri (April 19) and newlywed Joanna Duff (April 26) - Jo trying on my jacket for size (don't get too used to it, Jo!).

If you haven't yet joined me for the weekly quiz you are missing an evening of fun, banter and general knowledge. Not to mention some fierce competition to take first prize. Can you knock the current winning team (above), off their perch? There's only one way to find out!

See you back at the Market Tavern on Tuesday May 3rd!

Stargazing with Annie Shaw

ARIES: Now is a good time now to get ready for life to be on track. Do not waste precious time thinking about what you have missed out on or could have done better. Happy Birthday!

TAURUS: You should be feeling more positive and this is due to your lovely boss Venus beaming on you. Finances will be healthy, so do not be overly concerned about that area.

GEMINI: This is a good time to catch up with unfinished business of any kind. Make a schedule and stick to it. It will be good to just focus on it a day at a time.

CANCER: Your moods can change quickly as a rule and so it's good that Venus is giving in you a boost for a nice change. You have some stuff to finish up so get it out of your way.

Agonizing end to Chelsea's European Cup defence

Blues win in vain as brilliant Modric inspires Real

Chelsea's reign as European champions came to an agonizing end despite beating Real Madrid on a night of high drama at the Bernabeu Stadium on Tuesday.

In a Champions League epic, Mason Mount's wonderful finish and Antonio Rudiger's powerful header wiped out Real's 3-1 first-leg advantage and brought the quarter-final tie level in Spain's capital.

Thomas Tuchel's side were outstanding throughout and Timo Werner's clever finish from an angle put them ahead for the first time on aggregate and within sight of a place in the semi-finals.

But substitute Rodrygo - after a stunning pass by Luka Modric - forced extra time with a volleyed finish before Karim Benzema, a hat-trick hero in the first leg at Stamford Bridge six days earlier, headed the decisive goal in the 96th minute to send Real through 5-4 on aggregate.

Benzema, who had earlier headed against the bar on a rollercoaster night, was unmarked when he scored to break Chelsea's hearts after Rudiger slipped inside the box.

Even after what turned out to be the clincher, Hakim Ziyech, Kai Havertz and Jorginho went close to forcing a penalty shootout.

In the end Chelsea, who played superbly, were made to pay for their first-leg performance as Tuchel's side fell just short of producing one of the great comebacks in the competition.

REAL JOY at the Bernebeu....but it was misery for Chelsea

Reds B-team keep Benfica at bay

Liverpool remain in the hunt for a historic quadruple after a thrilling draw with Benfica secured a Champions League semi-final against Villarreal.

Having established a 3-1 lead in Lisbon, Liverpool extended their advantage with Ibrahima Konate's powerful 21st-minute header from a Kostas Tsimikas corner.

Benfica equalised through Goncalo Ramos' excellent turn and finish, before Roberto Firmino's two second-half goals - a tap-in followed by a volley - in front of the Kop looked to have put the Reds in control.

But after Roman Yaremchuk broke through to beat Alisson and make it 3-2 on the night, Darwin Nunez scored a late equaliser.

Nunez was then denied by Alisson as Benfica finished strongly but Liverpool held out to advance 6-4 on aggregate.

They now host Villarreal - the club they beat in the semi-finals of the Europa League in 2016 - on 27 April before travelling to Spain for the second leg on 4 May.

Villarreal secured their last-four spot by overcoming Bayern Munich in the quarter-finals.

Liverpool boss Jurgen Klopp said: "I'm really happy because being in a semi-final is so special. "We expect a couple of really difficult games. It will be a tough cookie but we are a tough cookie, so who cares?"

"Villarreal deserved to get through. I know Bayern Munich don't want to hear that."

The semi-final brings Liverpool face-to-face with Villarreal boss Unai Emery, who has won the Europa League four times.

Three of those triumphs came at Sevilla, including victory over Klopp's Liverpool in the 2016 final, and the other with his current club.

Klopp added: "The manager is the king of the cup competitions, so they are experienced and a team full of desire and well organised with top-class players."

PEP: Victorious City 'in big trouble'

■ Hard-fought Atleti victory comes at big costs to key players

Manchester City's superb Champions League victory over Atletico Madrid could have come at a cost, with Pep Guardiola admitting his side are "in big trouble" as a result of injuries picked up in the Spanish capital.

Both Kevin de Bruyne and Kyle Walker were forced off as City staged a defiant defensive display to claim a 0-0 draw at the Wanda Metropolitano, securing a 1-0 aggregate win.

Guardiola did not reveal the extent of the injuries but was clearly concerned, with Saturday's FA Cup semi-final against Liverpool to follow.

The Reds made seven changes from Sunday's high-intensity 2-2 Premier League draw at City, as Jurgen Klopp rested a number of key players in their Champions League last-eight tie with Benfica on Wednesday.

But Guardiola made just two for the tough test against the Spanish champions.

"Today we celebrate because it is the third time in Manchester City's history we are in the Champions League semi-finals," the City boss told BT Sport.

"But we can't forget we played three days ago, travelled, came here, have a lot of injuries now and I don't know what will happen in the next weeks.

"We cannot play all the time and score four or five goals, we are human beings - we come from a difficult game against Liverpool.

"We are in big trouble." Wednesday's second leg in Madrid was a bruising encounter all round for City, who had to contend with an Atletico side showing far greater ambition than in a first leg where they failed to have a single effort at goal.

Diego Simeone's side were also extremely physical, allowing this to spill over into ill-discipline late on, with Felipe seeing red for a dangerous follow-through on Phil Foden, having earned his first yellow card for an elbow to the same player that drew blood.

The second yellow sparked an on-field confrontation between both sets of players and those on the two benches. Former City defender Stefan Savic appeared to headbutt Raheem Sterling and pull Jack Grealish's hair in the melee.

There was also a suggestion Guardiola had liquid thrown at him as he headed for the tunnel, while there were reports of more clashes and police having to intervene.

"Everyone saw the action, but I have nothing to say," added the City boss.

"It is the champion of Spain and they played with energy and, in the second half, were better than us and we were lucky we didn't concede. In the first half we had chances, overall we are in the semi-finals - it is well deserved.

"The opponent is so tough, all the teams in the Champions League come here and suffer so it is important we go through."

Saturday's FA Cup semi-final with Liverpool is the latest in a crucial run of fixtures for City as they look to claim a Treble of domestic and European trophies.

Guardiola's Premier League leaders and Jurgen Klopp's second-placed Reds are separated by just one point with seven games remaining.

Hammers stun Lyon to reach semis

West Ham United will face Eintracht Frankfurt for a place in the Europa League final after the Hammers secured their first European semi-final in 46 years with a stunning second-leg victory in Lyon on Thursday.

Having held on for a 1-1 first-leg draw in London after playing the entire second half with 10 men, David Moyes' players withstood periods of intense early pressure before sweeping their Ligue 1 opposition aside.

The visitors struck twice in seven minutes at the end of the first half, as Craig Dawson met Pablo Fornals' corner with a superb near-post header before a deflected Declan Rice strike put the Premier League club in total charge.

Jarrod Bowen extended the advantage within three minutes of the restart, slotting in at the end of a sweeping counter-attack, and a deflated Lyon could offer no response as West Ham comfortably saw out a memorable win.

The statement victory set up the biggest match in the club's recent history, against Bundesliga side Frankfurt, who upset Spanish giants Barcelona 3-2 at the Nou Camp to win 4-3 on aggregate.

Foxes making history, says Maddison

James Maddison says Leicester City are creating history after the Foxes produced a superb comeback to beat PSV Eindhoven in the Europa Conference League and reach the club's first European semi-final on Thursday.

Ricardo Pereira scored a dramatic late winner to set up a last-four meeting with Jose Mourinho's Roma, who knocked out Bodo/Glimt.

Following a goalless first leg at King Power Stadium, Eran Zahavi pounced on a mistake by Youri Tielemans to open the scoring before Maddison dragged Leicester level with 13 minutes remaining.

The Foxes midfielder slotted into the top corner from Ayoze Perez's clever cutback and Pereira then fired the winner in the 88th minute to seal a memorable win at the Philips Stadion.

"We are creating history," said Maddison. "It's a brilliant feeling and a brilliant night. We showed that resilience. A great feeling."
