

William's godmother quits Palace in race row

■ Prince condemns "unacceptable" comments made by royal aide

PRINCE William has condemned "unacceptable" comments made by his godmother who quit as a royal aide after being accused of racism.

Lady Susan Hussey, 83, resigned after asking UK-born abuse worker Ngozi Fulani at Buckingham Palace: "What part of Africa are you from?"

As a row overshadowed William's arrival in the US this week, it was claimed that Baroness Hussey was the member of the Royal household originally tasked with helping Meghan, Duchess of Sussex, adjust to life within the Royal Family.

The favourite lady-in-waiting to the late Queen has offered her "profound apologies" for the "unacceptable and deeply regrettable" remarks.

A top courtier for more than 60 years, she was one of three Ladies of the Household to assist the King at formal events.

A spokesman for the Prince of Wales said: "Racism has no place in our society. The comments were unacceptable and it is right that the individual has stepped aside with immediate effect.

'violation'

"He [Prince William] thinks the course of action taken is correct." They added William was not involved in talks prior to her resignation, but he supported it.

The baroness asked Ms Fulani, a leading black advocate for domestic abuse survivors, where she "really came from" at a Palace reception hosted by Queen Camilla on Tuesday.

The chief executive said the Sistah Space charity she set up was based in

Lady Susan Hussey at Royal Ascot with then Prince Charles

Hackney, East London – but Baroness Hussey insisted: "No, what part of Africa are you from?" Among other remarks, she countered: "I can see I'm going to have a challenge getting you to say where you're from."

Ms Fulani said she felt "incredibly insulted" and "traumatised".

Posting the remarks online, she called them a "violation" and said the feeling would "never leave me". She accused Buckingham Palace of institutional racism and called on officials to implement anti-racism training.

She said: "This is bigger than one individual. It's institutional racism.

'missed opportunity'

"As a black person, I found myself in this place where I wanted to say something but what happened would automatically be seen as my fault, it would bring Sistah Space down.

"This woman was relentless and determined I am not British. I was thinking 'What can I do here now?' Nothing. 'Who can I tell?' No one."

She did not welcome Baroness Hussey's resignation, which she said was a missed opportunity for real lessons to be learned, and added that "somebody of senior years" should not "be vilified even though she did it to herself.

"Why don't we just do something different such as pull her up, re-educate, demote her, keep her from public-facing roles? It's horrible that she goes out like this because of ignorance and racism."

Sistah Space delivers anti-racism training in order to tackle barriers that stop black victims of domestic abuse accessing help. It runs workshops cont. on page 2, col. 4

Top cop reveals multiple 'disgusting' threats to murder Duchess of Sussex

SEVERAL plots to kill the Duchess of Sussex were investigated by Scotland Yard, the former head of counter-terrorism revealed this week.

Neil Basu described the threats against Meghan Markle as "disgusting" and "very real".

In an interview with Channel 4 News, Basu was asked if there was more than one genuine threat to the Duchess's life.

The Metropolitan Police Assistant Commissioner replied: "Absolutely. We had teams investigating. People have been prosecuted for those threats."

Presenter Cathy

Newman also asked if there were many "credible threats" against Prince Harry's wife. Basu said: "Absolutely, and if you'd seen the stuff that was written and you were receiving it – the kind of rhetoric that's online, if you don't know what I know, you'd feel under threat all the time."

In his first interview before leaving the Met after 30 years, Mr Basu spoke of his personal experience of racism and revealed how his parents were stoned in the street following Enoch Powell's Rivers of Blood speech in 1968.

In the speech, the politician predicted dire consequences if immigration were to continue.

He provoked a huge reaction which left many non-white Britons feeling threatened.

Basu, who is mixed race, revealed that his outspoken views on racism led to clashes with government figures and may have cost him the top job in policing.

He also spoke of his dismay at the language used by politicians wishing to send illegal immigrants to Rwanda.

'zero tolerance'

Mr Basu, 54, the most senior police officer of colour in Britain, said: "I find some of the commentary coming out of the Home Office inexplicable.

"It is unbelievable to hear a succession of very powerful politicians talking in language that my father would have remembered from 1968. It's horrific.

"I was born in 1968. The Rivers of Blood speech happened on the constituency next to where my parents lived and made their life hell. A mixed-race couple walking through the streets in the 1960s. Stoned."

Neil Basu was head of counter-terrorism from March 2018 to September 2021

Asked about Commissioner Sir Mark Rowley's efforts to root out racist, misogynistic and corrupt officers in the Met, Mr Basu said: "There ought to be a zero tolerance for people who are prejudiced, who are corrupt, who are...have the kind of backgrounds of the ones you've described that shouldn't be anywhere near policing."

Mr Basu agreed with some estimates that suggest there are thousands of rogue officers who need to be sacked. He said: "If you're a police officer watching this and you are – like the vast majority of police officers – a good person who wants to do the right thing, then you have to be the person who doesn't walk by when you see that kind of behaviour."

He said Sir Mark was right to press for more powers to sack officers.

Mr Basu, who was head of counter-terrorism from March 2018 to September 2021, had been in line to become head of the National Crime Agency, Britain's version of the FBI, but did not get the job. Asked why, he said: "I know No10 has previously interfered in me being appointed to positions.

"And the reason for that, I have not been told. I would surmise... that it is because I've been outspoken about issues that do not fit with the current political administration.

"They are wrong. Diversity and inclusion are two of the most important things for policing."

Mr Basu said he was proud to be woke. He told the programme: "Are you alert to issues of racial and social justice? Yes, I am.

"And if that is the definition of woke, I'll wear it as a bumper sticker every day of the week."

The Home Office said: "We are actively pushing for a cultural change in the police, including via a targeted review of police dismissals to ensure officers who are not fit to serve can be swiftly removed."

with groups such as the Met Police, and Ms Fulani said it would be willing to return to Buckingham Palace to oversee training there.

"It is that very training that got us the invitation. It is ironic, therefore, that the thing that we're fighting to end was targeted at me."

Palace aides began an inquiry immediately and invited Ms Fulani to speak to them. A spokesman said:

"We take this incident extremely seriously. Unacceptable and deeply regrettable comments have been made.

"The individual concerned would like to express her profound apologies for the hurt caused and has stepped aside from her honorary role. All members of the household are being reminded of the diversity and inclusivity policies which they are required to uphold."

Ms Fulani had written online that "Lady SH" had "moved my hair to see my name badge. The conversation below took place.

"The rest of the event is a blur."

Women's Equality Party leader Mandu Reid was next to her. She said of the encounter: "We really felt 'Oh, OK, we're being treated almost like trespassers. We're not being treated as if we belong, we're not being embraced as if we are British.'"

Fleetwood Mac's Christine McVie dead at 79

■ "She was truly one-of-a-kind, special and talented beyond measure"

Fleetwood Mac's Christine McVie has died at the age of 79, her family announced on Wednesday.

A statement on Facebook said: "On behalf of Christine McVie's family, it is with a heavy heart we are informing you of Christine's death.

"She passed away peacefully at hospital this morning, Wednesday, November 30th 2022, following a short illness. She was in the company of her family. We kindly ask that you respect the family's privacy at this extremely painful time and we would like everyone to keep Christine in their hearts and remember the life of an incredible human being, and revered musician who was loved universally. RIP Christine McVie."

tributes

The British American rock band, founded in London in 1967, has sold more than 100m records worldwide, making them one of the most successful groups ever. Their best-known songs include Dreams, Go Your Own Way and Everywhere.

The band paid tribute to the singer-songwriter McVie in a statement on Wednesday night following news of her death. "There are no words to describe our sadness at the passing of Christine McVie. She was truly one-of-a-kind, special and talented beyond measure."

The statement on Twitter continued: "She was the best musician anyone could have in their band and the best friend anyone could have in their life.

"We were so lucky to have a life with her. Individually and together, we cherished Christine deeply and are thankful for the amazing memories we have. She will be so very missed."

Despite its tumultuous history, Fleetwood Mac became one of the best-known rock bands of the 1970s and 80s, comprising Mick Fleetwood, Christine and John McVie, Lindsey Buckingham and Stevie Nicks.

'best friend'

Nicks posted a handwritten note on Instagram to pay tribute. "A few hours ago I was told that my best friend in the whole world since the first day of 1975 had passed away," she wrote. "I didn't even know she was ill ... until late Saturday night. I wanted to be in London; I wanted to get to London – but we were told to wait."

Fleetwood wrote that McVie had "left us earthbound folks to listen with bated breath to the sounds of that 'songbird' ... reminding one and all that love is all around us to reach for and touch in this precious life that is gifted to us. Part of my heart has flown away today."

McVie, who was born in 1943 in the Lake District village of Bouth, was originally known as Christine Perfect, her maiden name. She started out with the blues band Chicken Shack, which had a hit with a cover of Etta James' I'd Rather Go Blind, featuring McVie on lead vocals. After marrying John McVie in 1968, she left the band a year later and joined Fleetwood Mac in 1970.

turbulent breakups

After many changes to the lineup, in 1974 Nicks and Buckingham joined, an era that McVie called "pretty sensational". She added: "We had our fights here and there, but there was nothing like the music or the intensity onstage. We weren't doing anything in Britain, so just decamped to America and fell into this huge musical odyssey."

Their 1975 self-titled album featured hits written by McVie: Over My Head and Say You Love Me. Christine and John McVie divorced in 1976 but remained friends and maintained a working relationship.

Rumours, released in 1977, became one of the bestselling albums of all time and included hits such as Second Hand News and You Make Loving Fun. In addition to several multi-platinum tracks, the record sold more than 40m copies worldwide. Speaking of that period, McVie recently told the Guardian: "We were having a blast and it felt incredible to us that we were writing those songs."

The album was recorded as "a pop album" and took its name and themes from the many turbulent breakups within the band and their drug use at the time. McVie said her drugs of choice were "cocaine and champagne".

Trauma. Trau-ma," McVie later told Rolling Stone of the making of the album. "The sessions were like a cocktail party every night – people everywhere. We ended up staying in these weird hospital rooms ... and of course John and me were not exactly the best of friends."

This year, she described their relationship as "never as melodramatic as Stevie and Lindsey" and said they "occasionally write to each other or phone each other".

McVie also released solo albums, the second of which, 1984's Christine McVie, featured the hits Got a Hold on Me and Love Will Show Us How.

She later married the musician Eddy Quintella, who co-wrote songs with her, including Little Lies from the Fleetwood Mac album Tango in the Night. They divorced in 2003.

She took a hiatus from the band in 1998. "I just wanted to embrace being in the English countryside and not have to troop around on the road," she said to the Guardian.

Why you need dental insurance in retirement.

Medicare doesn't pay for dental care.¹

As good as Medicare is, it was never meant to cover everything. If you want protection, you need to purchase individual insurance.

Early detection can prevent small problems from becoming expensive ones.

The best way to avoid large dental bills is preventive care. Experts recommend checkups twice a year.

Previous dental work can wear out.

Your odds of having a dental problem only go up as you age.²

Treatment is expensive — especially the services people over 50 often need.

Unexpected bills, like $189 for a filling, or $1,219 for a crown³ can be a real burden, especially if you're on a fixed income.

When you're comparing plans ...

- ▶ Look for coverage that helps pay for major services.
- ▶ Look for coverage with no deductibles.
- ▶ Shop for coverage with no annual maximum on cash benefits.

Simply put — without dental insurance, there may be an important gap in your healthcare coverage.

Star Simon helps save London's endangered...gas lamps

FOUR Weddings star Simon Callow was basking in the warm glow of approval of his fellow luvvies this week after helping save some of London's gas lamps from cost-cutting.

Westminster City Council wanted to replace all 268 of the lamps with LED bulbs. Officials argued it would save £90,000 a year in fuel and speed up the regular repairs which can leave locals in darkness.

But 174 gas lamps will now survive following a campaign by Simon, Griff Rhys Jones, 69, and preservation group the London Gasketeers.

They warned of the

campaigners fear the lamps may still be lost because the council says much depends on

Less than half of all Brits now describe themselves as Christian

■ Demographic changes mean white residents now form a minority in the two biggest cities in England and Wales

For The First Time Less Than Half The Population Describe Themselves As Christian

FOR the first time less than half the population describe themselves as Christian, census data reveals.

In a sign of how the nation is changing, white residents form a minority in the two biggest cities in England and Wales.

Of the near-60 million people in last year's survey, 46.2 per cent (27.5 million) described themselves as Christian – a big drop from the 59.3 per cent (33.3 million) recorded 10 years earlier.

The fall coincided with a 44 per cent rise in the number of Muslims. The Islam faith has recorded more followers, rising from 4.8 per cent (2.7 million) in 2011 to 6.5 per cent (3.9 million) last year.

Some 37.2 per cent of people (22.2 million) declared that they had "no religion", the second most common response after Christian.

Analysts say the findings reflect an "increasingly multi-cultural society".

Self-described white Britons made up 52 per cent (581,000) of Birmingham's population in 2011 – in last year's census the figure was 43 per cent (491,000). London's corresponding ratio fell from 45 per cent (4.9 million) in 2011 to 37 per cent (4.7 million) in 2021.

The Archbishop of York, the Most Rev Stephen Cottrell, said the fall in Christians was "not a great surprise" but claimed it was important to remember that Christianity is "the largest movement on Earth."

"We have left behind the era when many people almost automatically identified as Christian, but other surveys consistently show how the same people still seek spiritual truth and wisdom and a set of values to live by.

"This winter – perhaps more so than for a long time – people right across the country, some in desperate need, will be turning to their local church not only for spiritual hope but practical help. We will be there for them, in many cases providing food and warmth."

big rise

Across England and Wales, 81.7 per cent of the population said they were white, including non-Britons – down from 86 per cent in 2011.

Some 9.3 per cent called themselves Asian British, up from 7.5 per cent, while 2.5 per cent identified as Black, Black British, Black Welsh, Caribbean-African or African – a rise from 1.8 per cent. Other ethnicities were 1.6 per cent.

The census found 59.1 per cent of people in Leicester were from ethnic minority groups, a big rise from 1991 when black and minority ethnic residents made up just more a quarter of residents.

Minority ethnic residents also formed more than half the population of Luton (54.8 per cent) and Birmingham (51.4). Fourteen local authorities had more than half their population identifying as non-white groups, the most being Newham, London (69.2 per cent).

Outside the capital the largest non-white ratio was in Slough, Berks (64 per cent).

The figures, collated by the Office for National Statistics (ONS), form a snapshot of ethnicity on March 21 2021. The other areas with a majority non-white population are all in London: Harrow, Tower Hamlets, Ealing, Hounslow, Barking & Dagenham, Hillingdon and Croydon.

Redbridge is the area with the highest ratio of people identifying as Asian (47.3 per cent) – the corresponding spot outside London after Slough is Leicester (43.4).

Lewisham recorded the highest percentage of people identifying as black (26.8) – Manchester had the most away from London (11.9).

The ratio of respondents reporting no religion has soared from 14.8 to 37.2 per cent in 20 years.

The places recording the most residents without a faith were Caerphilly, Blaenau Gwent and Rhondda Cynon Taf in South Wales, as well as Norwich and Brighton in England.

They were among 11 areas where more than half the population stated they had "no religion", including Bristol, Hastings and Ashfield, Notts. The places with the least were Redbridge, Harrow and Slough.

Emma Raducanu shows off her MBE outside Windsor Castle this week

Emma's joy after netting a gong from King Charles

Emma Raducanu has spoken of her gratitude after receiving her MBE from King Charles.

The tennis star, 20, beamed in a £5,300 Dior outfit as she posed at Windsor Castle.

She was presented with the honour after her US Open victory last year when just 18.

Emma was the first British woman to win a grand slam since Virginia Wade in 1977 – and the first qualifier.

She said: "It's been great to receive my honour today from His Majesty the King

– I feel extremely grateful." Emma was with her dad Ion, a guiding influence in her rise to tennis stardom.

Labour MP Dame Nia Griffith, who also collected her honour, said Emma now faces "challenges" but added: "It is wonderful to see young people being praised and being rewarded"

Austen gets the nod as nation's best novelist

JANE Austen has been voted the greatest British author of all time.

The Pride And Prejudice novelist, born in 1775 in Hampshire, beat Harry Potter creator JK Rowling to top spot.

Charlie And The

Chocolate Factory author Roald Dahl came joint third with William Shakespeare.

The poll of 2,000 Britons was for Amazon Books to celebrate the work of its charitable arm, the Amazon Literary Partnership.

Lord Of The Rings creator JRR Tolkien and Sherlock Holmes author Sir Arthur Conan Doyle also made the list.

A fifth of those quizzed believe they have a novel in them – they just need the space and time to write it.

Home for the Holidays? Don't miss some classic British festive fun

■ Magical city lights, panto and Christmas markets make Britain mesmerizing at Yuletide

HEADING home for Christmas is an annual rite for many Brits and as Covid slowly recedes into the past (at least hopefully), many locals will be heading back to Blighty for some truly British festive fun.

But while it's all well and good to enjoy family and friends and perhaps a pint or two down your favorite pub, don't forget there is a wealth of seasonal attractions and events that are well worth fitting into your schedule.

Whether you are looking for a traditional British Christmas with a holiday-themed afternoon tea or want to explore the beautiful twinkling lights and iconic Christmas markets, Britain has endless activities for everyone.

Illuminating the crisp winter streets with lights each winter, these festive displays fill the air with Christmas cheer and can be switched on from as early as mid-November. Now a well-known tradition, twinkling fairy lights can be seen in countless parts of Britain, from the palatial corners of Regent Street in the capital to quaint towns such as Harrogate in Yorkshire. Electric bulbs were first used to add a touch of magic to the winter festivities in 1881, a year that saw the Savoy Theatre in London's West End become the first building in the world to be entirely lit by electricity.

Panto!

From fairy lights on the streets to the limelight of the stage, pantomimes are a Christmas tradition enjoyed by family members both young and old. Who doesn't love an extravagant retelling of classic tales such as Dick Whittington, Snow White and Seven Dwarves and Cinderella? Pantos are comedic, heart-warming shows which regularly call for audience participation, having you join in with the teasing of certain characters – with raucous 'booming' and 'hissing' sounds reverberating around local theatres.

The history of pantomimes dates back to the Middle Ages, where religious tales highlighting the triumph of good over evil were performed.

Trafalgar Square

One of London's best-known festive traditions is the annual Christmas tree displayed in the heart of Trafalgar Square. First gifted to Britain from Norway in 1947, in thanks for the country's support during the Second World War, the tree has become an annual tradition and sits proudly at the centre of the square bedecked in dazzling strings of fairy lights. Meanwhile, many families also choose to celebrate the holidays with their own ornately decorated Christmas tree, a custom first introduced to the people of Britain by Queen Charlotte, wife of King George III, in 1800.

Christmas Markets

The Christmas Markets are one of Britain's fondest traditions, perfect for holiday shopping and exploring some of the UK's loveliest cities. Offering twinkling lights, mulled wine and more,

Come and buy: a stall at Bristol's famed Christmas market the Christmas Markets provide the perfect holiday atmosphere and fabulous gifts for all ages.

Some of the best include:

Birmingham's Frankfurt Christmas Market

The largest authentic German Christmas Market outside of Germany or Austria brings show-stopping program of live music and carol singers and the German Spirit with traditional German goods, and personalized gifts.

In its 80+ stalls, not only will you find a fine range of traditional, personalized gifts but you'll also get the chance to channel the German spirit while feasting on schnitzels, bratwursts, glühwein, and weissbeer. The market is conveniently located in Victoria Square, and comes complete with a show-stopping programme of live music and carol singers that's set to bring the party atmosphere to festive shopping.

A TOUCH OF GERMAN: Birmingham's magical Frankfurt Christmas market

When? Thursday 3 November to Friday 23 December 2022.

Winter at Southbank Centre: The popular WinterMarket at London's Southbank Centre is a seasonal pleasure that sits alongside a range of family shows and festive fun as the banks of the River Thames are transformed into a winter wonderland.

The market is a seasonal pleasure that sits alongside a range of family shows and festive fun as the banks of the River Thames are usually transformed into a winter wonderland. Wander along the South Bank and you'll discover strings of decorations and cute illuminated wooden cabins selling Christmas gifts, from the quirky to the traditional, as well as mince pies, spiced cider and steaming mugs of mulled wine and hot chocolate. Global cuisines are often available too, in the form of festive treats to gift or to eat there and then.

Cardiff Christmas Market: Welsh readers can shake off their World Cup disappointment by exploring the streets of Cardiff City Center while enjoying the festive spirit and picking up unique gifts for friends and family.

And for historic ambience meets winter style, you cannot do better than the Bath Christmas Market, where 150+ pop-up chalets usually set up on the city's pretty Georgian streets. Marking its 20th anniversary year in 2022, you can expect a real treasure trove of gifts to take home, whether that's jewellery, homewares, or decorations. 99% of all products were handmade in Britain or abroad with a Fair Trade certification. So, if you're looking for an eco-savvy holiday shopping experience next year, this is the market for you.

The World Cup of Trivia...

It's the greatest sporting event on the planet...no, not the World Cup, Brits in LA Pub Quiz of course!

Join us for more fun at the Market Tavern on Tues December 6 (7.30 kick off) where quizmaster Sandro Monetti will be celebrating his birthday.

Celebrating at the latest contest were trivia winners Naughty Bits With Gravy while Team Scabs lifted the much prized fourth placed prize, a potato, like it was the World Cup.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF JORDAN A. ESTERKIN
Case No. 22STPB11446

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of JORDAN A. ESTERKIN
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Richard W. Esterkin in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Richard W. Esterkin be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on Dec. 23, 2022 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 11 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: WENDELL TSAO
CASE NO. 19STPB03423

To all heirs, beneficiaries and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of WENDELL TSAO. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by LEEANN HITCHMAN AND BRETT HITCHMAN, CO-TRUSTEE OF THE PANTSAO TRUST in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that LEEANN HITCHMAN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 01/24/23 at 8:30AM in Dept. 44 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Rugby Union: with World Cup looming Eddie Jones edges closer to being canned EDDIE Jones has been told that results are not good enough after England's worst year since 2008.

Defeat by South Africa at the weekend capped a demoralizing autumn and meant Jones' side failed to win for an eighth time since February.

England were booed off the pitch at Twickenham on Saturday and the verdict of Rugby Football Union chief executive Bill Sweeney tallied with that of fed-up fans.

Sweeney said: "Like them, we are really disappointed with the results of the Autumn Nations Series.

"Despite strong individual performances and some great new talent coming into the team, the overall results are not where we expect them to be."

In a week in which Sweeney was accused by MPs of being "asleep on the job", the RFU chief made a point of assuring supporters that their feelings matter.

Equally significantly, there were no words of support for Jones.

Contrast that with the spring review into England's Six Nations flop, which trumpeted the union's continued "full support" for the Australian and the "solid progress" of his team.

There was no sign of progress on Saturday. World Cup-winning head coach, Sir Clive Woodward, described it as the "worst week in English rugby history" and added "the game in this country is a total shambles".

This is not an isolated view either and, 284 days out from the next World Cup, there is a clear sense, perhaps for the first time, that patience is running out.

England have lost six Test matches in 2022 and also went down in the eight-try humbling in June by a Barbarians invitation side reduced to 14 men.

An RFU review panel will meet this week to discuss "how improvements can be made" ahead of the Six Nations, which starts at home to Scotland on February 4.

There remains scepticism that any meaningful change will come of this as those on the panel serve under condition of anonymity.

Jones said on Saturday night: "I don't really

ON THE OUTSIDE? I've got a plan for how England can win it, but it doesn't go in a perfect line," Eddie Jones told reporters following the weekend loss care what other people think."

That was in response to a suggestion that England are now regarded as outsiders for the World Cup, but that is the take, more generally, of a coach from the 'my way or the highway' school.

"The reviews are always uncomfortable when you're not winning," Jones added.

"I'm sure the fans feel that I don't know how to coach, but it's a progression to the World Cup. I've got a plan for how England can win it, but it doesn't go in a perfect line."

He would prefer the public and his employers to keep the faith but, after what the Springboks did to England in the scrum and the air, faith has left town. Only results will change the mood and England's Saracens hooker, Jamie George, says that delivering in the next Six Nations for the first time in three years is non-negotiable.

George said: "We want the English rugby community to be excited about what we are putting on the field.

"The way to do that is through results. And the time to do that is now."

England:

being substituted to a standing ovation. After the match, he revealed that he pointed to the sky after his first goal because he had just lost a close friend to cancer.

He said: "He was a great person, and he came into my life really. So it was for him."

Asked if it was his best ever game for England, he added: "For me winning trophies have always been the happiest moments.

The game finished with Wales looking increasingly tired and desperate and England rampant as Southgate brought on more substitutes.

Buoyant England fans taunted the Welsh with chants of: "You're going home in the morning."

They also booed enthusiastically when a camera shot of controversial Fifa President Gianni Infantino – watching in the stadium – flashed up on the big screen.

As the final whistle blew, they stayed behind to be applauded by the team and sang along to Sweet Caroline.

And fans praised England's stars and commiserated with the Welsh.

Civil engineer Matthew Pullin, 30, from Cumbria, said: "A win's a great result as there are no pushovers at the World Cup.

"The Welsh battled but we just had too much quality and now we'll have to show more to go further in the tournament.

"I've been here for five games and the atmosphere has been terrific. It'll be tough but I'm hoping we can go all the way."

Matthew's dad Ian, 55, added: "We just need to keep our heads and beat stronger opponents. I reckon we can do it – all the way to the final."

Sales manager Lee Goulthorp, 40, watched with his father Phil from a £850-a-head hospitality box with unlimited wine and beer in an otherwise booze-free venue.

He said: "This is the group game every England fan wanted to see. It may be my last chance to experience a World Cup with my dad and we wanted to make the most of it."

Phil, a retired security worker, said: "It's been wonderful to be here and see England do the business and we're desperate to see England go all the way and win it."

Wales' famous Red Wall fans said they were proud of their heroes. Steve Coppack, 66, said: "The result is disappointing, but the lads did OK. They did their best and they can go home proud. It was always going to be a tall order."

Bale:

tailored coat-tails, Wales made it all the way to the semi-final.

But Qatar 2022 ended with barely a shot in anger fired. Not even from Bale. He is still Wales's Superman but, at 33, the cape is a little worn and frayed these days.

He had so little football under his belt going into this World Cup that it was asking a lot for him simply to flick a switch and turn it on for his country again – and he couldn't.

He put away the penalty against the USA that earned Wales their solitary point but otherwise he was disappointingly peripheral.

He only had 40 touches in all against the USA and Iran combined – and last night was a continuation of the theme.

Nullifying Bale was exactly what England wanted to do. Shut down the Wales captain and you shut down Wales and they did exactly that.

Such was England's dominance that, playing on the right side of the Wales attack, it took until the eighth minute for him to even touch the ball last night. His pass went straight into touch to ironic cheers from the England fans.

The balance of play meant Bale's role in the first half was almost totally defensive. He can defend as he showed with a decent sliding tackle on Luke Shaw but filling spaces and marking up was not what the legend was built upon.

Still, where there is Bale there is hope. All he needed – all Wales needed – was one set-piece, one half-chance in the second half. But fate and Bale's increasingly unreliable body, meant that was destined never to happen.

His failure to reappear for the second half must have been a huge psychological blow for Wales. In their heads Rob Page's men must have known the game was probably up and England's double punch at the start of the second half did for them. The rest was merely decoration.

The Welsh choir, outnumbered but throaty, sang on at the Ahmad Bin Ali Stadium but there was a mournful tone as the realization dawned that they were – as the England fans uncharitably pointed out – going home in the morning. At least they made it this far. But after a 64-year wait Wales would have hoped for more from their desert odyssey.

For that to have happened they needed their magic man to deliver but time catches up with even the masters of the game.

England cruise into last 16

England stormed to victory in the "Battle of Britain" at the World Cup on Tuesday to set up a tricky last-16 tie against Senegal.

The Three Lions will now play the Lions of Teranga after beating Wales 3-0 to finish top of qualifying Group B.

Marcus Rashford and Phil Foden were the heroes of a historic clash at the Ahmad Bin Ali Stadium – the first time the teams had played each other in the World Cup.

Rashford struck either side of Foden's goal in a second-half romp which quenched the Red Dragons' fire and means England face Senegal on Sunday evening.

While Wales are on their way home – finishing bottom of the group in their first World Cup finals since 1958.

The "local derby" atmosphere was further intensified by the group being so open as the remaining games began.

Both England and Wales could have gone through had the Welsh won and the other group game – between the USA and Iran – gone their way.

But in the end, the English were too strong and the USA beat Iran 1-0 to finish second and secure a knockout tie against the Netherlands.

The 45,000 capacity crowd included thousands of England and Wales supporters and blocks of red shirts and white shirts dominated the stands.

Security staff tightened pre-entry bag searches after a pitch invader draped in a rainbow LGBTQ+ flag struck at Portugal's match against Uruguay on Monday.

Both sets of fans applauded each country's national anthems, despite a small number of England fans booing the Welsh.

Rob Page's Red Dragons formed a team huddle as England warmed up before kick-off and both teams "took the knee" in the familiar anti-racism gesture.

Southgate changed his line-up from the lacklustre 0-0 draw against the USA – starting with Manchester United's Rashford, Manchester City's Foden and Kyle Walker and Liverpool's Jordan Henderson.

England dominated the opening phase but Wales defended stoutly and with few clear-cut changes, the first-half ended goalless.

Wales' downfall began at half-time,

A RASH OF GOALS: Marcus Rashford scored twice for England on Tuesday

when talisman captain Gareth Bale, now 33, was replaced by the youngster Brennan Johnson. Just minutes later, campaigner Rashford, 25, thumped home the first England goal from a free kick. Almost immediately afterwards, turned in the second from a Harry Kane cross.

Rashford got his second in the 68th minute before

Sad end for Gareth Bale

WHILE THE English enjoyed delirious delight following their 3-0 despatching of Wales on Tuesday, it was different story for Welsh hero Gareth Bale.

The ageing superstar (pictured, right) would only watch from the bench forlornly after being substituted at half-time as the old enemy eliminated them from the World Cup – and it was certainly not the way the Bale script was meant to be written.

Few other players have personified a nation's football to the extent that Bale has. The Welsh Cake may be one of the principality's tastiest exports but there isn't a more famous bun in Wales than the Bale topknot.

Six years ago he scored with a thunderbolt free-kick against England at Euro 2016. England went on to win 2-1 but, riding on Bale's elegantly-
