

Harry & Meghan: Sweet AND Salty?

- 'Explosive' Netflix docuseries airs with more of a whimper than a bang
- Couple showcase their early lives and the first days of their courtship
- But the British press get a roasting as Harry relives trauma of Diana's death

NETFLIX's much-heralded docuseries Harry & Meghan debuted this week, making no bones about who they view as the real enemy – and it's NOT the royal family.

After weeks of feverish speculation in the British press about which juicy bombshells the controversial royal couple would detonate and who in the royal family would be cast as public enemy number one, the villains of the piece turned out to be...the beastly British press.

Three episodes of the highly anticipated – and feared – show dropped this week, and the were a perfect blend of saccharine and acid. The former in the retelling of their 'fairytale' romance, and the latter in their description of London's newspaper publishers, whom the couple accuse of hounding them, especially Meghan, out of remorseless greed and scarcely concealed racism.

The royals are essentially treated with kid gloves – at least thus far – with their worst sins being a failure to grasp why Meghan should be protected from press harassment.

Prince Harry said some members of the family felt negative treatment in the media was "a rite of passage" - but he added: "The difference is the race element."

'rite of passage'

Buckingham Palace has not yet responded to the claims.

At the start of episode one, a message says members of the Royal Family declined to comment on "the content within this series".

The episodes released on Thursday - which include sit-down interviews with the couple and their friends, as well as a video diary

- cover a range of topics, including the couple's difficult relationship with the tabloid press, and the Royal Family's response to 'racist' news articles written about Meghan.

"The direction from the Palace was don't say anything," says Harry. "But what people need to understand is, as far as a lot of the family were concerned, everything that she was being put through, they had been put through as well.

"So it was almost like a rite of passage, and some of the members of the family were like 'my wife had to go through that, so why should your girlfriend be treated any differently? Why should you get special treatment? Why should she be protected?'"

"I said 'the difference here is the race element'."

MEGHAN AND HARRY: back on the front pages this week

He says there is a "huge level of unconscious bias" in the Royal Family, adding: "It is actually no one's fault. But once it has been pointed out, or identified within yourself you then need to make it right."

The Duke of Sussex - who is fifth in line to the throne - says he is really proud that his children are mixed race, and it makes him want to "make the world a better place for them".

"But, equally, what's most important for the two of us is to make sure that we don't repeat the same mistakes that perhaps our parents made."

'a great love story'

The couple also spoke about meeting other royals, with Meghan saying she found it surprising that the formality "carries over" even when not in public.

She says: "When Will and Kate came over, and I met her for the first time, they came over for dinner, I remember I was in ripped jeans and I was barefoot. I was a hugger. I've always been a hugger, I didn't realise that that is really jarring for a lot of Brits.

"I guess I started to understand very quickly that the formality on the outside carried through

Fury from the papers, silence from the Palace

■ After a TV salvo from Harry & Meghan for their 'intrusive' and 'racist' coverage, leading papers return fire with relentless 'war on the monarchy' narrative

AS the first episodes of the long-awaited Harry & Meghan docuseries dropped this week, much of the British establishment held its collective breath. But at first glance, the real targets of the show seem to be the British media, rather than the royal family. Predictably, they were not amused.

Those expecting one salacious bombshell after another in the first episode were mostly left underwhelmed. In what could be better described as Harry & Meghan: The Early Years, the celebrity couple delivered what was essentially a love letter...to themselves. They present themselves as under siege, facing prejudice and threats, at war with the media. And as such it's a view looking inwards rather than outwards, with a supporting chorus of friends and experts.

'so hurtful!'

The British tabloids saw it differently, of course, immediately spinning a narrative that the show was part of a 'war on the monarchy'. The Express blared the headline 'So Hurtful! Royals Deeply Upset by Harry's Slurs' while the Mail trumpeted "Palace Anger at Assault on the Queen's Legacy". The notion of legacy was echoed by the more restrained Daily Telegraph, who claimed the show's claims were a 'direct hit' on said legacy.

OPEN SEASON: the papers return fire...

Viewers of course can judge for themselves, but for many royal watchers, there is a sense that Buckingham Palace may well be breathing a sigh of relief.

It felt so different over the last few weeks, as the teasing pre-publicity excerpts had raised explosive issues of race and planted stories - but so far at least, the series has been much more revealing about how the couple see themselves.

For a Royal Family worried at the prospect of being painted as out of touch and unsympathetic, or even worse as racists, the programmes so far have not revealed anything really embarrassing or awkward.

What it clearly shows is how emotionally raw Prince Harry remains about the loss of his mother, Princess Diana. His romance with Meghan seems inextricably linked to his experience of grief.

In terms of news lines, the biggest criticism is against the news writers, Harry's romance with Meghan seems inextricably linked to his experience of grief.

with the press seen as a haunting presence, with paparazzi chasing the royal couple and press attacks on them being amplified on social media, including racist abuse.

Prince Harry bristles at spending a life surrounded by such constant media intrusion, and given his history, few will blame him. The next episodes promise to be a delicious watch...

on the inside."

In much of episode one, the duke and duchess spoke about their relationship - including how they met via a friend on Instagram and met for drinks in London's Soho for their first date.

Harry describes it as a "great love story", adding: "I think for so many people in the family, especially obviously the men, there can be a temptation or an urge to marry someone who would fit in the mould, as opposed to somebody who you are perhaps destined to be with.

"The difference between making decisions with your head, or your heart. And my mum certainly made most of her decisions - if not all of them - from her heart. And I am my mother's son."

He adds: "She (Meghan) sacrificed everything she ever knew, the freedom that she had, to join me in my world.

And then pretty soon after that I ended up sacrificing everything that I know to join her in her world."

Prince Harry tells the docuseries: "My job is to keep my family safe. But the nature of being born into this position... and the level of hate that is being stirred up in the last three years especially against my wife and my son, I'm generally concerned for the safety of my family."

The duke adds that, as a royal, it is his "duty to uncover this exploitation and bribery that happens within our media".

Meghan, meanwhile, says she felt that "no matter how hard I tried, no matter how good I was, no matter what I did, they [the media] were still going to find a way to destroy me".

In other moments from the series: Harry calls the press pack of royal correspondents "essentially an extended PR arm of the Royal Family. An agreement that has been there for over 30 years". He says he believes the media see his trauma as its "narrative to control"

In episode three,

Meghan calls the time around their engagement an "orchestrated reality show"

Harry says his family were "incredibly impressed" with Meghan when they first met her. "But the fact that I was dating an American actress was probably what clouded their judgment more than anything else at the beginning"

The duke compares Meghan to Princess Diana, saying: "So much of what Meghan is, and how she is, is so similar to my mum. She has the same compassion, she has the same empathy, she has the same confidence, she has this warmth about her".

And although Princess Diana's Panorama interview was secured under deceit, Harry says his mother "spoke the truth of her experience"

The duchess's mother, Doria Ragland, says she warned Meghan that the harassment was "about race".

"I said, you may not want to hear it but this is what's coming down the pike," says Ms Ragland.

Justice at last for Harry Dunn

■ Anne Sacoolas handed eight month suspended sentence for her role in death of British teenager

A US citizen responsible for the death of teenage motorcyclist Harry Dunn has been sentenced to eight months in prison, suspended for a year.

Anne Sacoolas was driving on the wrong side of the road when she hit the 19-year-old outside a US military base in Northamptonshire in 2019.

The case led to a transatlantic row between the US and UK governments.

Charlotte Charles said of the family's three-year wait for justice "we didn't back down because we have values".

Mrs Charles, Harry's mother, added that her "promise" to get justice for her son through the UK courts was "well and truly complete".

Following the crash, Sacoolas had diplomatic immunity asserted on her behalf by the US administration and left the country 19 days later. She never returned to the UK.

Sacoolas, who admitted earlier this year to causing death by careless driving, appeared at London's Old Bailey via video-link after her employer, the US government, advised her not to travel to the UK to attend in person.

Mrs Charles said the 45-year-old's failure to attend was "despicable", adding she was "absolutely disgusted" at the actions of the US.

Mr Dunn's father, Tim Dunn, said: "It's been such a relentless time, we as a family fought off everything we can to get to this point."

Mrs Charles added: "Anne Sacoolas has a criminal record for the rest of her life."

"That was something she never thought she'd see, something the US government never thought they'd see."

"Harry we done it. We're good, we're good."

Mrs Charles also spoke about being unable to say goodbye to her son because he was too injured by the time she reached the hospital.

"I couldn't comfort him at all. I couldn't let him know that I was there. So for me, the next best thing was to kiss that bruised lip of his and just let him know that I would fight for justice," she told Sky News.

She said the family was no longer interested in meeting Sacoolas, adding: "The time for any contact, for any remorse, is long gone."

In her sentencing remarks, which were broadcast live, Judge Mrs Justice Cheema-Grubb said: "There is no doubt that the calm and dignified persistence of these parents and the family of that young man has led, through three years of heartbreak and effort, to your appearance before the court and the opportunity for you to acknowledge your guilt of a crime."

An immediate jail sentence would have needed Sacoolas to surrender to the court, so the judge's only real option was a suspended sentence.

The last surviving Dambuster, 'Johnny' Johnson, dies aged 101

■ Johnson was a bomb-aimer in squadron that destroyed German dams during second world war

The last survivor of the Dambuster bouncing bomb raids of 1943 has died at the age of 101.

George Leonard "Johnny" Johnson was a bomb-aimer in the 617 squadron which destroyed vital dams in Germany's industrial Ruhr valley during the second world war.

His family said Johnson died peacefully in his sleep on Wednesday, according to BBC News. Les Munro, the last surviving Dambuster pilot, died at the age of 96 in 2015. His death left only Canadian front-gunner Fred Sutherland and Johnson. Sutherland died in 2019 at the age of 95.

After his 100th birthday last year, Johnson told the BBC: "I've had a very lucky life in every respect." Speaking of the famous Dambuster raids, he said: "It was an exhilarating experience ... [I felt] honoured to have had the chance to take part."

The bouncing bomb raids caused catastrophic flooding in the Ruhr valley, destroying hydroelectric power stations and factories. About 1,300 people on the ground are thought to have been killed, according to the Imperial War Museum.

Of the 133 crew members who took part, 53 were killed in the raids and three were captured.

Johnson was one of 133 crew members who took part in the raids

Johnson, who was born in Lincolnshire and lived in Bristol, was 21 at the time.

He went on to become a squadron leader in the RAF and retired from the force in 1962 to become a teacher in Torquay.

He also represented the Conservative party as a local councillor.

A campaign to get Johnson knighted ended in failure, but he was awarded a CBE in 2017.

Stranglers drummer Jet Black dies at 84

Jet Black, the original drummer for 1970s punks The Stranglers, has died aged 84, the band confirmed on Thursday.

The musician, who was born Brian Duffy, was a founding member of the Guildford group, playing on hits Golden Brown, Peaches and No More Heroes.

He last performed with them in 2015, announcing his retirement a few years later due to ill health.

In a statement online, his ex-bandmates described him as an "elder statesman" of British music.

Bassist and co-frontman JJ Burnel said: "After years of ill health, Jet has finally been released. He was a force of nature. An inspiration.

"The Stranglers would not have been if it wasn't for him. The most erudite of men. A rebel with many causes."

Sil Willcox, the band's manager, added: "Jet Black was the real deal. Astute in business, a talented drummer and an obsessive perfectionist.

Jet Black: an "elder statesman" of British music

"I will cherish the times we planned, pranked, ate, drank and laughed on so many great nights together."

The Stranglers formed in west Surrey in 1974 and went on to become an integral part of the riotous UK punk and new wave scenes.

Despite the indolent, youthful rage associated with the genre, Black - a semi-professional drummer in the late 1950s and early 1960s - was in fact by then a successful businessman in his mid-30s.

He owned a fleet of ice cream vans and later an off-licence called The Jackpot. In the early days, the Stranglers used one of the vans as a tour bus and his shop as their headquarters.

Black wrote several books chronicling his time in the band - most notably The Stranglers' infamous 1980 arrest in Nice, France, where they had allegedly incited a riot.

An enthusiastic furniture designer, he also patented the Jet Black Power Bass Drum Pedal.

When asked how he would like be remembered by the band's website 12 years ago, Black replied: "I guess if we are actually remembered, then that will do."

In a statement, his representative confirmed the musician had passed away 'peacefully' on Tuesday, December 6th at his country home in Wales.

He leaves behind his wife Ava, and his two children Charlotte and Anthony.

Black's death comes two years after The Stranglers' keyboard player Dave Greenfield died at the age of 71 after testing positive for coronavirus.

Greenfield, originally from Brighton, had contracted the virus following a prolonged stay in hospital for heart problems.

Labour government likely to scrap 'indefensible' House of Lords

The Labour Party has promised to scrap the unelected and "indefensible" House of Lords as part of a constitutional revamp to redistribute economic growth after Brexit.

As part of a 40-point plan outlined by former PM Gordon Brown this week, the party promise to replace the body with an elected chamber as the centrepiece of a mass transfer of power from Westminster to the people and their local areas, with Labour leader Kier Starmer saying "the centre hasn't delivered".

Brown recommends cultivating "300 emerging clusters of the new economy" and eliminating "Westminster and Whitehall bias and giving everywhere a fair share of our future prosperity".

Labour said one of Brown's recommendations would be the abolition of the Lords, as well as new rules to "end the undue influence of wealth and foreign money, and prevent MPs part-timing the job".

Brown also recommends "tighter enforcement of the rules, with the public directly represented in a new integrity commission" for politicians and public life.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

Brits in LA

Agincourt all over again!?!

BRITS around the world will transfixed by a certain football game this weekend.

It's Mbappe vs Walker; it's Kane vs Varane; it's Southgate vs Deschamps, it's Agincourt all over again.....it's ENGLAND vs FRANCE!

I'm going to put aside the usual English pessimism for this one.... because if Morocco can kick Spain out of the World Cup surely the Three Lions have a chance?

We will be watching the match at The Chap in Hollywood, but we know not everyone lives close by, so we have put together a list of some of the other venues where you can watch the game with fellow supporters over on our blog which can be found at Britsin.LA. It is also printed on page 19 of this edition. So get down to your local and support the boys!

If you want to avoid it all together why not distract yourself with the 'Harry & Meghan' Netflix documentary? Although by all accounts it sounds like it will still probably end in penalties, most definitely a few fouls and quite possibly an own goal....wait, are we still talking about the football? One thing's for certain; both of these events will end in tears - fingers crossed they are happy ones.....

You will be missed: BiLA stalwart Len Davies

Come on England! Longtime local Brit (and die-hard Evertonian) Peter Jones with his adult children Lilly and Dylan, flying the flag at Ye Olde King's Head for volunteers Len was always one of the first to respond.

He was very much loved by us all. No doubt many of you will remember him fondly as Santa from our Christmas parties over the years. He will be sorely missed. We are eternally grateful and very proud to have had Len be such a huge part of our Brits in LA family.

Also, here's a special mention to Brits in LA member Erin Gavin, who has just released a version of Marilyn Monroe's famous song 'I want to be loved by you'. Many of you may remember Erin starring as the cinematic icon a few years back in a stage production of Marilyn & Sinatra, penned by our very own Sandro Monetti. Well Erin is now hoping to help raise extra awareness on mental health. And wants to remind us of the message behind the song - Mental Health Matters.

If you are struggling in any way please don't feel you have to cope with it all on your own. Los Angeles County offers many free resources but you can also reach out to us via email or post on or our group forum via Facebook; there is now an option to post anonymously if you prefer. I know it sounds cheesy but a problem shared often is a problem halved.

Whatever it is you are going through I am certain one of our 17,000+ members will have a solution. See the yellow box (above, left) for the links if you need them.

COME ON INGERLAND!

RIP Len Davies

It would definitely help make up for the sad ones I shed earlier this week when I learned that our old friend and Brits in LA member Len Davies had passed away. He was so kind and generous and had an infectious positive outlook on life. Any time we put out a call

Meet A Member: Paul Rogan

Meet Paul Rogan from London who moved to LA 15 years ago to pursue acting.

Was there a particular reason you chose LA?

For an actor of course Los Angeles is the dream. In England I was an actor, stand-up comedian, improviser, and voice-over performer. I've found that people in the entertainment industries here are surprisingly easy going and approachable, and you can get opportunities here that don't exist in England. I booked TV and commercial work here within a short time of arriving. Here, they love our Englishness, and they assume we all trained at RADA!

Of course the sun, sea and space don't hurt - my wife, who is American, would happily have gone back to Chicago, but the first time I visited Chicago it was in a winter, and stepping out the airport was the coldest I'd even been. It felt like I was being assaulted by the White Walkers from Game of Thrones.

What do you miss most from home?

I miss family and friends, obviously, but it is so much easier these days to stay in touch. I know Brits here who came out in the 50s and 60's, and it must have felt so much more cut off from 'home'. I can see my family, and read the English newspapers for free every day, even if I have no idea who the 'celebrities' are that the Daily Mail is shocked about. Being able to watch English football on TV was a huge surprise and relief. Now when I'm in England and the game isn't on at 7 in the morning, I'm thrown.

What was your first impression of LA and has it changed since?

We stayed with friends, so I saw aspects of LA that locals see. If you just came as a tourist and saw only The Chinese Theatre and Hollywood Boulevard etc. you might think it tacky and nothing special. But there is a magic here. I remember the first time we drove along Sunset Boulevard where it transitions from West Hollywood to Beverly Hills, and it was stunning. My view hasn't changed: I still love the Hollywood sign, and a sunset at Malibu.

What do you find the biggest difference is living here versus London?

What it all looks like - the light, the low-rise main streets, the ever-changing nature of it. In London the houses are all terraced and therefore won't change much. Here, houses have their own lot and our Valley neighborhood is constantly changing as houses get rebuilt.

Do you have a hidden gem in LA that you want to share with us?

Coffee at Aroma on Tujunga, The Ojai Valley Inn; Paradise Cove, tacos at Brentwood Country Mart. None of these are particularly hidden of course but not all Brits may know them yet.

What would you suggest to others who are thinking about making the move here?

You've got one life. Do it! You can always go home again!

Lots of our members join our group Brits in LA seeking out words of wisdom - what is the best piece of advice you've been given?

Question every bill you get from your health insurer. Brits aren't much used to health insurance, and we tend to trust that people know what they are doing. But health bills are often riddled with errors and can be thousands of dollars more than they should be.

Lastly, how can we find out more about you?

Are you working on anything at the moment? I'm just about to open my show Jane Austen Unscripted at the Garry Marshall Theatre in Burbank. One of my great passions is improvised comedy, which I did a lot in England, guesting with the Comedy Store Players etc. When I got here I joined Impro Theatre, a company that improvise comedy plays, and I created a show (long before Austentatious in themes and Regency Christmas traditions for our Christmas run.

Ultra-aggressive style pays off again as England win thrilling First Test in Rawalpindi

First Test, Rawalpindi (day five of five). England won by 74 runs
England 657 (Brook 153, Crawley 122, Pope 108, Duckett 107)
& 264-7 dec (Brook 87)
Pakistan 579 (Babar 136, Imam 121, Shafique 114, Jacks 6-161)
& 268 (Anderson 4-36, Robinson 4-50)

CRICKET: England pulled off one of their greatest-ever Test cricket victories this week with a 74-run win over Pakistan in the first Test in Rawalpindi this week.

With the sun dropping at the end of a tension-filled final day on Tuesday, England took the last wicket with only minutes of light remaining to secure a victory that will live long in the memory.

In scenes reminiscent of England's famous win in the dark in Karachi in 2000, Jack Leach trapped Naseem Shah lbw to leave Pakistan 268 all out, 75 short of their target of 343.

That England were in a position to win was thanks to James Anderson and Ollie Robinson, who gave a masterful exhibition of reverse-swing bowling to claim four wickets each in the hosts's second innings.

But Pakistan were defiant throughout. Saud Shakeel made 76, Mohammad Rizwan 46 and Azhar Ali 40. At 176-3 and 259-5, the home side were right in the hunt.

But after Robinson removed Salman Agha and Azhar, England could only be defeated by the fading light.

With the stadium nearly full and the crowd engrossed, 40-year-old Anderson snared Zahid Mahmood and Haris Rauf in the same over.

Naseem and Mohammad Ali survived for 52 balls, before Leach sent England into wild celebrations.

There was only a three-day gap to the second Test in Multan, which began on Friday, when England have the chance to secure the series.

The drama of victory being secured late on the fifth day was entirely in keeping with the extraordinary action of the previous four days.

England plundered an astounding 921 runs over two innings in 136.5 overs at a scoring rate of 6.73, the fastest of any team batting twice in Test history. The 506-4 runs they racked up on day one is a Test record.

Ben Stokes' bold declaration at tea on Sunday engineered a contest that had all four results possible going into the final session of the match.

With darkness creeping in, England looked to have missed their chance when Naseem's edge off Stokes sailed between wicketkeeper Ollie Pope and first slip Joe Root, only for Leach to provide the decisive intervention.

It ended a run of 11 away Tests without victory and secured a first win over Pakistan outside the UK for 22 years with an entire XI that had never played a Test in Pakistan before.

All this after the England squad was badly affected on the eve of the match by a virus that raised the prospect of the Test being delayed by a day.

They had a stand-in wicketkeeper in Pope and an attack relying heavily on three part-time spinners, from which Liam Livingstone did not bowl because of a knee injury and will return home.

Above all, this is the finest win of England's new era under Stokes and coach Brendon McCullum, giving full vindication to their ultra-aggressive style of play that is turning Test convention on its head.

This was a compelling, arm-wrestle of a day, with England only taking definitive control in the dying embers.

From 80-2 overnight, Pakistan were shackled by England's seamers in the early morning. Imam-ul-Haq was caught down the leg side to depart for 48, Rizwan needed 24 balls to get off the mark.

When England turned to spin, the hosts countered, leaving Leach, Will Jacks and Root with no answer. Their combined 16 morning overs cost 72 runs, compared with 14 conceded from 16 overs of pace.

Debutant Shakeel and Rizwan added 87 for the fourth wicket, only for Rizwan to poke Anderson behind and Shakeel to be well caught by diving substitute Keaton Jennings at short cover off Robinson.

Azhar, returning after retiring hurt with an injured finger on Sunday, and Salman built again in the face of an examination from England's tireless pacers.

In the one over of spin England bowled in the afternoon session, Leach thought he had the sweeping Salman lbw, only for replays to show the ball going over. In the next over, the diving Pope could not hold Azhar's leg-side tickle off Robinson.

England's pressure finally told after tea. Ignoring the availability of the second new ball, Robinson had Salman lbw on review with one that came back then, crucially, Azhar guided to Root at leg slip.

ENGLAND RISING AGAIN: Ben Stokes's swashbuckling team won their first overseas victory against Pakistan for 22 years

With the tail exposed, England's main opponent was the setting sun. Pope acrobatically grabbed Mahmood down the leg side off Anderson and, two balls later, Haris was trapped in front.

Naseem and Ali clung on, wasting as much time as they could. Anderson and Robinson were withdrawn, Naseem was missed, Stokes took the new ball and Leach was summoned.

Naseem was pinned in front, a review could not save him and an iconic England win was sealed.

We're just getting started, says Trescothick

England are "just getting started" with their thrilling results and performances, according to assistant coach Marcus Trescothick.

The first Test win over Pakistan in Rawalpindi was England's seventh in eight matches and one of their all-time great overseas triumphs.

"It is the start of a long journey when we are going to have some exciting cricket," said Trescothick.

"You will see some young players really flourish and stand out."

England's success under Test captain Ben Stokes and head coach Brendon McCullum has been built on a huge shift in mindset from the team that won only once in 17 Tests before the pair took charge. They score their runs at a rapid pace and use unconventional tactics in the field. The win in the first Test came as a result of a bold declaration.

Trescothick was part of an England team that undertook a similar change in approach, when then-captain Michael Vaughan urged them to stand up to Australia after 18 years of Ashes series defeats, leading to the famous win in 2005.

"We created a different way of how we wanted to go about it," said Trescothick. "For a couple of years before the pinnacle of 2005 we built a different style of play, a more aggressive style. We knew we had to come up against Australia and play in that fashion."

Whereas Trescothick feels his England team were trying to "catch up" with Australia, he believes Stokes' side are setting their own benchmark.

"It is up to everyone else to decide if they need to catch up and play this style," he said. "It is not for us to judge. All I know is playing against us is exciting cricket and it moves forward very quickly."

"I think you will see the opposition trying it now and again."

Australia will defend the Ashes in England next summer, but Trescothick said he wished the series could start next week.

"It is the exciting part," he said. "If it continues on in this form then it bodes for a great series."

"We do not look too far ahead in what is going on but it is exciting because Ashes series are the pinnacle of what we do in Test cricket."

other players."

England have kept three successive clean sheets - one shy of their national record at a World Cup achieved in both 1966 and 1982.

At the other end of the pitch, the Three Lions have scored 12 goals in four games - equalling their highest tally at a single World Cup.

Having reached the last four in Russia in 2018, and the European Championship final in 2021, Walker believes there is no favourite as Gareth Southgate's side prepare to face the defending champions.

"We're playing the world champions but we are two good teams that will go toe-to-toe," Walker said.

"We have great talent. In my eyes, neither team is the underdogs or the favourites."

Phillips: Southgate doesn't get enough credit

England manager Gareth Southgate is not given enough credit for the job he has done, says midfielder Calvin Phillips.

England play France in the World Cup quarter-finals on Saturday (19:00 GMT), with 52-year-old Southgate having already led the Three Lions to the 2018 semi-finals and the Euro 2020 final.

"I think people underestimate how good a manager Gareth Southgate is," Manchester City player Phillips said.

"I have been with England for three years and he has been amazing."

Southgate began his reign as England manager in October 2016, winning 49 and losing 13 of his 80 games in charge since.

But the defeat by Croatia in the last four of the 2018 World Cup in Russia, followed by another by Italy on penalties in the Euro 2020 final, led to questions about Southgate's ability to get the most out of his talented squad.

Further concerns were raised during a poor Nations League campaign earlier this year, particularly after a humiliating home thrashing by Hungary where England fans chanted 'You don't know what you're doing' at the manager.

"I have been with England for three years and he has been amazing," Phillips said of Southgate, who has won 49 and lost 13 of his games in charge of England

England have since recovered to reach the World Cup quarter-finals in Qatar, with Southgate earning credit for his tactical decisions that led to a 3-0 win against Senegal in the last 16.

Now his credentials will be put under scrutiny again when his side face defending champions France in Doha.

"We didn't have good results in the summer but you can put that down to a few reasons," said Phillips, who has played under Marcelo Bielsa and Pep Guardiola - both internationally revered coaches - at Leeds and Manchester City.

"How he has nurtured this team to winning games and one of the best countries in the world at playing football. A lot of people don't give him credit for that."

Walker: no red carpet for Mbappe!

■ All eyes on key matchup as England face France in World Cup quarter final showdown

Kyle Walker says he will "not roll out a red carpet" for Kylian Mbappe and England will have more concerns than just one player in their World Cup quarter-final against holders France.

England face France in the last eight in Qatar on Saturday (11am PST) in the first knockout match between the two nations at a major tournament.

Mbappe, 23, is the tournament's leading scorer with five goals in four games.

"I understand what I need to do and that is to stop him," Walker, 32, said.

"It's easier said than done but I don't underestimate myself," the England right-back added.

"He is a fantastic player in great form. It is not going to be an easy task, but as a professional footballer you want to play against the best and I think he is one of the best, if not the best, in the world at the moment."

Mbappe did not train with the rest of the France squad on Tuesday, instead having a recovery session, and France defender Ibrahima Konate said there was "nothing to worry about".

"We haven't really spoken about it at all. He was just resting," the Liverpool centre-back said.

"Walker and Mbappe are two very great players. Walker is one of the best right-backs in the world, I can't wait to see this battle."

Walker is familiar with Mbappe, having come up against the Paris St-Germain forward with Manchester City in the previous two Champions League campaigns.

City won two and lost one of the three meetings in which both players featured - and Mbappe has admitted he found facing Walker challenging.

On the Frenchman's comments, Walker said: "That's nice to hear because he had a tough game against me. I know

"I understand what I need to do and that is to stop him," Walker, (left) 32 said of French star Kylian Mbappe he's a top player but we're not playing tennis. It's not a solo sport, it's a team game.

"You have to give him respect but not too much. Yes, it will be a tough game but a team cannot just be about one person," he added.

"I'm not going to roll out a red carpet for him and tell him to score. It's a World Cup, it's do or die."

The Three Lions defeated Senegal 3-0 in their last-16 match, while France also progressed smoothly with a 3-1 win over Poland.

Mbappe scored twice in that French victory and the forward has now been involved in his team's last seven World Cup goals.

"When we've played Paris St-Germain in the Champions League, we're not just thinking of Mbappe and it's the same on Saturday," Walker said.

"Yes he's a tool in their armoury - and a very good one - but you can't underestimate their
