COURT TELLS ISIS BRIDE: YOU CAN'T COME BACK!

Shemima Begum denied right to return to UK

Shemima Begum has lost her appeal to be allowed to return to the UK, after leaving the country to join the Isis terror group in 2015.

Begum, from Bethnal Green, East London, was just 15 when she left the UK with two school friends and travelled to Syria. She was later stripped of her British citizenship in 2019.

The special immigration appeals commission (Siac) ruled on Wednesday that the citizenship decision taken by then-home secretary Sajid Javid was "lawful", despite finding "credible suspicion" the schoolgirl may have been trafficked to Syria for "sexual exploitation".

Her lawyers have suggested she will challenge the latest ruling. "In terms of the legal fight, that's nowhere near over," said Daniel Furner, speaking outside court following the decision.

'all or nothing'

At the time she resurfaced in 2019, MI5 advised the home secretary that Ms Begum would continue to pose a threat to the public if she returned to Britain - expertise which the Special Immigration Appeals Commission concluded it could not overrule.

Nonetheless, Mr Justice Jay repeatedly questioned the judgement of the Security Service in his ruling and suggested the evidence provided by the intelligence agency "betrayed an all-or-nothing approach".

'somewhat dismissive'

He said there was "considerable force" to Ms Begum's argument that the assessment she had travelled to Syria voluntarily - advanced by the home secretary - was "as stark as it is unsympathetic".

"Further, there is some merit in the argument that those advising the secretary of state see this as a black-and-white issue, when many would say there are shades of grey," he continued.

He went on to accuse the home secretary of dealing with the trafficking concerns "in a somewhat dismissive way".

Instead, the judge found, there were grounds to believe "the motive of bringing her to Syria was sexual exploitation for which, as a child, she could not give valid consent".

Lawyers for the home secretary argued last year that "national security is a weighty factor and that it would take a very strong countervailing case to outweigh it", the ruling said.

'deeply troubled'

The judge responded: "Reasonable people will profoundly disagree with the secretary of state, but that raises wider societal and political questions which it is not the role of this commission to address."

Ultimately, however, the commission accepted that the home secretary's conclusion was "an integral part of the overall national security assessment carried out by the Security Service" and therefore not a matter for the court.

in 2015 with two school friends, Amira Abase, 15, and Kadiza Sultana and travelled to Gatwick Airport, where they got on a flight to Turkey and later crossed into Syria.

Begum was soon married to Isis fighter Yago Riedijk, a Dutch Muslim convert who was 21 when he met and wed the schoolgirl just 10 days after she arrived in Raqqa. But her was arrested shortly afterwards, accused by Isis of being a spy, and claims to have distanced himself from the terror group after his release - mainly socialising with civilians in Raqqa.

Begum suffered two miscarriages before having two children with Riedijk, both of whom died from malnutrition and disease, and Begum later lost her third child who died in a refugee camp in 2019 amid her appeal to return home to the UK.

Speaking outside court, Gareth Peirce, Ms Begum's lawyer, said the ruling was "extraordinary" and it was clear the commission was "deeply troubled" by the limitations placed on its ability to act in this case.

"The outcome that we face is that no British child who has been trafficked outside the UK will be protected by the British state if the Home Secretary invokes national security," she continued.

A Home Office spokesman said: "We are pleased that the court has found in favour of the Government's position in this case.

"The Government's priority remains maintaining the safety and security of the UK and we will robustly defend any decision made in doing so."

It's a three horse race to replace Nicola Sturgeon

All three candidates for the SNP leadership election say they have secured enough nominations to move forward to the next stage of the contest.

Under party rules, candidates must receive 100 nominations from at least 20 SNP branches for their names to be put forward for members to vote on.

Speaking to Channel 4 news after First Minister's Questions on Thursday, former community safety minister Ash Regan said she had "just been advised" that she had secured the necessary nominations so "will be moving forward in the contest".

A spokesperson for her rival Humza Yousaf said the health secretary had received enough nominations to proceed early on in his campaign, which launched at the start of the week.

A source close to the third candidate, finance secretary Kate Forbes, confirmed that she had also been informed that she has the requisite number of backers to proceed to the vote.

All three names will now go forward to be voted on by party members, who will be asked to rank the candidates in order of

While each candidate will be on the ballot, the nominations process remained open until Friday, meaning another candidate could still enter the race after the BW went to press.

Anglican Church faces huge split over same sex unions

Conservative chapters threaten permanent break with Archbishop of Canterbury over issue

THE ANGLICAN Church is facing one of the biggest challenges in its history after almost a quarter of its worldwide chapters rejected a recent decision to bless same sex civil unions and have threatened to no longer recognize the supremacy of the Archbishop of Canterbury over their churches.

The revolt against Archbishop of Canterbury, Justin Welby's recent decision is strongest in Africa, where the change was a step too far for the Anglican leaders of Kenya, Nigeria, and Uganda. The leaders of those three African churches, with a combined flock of about 35 million Anglicans, rejected The Church's recent decision on the matter and are threatening to cut ties with the Church of England over the issue.

The Church of England, in "offering to bless that sin" of same-sex civil marriage, is "making contradictory statements and expecting everyone to believe both can be true at the same time," Archbishop Stephen Samuel Kaziimba Mugalu of Uganda said in a statement. "As the Church of Uganda, we cannot accept that. God cannot bless what he calls sin." The Anglican Church of Uganda broke with the U.S. Episcopal Church, also a member of the global Anglican Communion, when it installed an openly gay bishop, he noted.

Cutting ties with the Episcopal Church is one thing; breaking with the Church of England is another matter entirely. All 45 national or regional provinces in the Anglican Communion are autonomous and free to make their own decisions in their own ways. But all are 'in communion' - or a reciprocal relationship - with the See of Canterbury and recognize the Archbishop of Canterbury as the Communion's spiritual head.

And now the Church of England has joined the Episcopal Church, the Anglican Church of Canada, the Episcopal Church of Brazil, and a few other Anglican provinces in blessing same-sex unions. "We are not leaving the Anglican Communion; we are the Anglican Communion," Kaziimba wrote. "There is no way we are walking together" with those "provinces that have walked away, but we pray for them to repent."

Archbishop Jackson Ole Sapit, head of the Church of Kenya, blamed what he termed "the unfortunate rise of devious liberal churchmanship within Anglican Communion" for the Church of England's same-sex decision. "History is about to repeat itself," Archbishop Henry Chukwudum Ndukuba of Nigeria said in his statement. "The Anglican Church is at the threshold of yet another reformation, which must sweep out the ungodly leadership currently endorsing sin, misleading the lives of faithful Anglican worldwide."

Hells Bells! 'Ring for the King' challenge hampered by lack of volunteers

An ambitious campaign to ring every church bell in the country on the day of King Charles III's Coronation in May looks unlikely to succeed without a last-ditch flood of volunteers.

Achieving the aim would require 8,000 new recruits—but so far the Ring for the King campaign has received only 300 enquiries through its official site.

Organisers remain upbeat and are confident that many other would-be ringers will have got involved through local churches or bell-ringing

Farewell to a legend: Motty dead at 77

■ “Like all the greats behind the mic, John had the right words, at the right time, for all the big moments.”

Legendary commentator John Motson, who had an illustrious 50-year career with the BBC, has died aged 77.

Motson covered 10 World Cups, 10 European Championships and 29 FA Cup finals for BBC Sport before retiring from the organisation in 2018.

Popularly known as ‘Motty’, he had worked on Match of the Day since 1971.

“It is with great sadness we announce that John Motson OBE died peacefully in his sleep today,” said a statement from Motson’s family on Thursday.

He is survived by his wife Anne and son Frederick.

“John Motson was the voice of a footballing generation - steering us through the twists and turns of FA Cup runs, the highs and lows of World Cups and, of course, Saturday nights on Match of the Day,” said BBC director-general Tim Davie.

‘extraordinary passion’

“He had an extraordinary passion for the game and his enthusiasm behind the microphone captured the experience and excitement felt by fans in the stands, all delivered with his unique style. Our condolences and thoughts are with his family.”

The son of a Methodist minister, Motson had stints as a reporter on the Barnet Press and Sheffield Morning Telegraph newspapers at the start of his career.

He also worked as a freelancer for BBC Radio Sheffield before he joined the BBC on a full-time basis in 1968.

After starting out as a sports reporter on Radio 2, he made his breakthrough on Match of the Day during the famous FA Cup replay between Hereford and Newcastle four years later.

Originally billed as a five-minute segment, Hereford’s shock 2-1 win - featuring Ronnie Radford’s famous 30-yard strike - saw the match promoted to the main game, with Motson capturing all the drama.

‘brilliant commentator’

For most of the period from 1979 to 2008, Motson - known for his trademark sheepskin coats and encyclopaedic knowledge of the game - was the BBC’s voice on major finals such as the FA Cup, European Championship and World Cup.

MOTSON: the famous fan of the sheepskin coat enjoyed a 50 year career at the BBC

That run included his record-breaking sixth World Cup final in Berlin in 2006 and his 29th FA Cup final in 2008.

He also covered more than 200 England matches and commented on almost 2,500 televised games. His final game for Match of the Day was between Crystal Palace and West Bromwich Albion in

Motson was invited on to the pitch after full-time and applauded by the fans before Palace manager Roy Hodgson presented him with a framed copy of the programme from his first and last matches at Selhurst Park and a crystal microphone.

He returned to work for a stint at Talksport and also provided voiceovers for some football computer games.

Match of the Day presenter Gary Lineker said he was “deeply saddened” by news of Motson’s passing.

He added: “A quite brilliant commentator and the voice of football in this country for generations. He’ll be very much missed.”

Cambodia finally gets its jewels returned - in four boxes in the back of a car outside London

■ Priceless haul just one of many spirited out of the Asian country by veteran British smuggler Doug Latchford

A vast trove of Cambodia’s Angkorian crown jewellery, some dating back to the 7th Century, resurfaced in London last summer, it has been revealed.

The stolen items belonged to British antiquities smuggler Douglas Latchford and were returned by his daughter following the death of her controversial father.

Experts say they have never seen most of the jewellery before and are stunned by its existence.

The collection has been secretly returned to Cambodia’s capital, Phnom Penh, and is due to go on display there in the country’s national museum.

Latchford died at his home in Bangkok in 2020 while awaiting trial in the US. His family promised to return his stolen collection to Cambodia after he died, but the authorities did not know what exactly would be handed over or how it would happen.

‘crown jewels’

Lawyer Bradley Gordon, who advises the country’s culture ministry and is leading Cambodia’s efforts to repatriate stolen artifacts, first saw the jewels last summer when a representative for Latchford’s family took him to a parking lot in the English countryside outside London. There, in the back of a car, sat four boxes containing a collection of Cambodia’s crown jewels.

The trove includes several crowns, necklaces, bracelets, belts, earrings, arm bands and amulets, according to the culture ministry. One of the more unusual pieces, Gordon said, is a gold bowl that likely would have been used by kings to eat rice. However, because the artifacts are believed to have been looted, their exact provenance and usage is unknown.

“There’s not an encyclopedia of Khmer gold to turn to, other than what was written by Douglas Latchford,” Gordon said in a phone interview.

“I felt like crying. I just thought - wow - the crown jewels of ancient Cambodian civilization packed into four boxes in the back of a car.”

When it was all unwrapped, the resurfaced collection was found to contain 77 pieces of gold and jewel-encrusted jewellery, including crowns, belts and earrings. A large bowl is thought to date

It's fruitless shopping at Tesco...

■ Grocery giant joins competitors in rationing fruit and veg

Tesco is the latest supermarket to introduce limits on sales of certain fruit and vegetables due to shortages of fresh produce.

It follows similar moves by Aldi, Asda and Morrisons, with other supermarkets also said to be facing problems after extreme weather hit harvests abroad.

Tesco is putting limits of three per customer on sales of tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers.

However, Sainsbury's, Lidl, Waitrose and M&S had not announced any limits at press time.

Pictures of empty shelves at various supermarkets have been circulating on social media in recent days.

The shortages are largely the result of extreme weather in Spain and north Africa, which has affected harvests, according to the UK government.

A significant proportion of the fruit and vegetables consumed by the UK at this time of year come from those regions.

And there is also the impact high electricity prices are having on produce grown in greenhouses in the UK and the Netherlands.

The British Retail Consortium, which represents supermarkets, says the shortages are expected to last "a few weeks" until the UK growing season gets under way and shops find alternative sources of produce.

Tesco, Britain's largest grocer, said it was introducing limits as a precautionary measure to ensure customers could get the produce they needed.

It said the limits applied both to loose fruit and vegetables and

SIGN OF THE TIMES: empty vegetable bins at a London Tesco this week to produce sold in packs. Tesco followed Aldi in putting the limits on sales of peppers, cucumbers and tomatoes, while Asda also restricted sales of lettuce, salad bags, broccoli, cauliflowers and raspberry punnets. Sainsbury's former chief executive Justin King told reporters that limits were being put in place to prevent other retailers buying stock.

to the 11th Century and although it has yet to be tested, appears to be made of solid gold. Experts believe it could have been used as a rice bowl for Angkorian royalty.

"Dynamite Doug"

Latchford was a larger-than-life figure who dominated Cambodian artwork circles for more than half a century. Born to privilege in the waning days of the British Raj, he left India in the 1950s for Cambodia and quickly became fascinate with the county and its rich archectural and religious heritage. But its myriad temples and other holy sites were poorly protected, and for the following decade or more Latchford simply pilfered items he took a fancy to. His haul included priceless statuary and religious artefacts, some of which he kept for his immense personal collection, and other items he simply sold on to wealthy collectors in Europe and the US. His willingness to recover buried artefacts earned him the name 'Dynamite Doug' from the local Cambodian government.

During the murderous regime of the Khmer Rouge, Latchford's larceny continued unchecked, as he bribed and threatened his way past compliant customs officers. Such was his way in neighboring Thailand and the comparatively cheap price that the Thai military of the time would reportedly charge for a quick and quiet assassination, local journalists avoided reporting on his methods.

Despite his questionable means of acquiring these items, Latchford was awarded a Grand Cross of the Royal Order of Monisaraphon in 2008 for financial contributions to Cambodia's national museum. The following year, he returned several gold pieces to the country and was given a "friendship medal" in exchange. But the law finally caught up with him: at the time of his death he was fighting extradition to the US for trafficking artifacts looted from Cambodia.

Speaking at a Clarence House reception to mark the second anniversary of her online book club, Camilla told authors: "Please remain true to your calling, unimpeded by those who may wish to curb the freedom of your expression or impose limits on your imagination."

In videos posted on social media, the queen consort then looked up with a smile and said: "Enough said", which is being interpreted as a subtle dig at rewrites to Dahl's work. Her comments were greeted by cheers.

It's still well worth taking a deep dive into The Tunnel

■ All three seasons of acclaimed crime drama now streaming on PBS Video Channel

PBS has long been a great resource for expat Brits to get their fix of great British shows, and since the public broadcasting giant moved into on-demand streaming back in the summer of 2020, we've had even more choice from the back catalogs of the BBC, ITV, and other leading British channels.

Debuting this month on the PBS Video Channel are all three seasons of The Tunnel, the acclaimed Anglo-French production which centers on the investigations and relationship between British detective Karl Roebuck (Stephen Dillane) and French detective Elise Wassermann (Clémence Poésy). The pair are forced to work together when crimes involving both countries are committed.

Season 1 follows Karl and Elise as they investigate a dismembered body on the border of both countries in the Channel Tunnel. Season 2 has Karl and Elise reunited to investigate a case where a French couple have been abducted from the Eurotunnel. And Season 3 is set in a mid-Brexit Europe where the English and French teams come together once more in the emotionally charged finale when a stolen fishing boat is found adrift, on fire in the English Channel.

Based on the original Danish-Swedish collaboration "The Bridge," The Tunnel garnered a devoted following in Britain, where fans were as much intrigued by the intricate plots as by the stark contrast between the British and French detectives forced to cooperate when a dead politician is found lying neatly across the two nation's boundary line. And The Tunnel itself makes a brilliantly creepy location.

Dillane's Karl is a jokey, flirty, blokey Brit who - surprise, surprise - is left confounded by his po-faced French counterpart. The murder which kicks off the premiere episode of Season 1 heralds a spate of killings and snowballs into a web sensation as the politically motivated serial killer - known as the Truth Terrorist - highlights social injustices on a deadly chessboard. Targets include teenagers involved in the 2011 England riots, pensioners in a Folkestone retirement home, department stores accused of using child labour, and a suitably viperous circle of financiers. It's all so devilishly well done that even viewers who have seen The Bridge will find plenty to enjoy. It's certainly no less gripping or scary.

It's not just the acting that's stunning. There's the backdrop too - on either side of the Channel. The Kent coast looks delightful, while Calais, that perennially passed-through town, is no less beguiling. With all the dashing back and forth, sometimes you can't tell which side of the Channel you're actually on. Ultimately, The Tunnel tells us, we're all pretty much the same - even the British and the French.

VIVE LA DIFFERENCE: Stephen Dillane and Clémence Poésy star as British and French detectives forced to work together in "The Tunnel"

But while we may find The Tunnel riveting - I certainly did - lead actor Dillane can't bring himself to watch it, or the bigger recent TV show for which he is most well known, Game of Thrones, because of the violence. When the show was initially released, he told the Sydney Morning Herald: "I'm nearly 60 years old. It seems that people have a much higher tolerance of these things than I do and that's fine. I'm a little suspicious of it in myself. If I watch Fear the Walking Dead, I can tell that after watching a man put an ice axe through another man's eye, my relationship to that changes. At first I can't watch it and within half an hour it's meaningless to me. I'm not sure that I think that's a great idea."

The subscription rate for the PBS Masterpiece Prime Video Channel is $5.99/month with an Amazon Prime or Prime Video subscription. Part of every purchase goes towards funding PBS.

Dead Zeppelin rock it at Pub Quiz

Guest host Denise Littlejohn will ask the questions at Brits in LA Pub Quiz at O'Brien's on Tuesday February 28 while Sandro Monetti (pictured right with Denise) enjoys a well-deserved week's holiday in Italy.

Last time out at the packed Santa Monica pub, Dead Zeppelin (top) took the trivia title for the first time - and the garden gnome trophy - ahead of A Brit and Two Twits (above), who won the consolation giant potato, while Smells Like Team Spirit wafted into the bronze medal position.

If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 107689-CA. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

Van Dijk candid about pain of Real mauling

VIRGIL van Dijk has revealed the pain and anger Liverpool feel at giving themselves an "impossible job" in their quest for Champions League redemption.

The Reds' dream of returning to the final to right the wrongs of Paris are virtually over after a 5-2 mauling Tuesday night from last season's conquerors Real Madrid.

After the worst European defeat in Anfield history, Van Dijk insisted he and his teammates must face up to the "hard reality" of their struggled to make an impact on his return to Germany, but really should have scored with one of his few chances in the second half, racing forward before dragging his shot well wide.

But while City may be frustrated not to have come away with a win, they will be confident of getting the job done back at the Etihad where they won 17 of 19 games there this season.

Leipzig will rightly be happy with securing a draw considering the vast improvement in their attacking play in the second half, but City will feel aggrieved they did not have the chance to snatch a last-gasp winner.

With seconds left, Mahrez sent the ball into the box following a short corner and as the ball was headed towards goal by Rodri, Henrichs appeared to push it away with his hands.

There was no indication of a VAR check before the whistle was blown for full-time.

The Dutch star said: "We were 2-0 up and we gave it away because of mistakes we made against Real Madrid - who punish you immediately. That is the hard reality.

"The only thing we can do in this case is watch it and make sure it doesn't happen in the next game we play, which is Crystal Palace.

"It sounds pretty easy but it isn't.

"Everyone is angry, disappointed - and the way we lost, almost not giving ourselves a chance in Madrid, is tough.

"We have almost an impossible job in Madrid.

"It is difficult and something we have to deal with as a group. It's not been the easiest season so far but the only way to get out of it is to stick together."

Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp blamed mistakes for all five Real goals.

But Van Dijk said: "We're not robots. It is pretty clear to see we made mistakes that we shouldn't make, but the only thing we can do is learn from it and focus on the next one. Obviously we are all disappointed we lost, that is how we should be."

Liverpool's Brazil midfielder Fabinho, 29, could be facing the exit after five years at Anfield as boss Jurgen Klopp looks to refresh his squad in the summer.

Spurs are leading the chase to sign Leicester City and England midfielder James Maddison, 26.

Belgium forward Romelu Lukaku, 29, is not keen to return to Chelsea after his loan spell at Inter Milan ends at the end of the season.

Rice on top of Gunners' menu

Arsenal have put West Ham's England midfielder Declan Rice, 24, at the top of their wanted list this summer as the Gunners are unlikely to have the funds to compete for Dortmund's £150m-rated England midfielder Jude Bellingham, 19.

However, Rice would transform the Reds' midfield if he joined the Reds, according to the club's former midfielder Dietmar Hamann.

Bellingham, meanwhile, has not been put off by Liverpool's recent poor results and remains an admirer of both the club and Reds boss Jurgen Klopp.

Manchester United want to strengthen their defence by signing Napoli's South Korea centre-back Kim Min-jae, 26, who has a £42m release clause.

Javi Gracia the right man for Leeds, says former England 'keeper Foster

BEN FOSTER believes Javi Gracia is "exactly the kind of guy Leeds needed to help them to safety".

The former England goalkeeper rejoined Watford five years ago, when Gracia's only full season in charge at Vicarage Road began with a 100 percent record in their first four Premier League games and ended with an FA Cup final appearance.

The Spaniard's arrival at 19th-place Leeds was met with muted approval from fans but Foster says the new manager will be a perfect fit.

Speaking on his Cycling GK Facebook page, Foster said: "Javi demands a certain respect from you, a kind of healthy fear, and although he can be a little bit quiet at times, when he wants to get a bit shouty, he's got that in the bag as well.

"Everyone respected him because you could see he was a very, very good coach - he was structured, always in control and he took every single training session.

"He wants you to get forward and create chances, but he also expects you to chase back into position as well.

"He's a fantastic signing, a top coach and exactly the kind of guy Leeds needed to help them to safety."

Anthony seals memorable United comeback

■ Europa League: Ten Hag's men down Barca on pulsating evening at Old Trafford

Manchester United produced a memorable second-half comeback on Thursday night to reach the Europa League last 16 and knock out Barcelona in the process.

Brazilian duo Fred and Antony, who came on as a half-time substitute, both drilled home low first-time shots in front of an ecstatic Stretford End.

It was a victory that looked so unlikely at half-time as Barcelona led thanks to Robert Lewandowski's 18th-minute penalty after Bruno Fernandes' needless foul on Alejandro Balde.

But Antony's arrival for struggling forward Wout Weghost changed the course of the tie as it injected more pace into United's attacks, which the La Liga leaders failed to deal with.

Erik ten Hag's side now move on to Wembley, where they will look to collect their first silverware since 2017 when they face Newcastle in the EFL Cup final.

For Barcelona, it was the first time they have been eliminated from European competition without reaching the last 16 since 1985, which will add to the financial headaches piling on club president Joan Laporta.

Fred has had plenty of detractors since his £47m move to United from Shakhtar Donetsk in 2018.

The chances are if Christian Eriksen had not been ruled out until the end of April through injury, he wouldn't even have started this game.

Yet, as Ten Hag has admitted, anyone capable of playing regularly for Brazil has to be a good player and this was one of those occasions when he proved it.

Fred's goal was an excellent effort as he moved into space on the edge of the area, unseen by Barca's Dutch midfielder Frenkie de Jong, who United spent so long trying to sign in the summer.

When De Jong did come across to pressure his opponent after Fernandes had played a superb through ball, he was too late to prevent Fred drilling home the equaliser.

RIGHT SAID FRED: the Brazilian midfielder equalized for United on Thursday

The goal transformed the contest. Fred then used his energy to break down Barcelona counter attacks, make surging runs that unsettled the visitors and even did the simple passing right, which he quite often gets wrong.

Fred also followed up Alejandro Garnacho in having a shot blocked before a third effort from Antony brought their second goal and allowed United to join Arsenal in the last-16 draw.

Whoever they get, the first leg will be at home on 9 March.

City pay the price as Leipzig keep it close

Manchester City paid the price for failing to make the most of their first-half dominance as they were held to a draw by RB Leipzig in the first leg of their Champions League last-16 tie on Wednesday night.

The away side were in complete control in the first 45 minutes and got the breakthrough midway through the half when Ilkay Gundogan pounced on a mistake in defence and fed Riyad Mahrez to drive into the back of the net.

But RB Leipzig came out in the second half with more ambition and twice went close to equalising early on through Benjamin Henrichs, who first headed just over before then sweeping wide with just Ederson to beat.

The Manchester City

goalkeeper was called upon again to deny Andre Silva at his near post but the hosts were finally rewarded for their mounting pressure when Josko Gvardiol headed in following a short corner.

Janis Blaswich denied Gundogan from restoring the visitors' lead moments later with a reflex save from close range, while City had a penalty shout denied late on when Henrichs appeared to handle inside the area, but Leipzig held on to secure a draw.

City, bidding to end their wait for a first Champions League trophy, will look to get the job done in the return leg on Tuesday, 14 March.

An away draw in the knockout stage of Europe should be considered a very decent result, but City boss Pep Guardiola will likely be frustrated that his side failed to once again make their first-half dominance count.

They had gone into the game looking to respond after they were held by Nottingham Forest at the weekend, once again conceding in the second half after scoring before the break.

They controlled proceedings in the early stages of this game as Leipzig rarely ventured beyond their own half and once Mahrez scored it seemed only a question of how many more goals City would score.

But despite their possessional dominance, City found it hard to create too many chances, not helped by the absence of Kevin de Bruyne through illness.
