The Country Decides: General Election 2024

Another blow for Rishi as Tory MP backs Labour

RISHI SUNAK's tottering election campaign suffered another blow on Thursday with the news that former Conservative MP Mark Logan will be backing Labour saying the party could "bring back optimism into British life".

Mr Logan, who represented Bolton North East for the Tories until Parliament dissolved on Thursday, said Labour had been on a "journey" and now offered "centrist politics".

He added that the Tory Party was now "unrecognisable" from the party he joined a decade ago.

Mr Logan won his seat with a majority of just 378 in 2019, making it one of the most marginal in the country.

Mr Logan, who supported Brexit, revealed in the interview that he was standing down and said his application to join Labour was "going in today".

Labour has already chosen a candidate for his former constituency.

Asked if he could run for Labour in the future, he said: "I wouldn't rule out coming back into public life in the future but this is me definitely stepping down in this Parliament."

A Conservative Party spokesman said: "Much of the association wanted him deselected for inactivity and his failure to be present in Bolton for extended periods of time. And he's been asking No 10 for a peerage."

A second spokesperson said the party would choose a new candidate for Bolton shortly, adding: "It's notable that Mark Logan has defected to a party he can't even name a single policy of.

'fresh ideas'

Explaining his decision to support Labour, Mr Logan said: "The time has come to bring back optimism into British public life."

He compared the mood of the country to New Labour's 1997 election campaign, which had Things Can Only Get Better as its official anthem, and was followed by a landslide victory for the party.

"When I look back to my teenage years, in 1997 when Labour came to the fore at that time and we obviously heard the song Things Can Only Get Better, I feel that we're at that point again in British politics and British history," he said.

He added: "For my constituents and for the country, it's right that we get some stability back into the UK, we get optimism, we get new and fresh ideas."

Mr Logan, who backed Rishi Sunak to be Tory leader, did not criticise the prime minister personally, saying he could "leave politics with his head held high" if he lost the election.

"It's more about not the the push factor of Conservatives, but the pull factor of Keir Starmer, the new cabinet that would come in, the fresh faces, the fresh ideas," he said.

The announcement came just days after another Tory MP publicly backed a Reform UK candidate.

Lucy Allan, a supporter of Liz Truss, announced she is supporting Alan Adams instead of the local Tory candidate Hannah Campbell in her Telford

Mr Logan said a Labour government "is going to serve you better" seat

Ms Allan, who is quitting as an MP, previously flirted with the then-Brexit Party, highlighting some "fantastic candidates" in 2019. But she went a step further yesterday, declaring on X: "I am supporting Alan Adams to be Telford's next MP.

She added: "As a Royal Navy veteran, Alan knows what it means to serve. He is the candidate who is most in touch with Telford people and best able to represent them. He will serve all residents, not just those who vote for him. Alan is not in it for personal advantage, power, or control over people.

"Alan's motivation for standing for election is profoundly honourable. He will be honest with Telford and put Telford first.

"Alan gives Telford a choice, so that Telford does not have to settle for more of the same politics and more of the same politicians."

Lee Anderson, Reform UK's only MP after defecting from the Conservatives, thanked Ms Allan, adding that it was a "great move".

Nigel Farage, the party's Honorary President, added: "The Reform UK campaign is building momentum."

The Conservatives confirmed Ms Allan has been ditched from the party, adding that a "vote for Reform is a vote for Keir Starmer."

Conservative strategists fear a wave of support for Reform UK will hand Sir Keir the keys to Downing Street.

Mr Sunak has been dealt a series of blows in the early days of the campaign, with senior members of the Government – Michael Gove and Andrea Leadsom – announcing their intention to quit Parliament.

A post-war record of nearly 80 Conservative MPs have stepped down ahead of the General Election as the party languishes behind Labour in opinion polls.

MSP pays penalty for footy fan kids

MSPs have agreed to hand Michael Matheson a record ban from parliament for breaching Holyrood's expenses policy.

The former Scottish health secretary - who racked up an £11,000 data bill for his parliamentary iPad -because his children were watching football on it - is to be banned from Holyrood for 27 sitting days and will have his salary withdrawn for 54 days.

Mr Matheson apologised and said he accepted parliament's decision.

The SNP did not vote for the sanction and called for a review of the complaints process, arguing it was open to bias and prejudice.

The punishment, recommended by the standards committee, was passed in the chamber by 64 votes in favour, with no votes against.

'integrity and confidence'

The SNP successfully amended the motion to include complaints about the process, before then abstaining from voting on the final amended version.

Mr Matheson, who quit the cabinet in February, said: "I apologise and regret that this situation occurred."

The former minister backed the call for the Scottish Parliament Corporate Body (SPCB) to carry out an independent review parliament's the complaints process, restore integrity and confidence in the Parliament procedures".

He added: "I look forward to continuing to represent the people of Falkirk West, as I have done for many years."

Mr Matheson will be suspended for more than five weeks - exceeding previous record bans of one month. His salary penalty will be roughly equivalent to the £10,941.74 bill charged to his parliamentary device during a family holiday to Morocco between December 2022 and January 2023.

Mr Matheson eventually admitted the data bill had been run up by his children using his work device to watch football on holiday, after initially saying it had been used for constituency work.

The cost of the bill was initially picked up by the taxpayer before Mr Matheson agreed to pay it back from his own

Mr Matheson is to be barred from all proceedings in the chamber and committees, but not from the parliamentary estate.

He will not be able to return to proceedings until early September after MSPs return from summer recess.

"The Sphinx" gobbles up Royal Mail in £3.57bn deal

ROYAL Mail bosses have accepted a £3.57billion takeover by a Czech billionaire nicknamed The Sphinx.

Energy tycoon Daniel Kretinsky, 48, is also a major shareholder in Sainsbury's and West Ham United, known for an inscrutable nature and for protecting his privacy.

He will pay £3.70 a share for Royal Mail owner International Distribution Services with his EP Group giving "contractual commitments and intentions" to protect the parts of the carrier's business that perform a public service.

Kretinsky's personal fortune is estimated at £5.7billion.

Royal Mail will keep its branding, its UK headquarters and obligation to a one-price nationwide first-class post six days a week.

IDS claimed there is "no intention to make any material changes to overall headcount" or reductions in frontline workers.

Keith Williams, its chairman, said that both parties "are acutely aware of their responsibilities, particularly to the unique heritage of Royal Mail and its obligations as the provider of postal services".

Kretinsky was born and brought up in Brno in the Czech Republic where his father works as a professor and his mother was a judge.

He studied law, joining Slovak investment group J&T in 1999 and made his name as a deal maker.

The bulk of his fortune came from buying up fossil fuel producers being sold cheaply in anticipation of a switch to green energy.

His stake in Slovakia's Eustream pipeline, the largest transporter of Russian gas to Europe, let him cash in on soaring prices after Moscow's invasion of Ukraine. He also owns Germany's second-biggest coal miner, 30% of the Dutch post office and has UK energy interests.

The potential sale of Royal Mail attracted heavy scrutiny, with politicians and unions voicing concerns over the postal service – which had been privatised in 2013.

Business Secretary Kemi Badenoch met IDS bosses this month and underlined the need to protect services for the vulnerable, remote areas and small businesses.

Labour leader Sir Keir Starmer said he was "encouraged" by the takeover bid. When Kretinsky upped his IDS stake in 2022, ministers said they would launch a national security probe but eventually cleared the stakeholding.

Royal Mail proposed to Ofcom this month the scrapping of second-class deliveries on Saturdays and to cut the service to alternate weekdays in turnaround efforts.

The regulator began an investigation last week, after less than three quarters of first-class post arrived on time in the past year.

SUNAK: Hail Mary?

The Conservatives have set out a plan to require 18-year-olds take part in a form of national service if the party wins the general election on 4 July.

Rishi Sunak said the scheme would promote a "shared sense of purpose among our young people and a renewed sense of pride in our country".

Labour has labelled the plan a "gimmick" and other parties have criticised the government for its record on cutting troop numbers.

The proposed new scheme would not be conscription, where people are legally required to join the armed forces for a period.

two broad streams

But it would compel people by law to complete a community programme over a 12-month period, or enrol in a year-long military training scheme, when they turn 18.

The name is taken from the mandatory military training British men aged 17-21 had to undertake between 1949 and 1960.

Then, national service meant 18 months of military training and spending four years on a reserve list, meaning they could be called up to fight at short notice.

The scheme being proposed now would not force anyone to do military training, Home Secretary James Cleverly said

Jailed: Bulgarian benefit bandits who ripped off British taxpayers for a staggering £50m

■ The five person gang made thousands of false claims for Universal Credit between 2016 and 2021

The perpetrators of the largest case of benefit fraud in England and Wales have been jailed for between three and eight years.

The gang admitted to stealing more than £50m between them.

The three women and two men - all Bulgarian made thousands of false claims for Universal Credit between 2016 and 2021.

They also admitted money laundering.

Galina Nikolova, 39 was given an eight year sentence as the ringleader and responsible for £25m in losses to the taxpayer, while her former partner and alleged mastermind of the scheme, Gyunesh Ali, was given seven years and three months.

The judge said that Ali, 34, had committed fraud by false representation "on an industrial scale" during the scheme.

He said: "You played a leading role in a scheme that was complex and sophisticated in nature. Your offending lasted for some four and a half years and you were involved in a vast number of false declarations."

Other members of the gang received sentences ranging from three to four years.

The fake benefit claims were supported by an array of forged documents, including fictitious tenancy agreements, counterfeit payslips and mocked-up letters from landlords, employers and GPs.

If the claims were rejected, the fraudsters would try again and again until the applications were granted, the CPS said.

The investigation identified three "benefit factories" in the Wood Green area of north London where repeated claims originated.

The court heard that messages and images were exchanged on a WhatsApp group at the height of the fraud showing the gang mocking the "naivety of the DWP".

Under current laws, the maximum sentence the judge could have given was 10 years.

While the fraudulent claims began in October 2016, the gang were able to take advantage in particular of a relaxation of the benefit rules during the pandemic.

Crucially, face-to-face checks for Universal Credit were stopped as the DWP tried to cope with both Covid restrictions and an extraordinary number of claims.

The number of people on the benefit almost doubled, to just under six million, in the four months between March and June 2020. Fraud also soared during this time; in the two years of the pandemic, 2020-2022, official figures show that £10.2bn was lost to fraud on Universal Credit.

In May 2021, officers from the Metropolitan Police alongside DWP investigators raided three businesses the Wood Green and Stoke Newington areas of north London including Nikolova's business, cover conveniene store named Antonia Food - as well as several residential addresses.

Over three floors at Deluxe Advisors - Ali's company investigators found an extraordinary quantity

NOT THAT LONG: Galina Nikolova and Gyunesh Ali were the masterminds of the scheme and were jailed for eight years and seven years, respectively of evidence. There were computers, some open on the Universal Credit application page, filing cabinets full of claim packs, and folders containing records on benefit claims.

There were also several hundred lowtech mobile phones, all being charged, alongside thousands of SIM cards. On the back of most of the phones were the names and claim number of the applicants to which the phones referred.

They also found bundles of cash stuffed in shopping bags and suitcases, a luxury car and designer goods including watches jackets and glasses.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Jim MacIntyre, a DWP disclosure officer who attended the raid.

"I've dealt with cases for a large number of years, organised fraud case. But this is 100 times bigger."

Keane's shock at 'stadium headbutt'

United Manchester legend Roy Keane told a court he was "in shock" after being "headbutted" at Arsenal's stadium.

Scott Law is accused of attacking the Sky Sports pundit last September as he covered a match at the Emirates in North London.

He pleaded not guilty to common assault.

Mr Keane, 52, Wednesday told Corner Highbury magistrates that he and fellow Sky Sports star Micah Richards were walking down to the football pitch for final match analysis.

He said: "I was just walking and, before I knew it, I was hit. I felt the contact and fell back through some doors."

Law, 43, of Waltham Abbey, claims he acted in self defence when Keane "approached him in an aggressive manner".

FBI lends a hand as British Museum seeks to regain lost treasures

The FBI has been drafted in over the sale of what are suspected to be hundreds of treasures from the British Museum to US buyers.

It is understood that federal agents from the bureau have already helped with the return of 268 items, which were sold to a collector in Washington, DC.

Last year the British Museum revealed that ancient gems, jewellery and other items from its collections were missing, stolen or damaged.

A buyer in New Orleans has now told how an FBI agent had emailed him requesting information about two pieces he had purchased on eBay.

uncatalogued

The agent stated that they were assisting the Metropolitan Police with investigating the items missing or stolen from the museum.

The buyer said he no longer had either gem, and does not believe authorities have located

The FBI did not request any further information from him.

Of the estimated 1,500 items stolen or missing, the British Museum says 626 have been recovered, and 100 more have been found but have yet to be returned.

The majority the stolen items were uncatalogued, and the museum officials are still working on ways to prove they belong to its collection. In some collectors instances, have agreed to donate items to the museum for assessment.

The British Museum has accused a senior curator, Peter Higgs, of stealing, damaging, down and melting selling ancient artefacts. The museum estimates that Dr Higgs pocketed around £100,000 in total. He denies the allegations.

Court documents in a civil case brought by the museum against him suggest he had been stealing items for at least a decade, mainly selling unregistered goods the museum's from storerooms to at least 45 buyers on eBay.

Dr Higgs is defending the civil claim against him.

Man charged in death of 10 giant tortoises

■ Devon man dumped 'his pride and joy' in local forest after heating system failed

A man has admitted dumping 10 dead giant tortoises in a Devon forest after a heat lamp keeping them warm failed.

Gary Priddle, 56, of Grecian Way, Exeter, disposed of the dead Aldabra tortoises in Ashclyst Forest, north of Exeter, in late December 2023 and January 2024.

Priddle also admitted failing to meet the needs of the animals between 23 and 29 December as he did not check their daily welfare or a heating system, which failed, leading to their deaths.

Exeter Magistrates' Court heard Priddle had been identified after a member of the public came forward to say they had seen the tortoises in Priddle's home while viewing it for sale.

'magnificent creatures'

The defendant guilty pleaded one charge under the Welfare Act Animal 2006 and one under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 when he appeared before Exeter Magistrates' Court on Thursday.

Following the discovery of the bodies earlier his year, Devon and Cornwall Police issued an appeal for information which led to the culprit being identified

District Judge Stuart Smith said: "For six days you prioritised your festive celebrations over their care... as a result these magnificent creatures all died."

The judge Priddle had "ignored his responsibility" to the animals and had not checked on them during that period, leading to their deaths due to the cold conditions at that time of year.

Samantha Rogers, prosecuting, said two dead tortoises had been found in woodland by Killerton Estate staff on 8 January, prompting them to contact police.

The court heard further tortoise carcasses had been found in various locations on 11, 12 and 13 January and on 11 March.

Ms Rogers said Devon and Cornwall Police had issued an appeal for information which led to Priddle being identified.

bone disease

She said officers and the RSPCA had gone to the address where Priddle admitted he owned them.

Ms Rogers said he told officers he had not checked on the tortoises for six days and "when he had visited them the heating light had stopped working and all of the tortoises had died".

The heard court Priddle said he had panicked and put the carcasses in his car before disposing of them in woodland.

post-mortem Α examination carried out on four of the animals had found evidence of bone disease due to poor husbandry, the court heard.

Ms Rogers added: "He said they were his pride and joy.'

Seigne, Peter mitigating for Priddle, said: "My client has cared for tortoises almost all of his life, adding that this was an "isolated incident".

Priddle was disqualified from owning or keeping tortoises for 10 years and ordered to pay costs and a surcharge of £199.

It would be made up of two broad streams for 18-year-olds to choose from:

Community volunteering: Spending one weekend every month - which equates to 25 days over a 12-month period - volunteering with organisations such as the NHS, fire service, ambulance, search and rescue, and critical local infrastructure.

Military training: applying for one of up 30,000 military reserved for teenagers deemed the "brightest and the best" in areas like logistics, cyber security, procurement or civil response operations over a year-long period.

The vast majority of "selective" 18-year-olds would not placements take part in any military training at all. While 18-year-olds would have a choice in the type of national service they signed up to, participation would not be voluntary - it would be required by law.

No one would go to prison for not taking part, Mr Cleverly said, but there would be noncriminal sanctions for those who refused.

Conservatives The have not said what those punishments would be.

Jail for dine-and -dash couple

themselves on T-bone steaks in restaurants fled without paying have been jailed.

Bernard and Ann McDonagh ordered three-course meals for themselves and their children, including some dishes sent back uneaten, totalling £1,168.

The dine and dash duo, who admitted five joint charges of fraud, were arrested after images of their scam were posted on social media.

Swansea Crown Court heard the pair, who used more than 40 aliases and 18 dates of birth, dishonestly obtained food and drink at four restaurants and one takeaway in South Wales between last August last year and this April.

Ann McDonagh, 39, also admitted four counts of shoplifting, including at Tommy Hilfiger, taking items worth £1,017.

Judge Paul Thomas sentenced her to 12 months in prison while herhusband, 41, got eight months. The couple will serve half their sentences and must pay £2,185 in compensation – £1,168 for unpaid restaurant bills and £1,017 for shoplifted items.

The judge said: "You

A COUPLE who gorged would have food and drink served to you to the value of hundreds of pounds and would cynically and brazenly leave without paying.

"You would order the most expensive items such as steaks in the full knowledge you had no intention of paying."

The pair, of Port Talbot, would tell owners they were going to the cashpoint while their children waited behind - before they too made a dash for it which the judge said was "ruthlessly exploitative". He added: "It was criminality for criminality's sake - to see if you could get away with it.

"I have no doubt, apart from the greed element, you had got a buzz out of what you were able to get away with on a regular basis."

The judge added that the behaviour of the family, from the traveller community, would "fuel and reinforce" negative stereotypes.

Representing Bernard, Giles Hayes said the dad of six was "deeply embarrassed". Andrew Evans, for Ann, said she had suffered family bereavements and may have committed the frauds "to make herself feel better".

Lavish Cotswolds bolthole finds a very Swift renter

POP superstar Taylor Swift has rented a lavish £3.3million Cotswolds retreat for the UK leg of her Eras tour.

Taylor, 34, is set to be joined by boyfriend and NFL star Travis Kelce in the rural bolthole.

The Tortured Poets singer, who grew up on a Christmas tree farm, reportedly wants a place to unwind away and is "most at home in muddy boots".

Taylor's tour kicks off its UK leg with three nights in Edinburgh before she will be heading to Liverpool and Cardiff.

But with an eight-week break scheduled from the end of June to the middle of August, fans might catch a glimpse of the singer enjoying the countryside.

Taylor and Travis, also 34, will be a stone's throw from celebrity hangout Soho Farmhouse. Her neighbours will include Foreign Secretary David Cameron, TV's Simon Cowell and Amanda Holden plus Jeremy Clarkson and his Diddly Squat farm.

And it's not just Taylor making the money. The UK economy is set to be boosted by £1billion as fans travel from far and wide, says Barclays Bank.

Each is expected to spend on average £848 to see the superstar.

Meanwhile, rail bosses will pause engineering works for one night only so fans can travel home safely.

Worth a Look/Worth a Listen

Take a long look Inside No. 9

■ British Anthology series offers viewers a deliciously dark and inventive
TV experience

Here at BW Towers we are always on the search for good British TV and the advent of streaming has provided a smorgasbord from which to choose.

But leading the pack by a considerable distance this month has been Inside No. 9, a very clever and inventive anthology series created by Reece Shearsmith and Steve Pemberton currently enjoying its ninth season and final season on BBC2 back in the UK.

Over here the show is available on Amazon Prime, allowing those without a VPN and iPlayer to enjoy the format, in which each episode stands alone, presenting a unique tale set inside various No. 9 locations, ranging from houses and flats to mansions and even a sleeper train carriage.

masterclass

The half hour anthology format is a rarity in television these days - it's something of a throwback to the golden age of television in the 1950s, but its incarnation here is astoundingly good. The show is a masterclass

LIVING THE WORK: Reece Shearsmith and Steve Pemberton star in many of the episodes of Inside No 9, now available on Amazon Prime

Pemberton and Shearsmith debuted their show in 2014, and it is currently midway through its ninth and final season in the UK in storytelling, offering viewers a deliciously dark and inventive experience. Season One got me hooked from the first episode with its collection of intricately narratives, woven showcasing the creators' talent for seamlessly blending genres such as horror, comedy, and drama. From a seemingly mundane dinner party with sinister secrets to a mysterious costume party where nothing is as it seems, the first season sets the stage for the unpredictable twists and turns that lie ahead. Key to the show's knack of hooking a viewer is the writers' ability to load their characters with depth and backstory in a matter of seconds.

As the series progresses, each season delves deeper into the human psyche, exploring themes of obsession, guilt, betrayal, and the macabre. Whether it's a chilling ghost story set in a gothic mansion, a comedic farce revolving around a disastrous game of sardines, or a heart-wrenching of love and loss in a hospital ward, the show rarely fails to surprise and captivate - at least it did with me.

unpredictable

One of the show's greatest strengths lies in its ability to constantly reinvent itself, offering viewers a diverse array of narratives and characters while maintaining a consistent level of quality. Shearsmith and Pemberton's writing is sharp and unpredictable, keeping viewers guessing as they navigate through a series of twists and turns. In every episode you sense a hairpin turn is coming, but you can rarely guess in which direction.

Shearsmith and Pemberton themselves often take on multiple roles within a single episode, but the show's quality also attracts stellar performances from the ensemble cast.

Whether you're a fan of horror, comedy, or simply enjoy a good old-fashioned twist ending, this anthology series offers something for everyone. Take a look around Inside No. 9... you'll probably want to linger awhile.

Bonanza: Saints edge Leeds to enter the promised land

■ Armstrong's £140m goal secures Premier League promotion

Southampton beat Leeds in the Championship play-off final on Sunday to secure an immediate return to the Premier League and the £140m to go with it.

Saints' 11-ye ar spell in the top flight came to an end after a wretched campaign last time out but, despite finishing one place and three points behind Leeds in fourth, it is they who join Leicester and Ipswich in going up.

Armstrong Adam scored the decisive goal with a clinical finish after being put clear by Will Smallbone.

Leeds substitute Dan James clattered a bouncing ball against the crossbar late on as they pushed for an equaliser but Russell Martin's men saw out almost 12 minutes of time added on.

Defeat for Leeds consigned them another season in the Championship and meant they have now lost their past three finals at Wembley without scoring and been unsuccessful in all six of their play-off campaigns.

Saints' promotion means that all three playoff finals this year were won by the team who had finished lower in the league table, with the team who had finished higher failing to score in all three.

Both teams came into the game off the back of comprehensive secondleg wins in the semi-finals, Leeds beating Norwich 4-0 and Southampton easing to a 3-1 victory over West Bromwich Albion.

There was nothing between the two sides for the first quarter of the game before Armstrong put Saints in front with his 24th goal of a prolific campaign.

Chances were few and far between thereafter, an oddly off-colour Crysencio Summerville shooting wide for Leeds and Samuel United finished eighth in the Premier League with a negative goal difference and were knocked out of the Champions League at the group stage.

But Ten Hag blamed a persistent injury crisis that robbed him of key players and a settled defence for a chaotic campaign that described as a "mess".

Klopp: I couldn't be a passenger

JURGEN Klopp has revealed he had to leave Liverpool because he was no longer at his best.

Klopp bid an emotional farewell to 11,000 fans, packed inside the M&S Bank Arena by the River Mersey this week and he claimed it was time to go because he felt jaded.

The 56-year-old says he could not manage Liverpool on percent" and that he did not want to be "a passenger" carried along by his coaching team.

"I know that a lot of people don't believe it when I say I'm running out of energy," he told the audience. "I don't in private life and it's not that I can't get up in the morning.

"When I talk about running out of energy, how I understand it, I know you all work hard and much harder than me, but the difference is that I get watched by the public all the time, which makes it a bit annoying

"The main thing is that in my job you cannot do it on 90 percent. Other jobs you get through it for a week or two.

Chelsea in the Enz zone

■ Maresca poised to take hot seat at the Bridge

Enzo Maresca is set to join Chelsea after one season at Leicester, which ended in their promotion to the Premier League.

The 44-year-old is set to sign a five year deal, replacinig Mauricio Pochettino, who left Stamford Bridge by mutual consent after 12 months in charge. Maresca has also worked under Pep Guardiola at Man City

Many neutral observers felt Pochettino's methods at Chelsea were finally beginning to bear fruit, as the team began to click and enjoyed an unbeaten final six games of the season, allowing them a glimpse of European football qualification just when their rivals - most notably Tottennam began dropping off.

But club owner Todd Boehly has proved himself a demanding boss, and sources inside the club said the die was cast for the Argentine's dismissal following the Blues' 5-0 thrashing at Arsenal in mid -April.

And so a mere 48 hours after Chelsea beat Bournemouth on the final day to finish sixth, restoring European football and a bit of pride to west London, Pochettino was gone.

Maresca was quickly identified by the Chelsea heirarchy as the best of its short list - which is thought to have also included Kieran McKenna, Thomas Frank and Roberto De Zerbi, after Chelsea co-sporting directors Paul Winstanley and Stewart Laurence travelled to Marbella for face-to-face talks with him after Leicester gave permission for discussions commence.

Maresca has impressed in guiding Leicester City back to the Premier League

The Italian's release clause at the King Power Stadium is understood to have been between £8m and £10m.

Chelsea were impressed by the depth and breadth of Maresca's knowledge about their squad in talks with his representatives, as well as his focus on the way Chelsea want to play and his desire for the job. Senior Chelsea figures believe the new head coach will be the final piece of the jigsaw to fit into the new modern structure they have built at the club.

The west London club expect to be busy in the transfer market this summer with players coming and going. Trading is likely to see the signing of a new No 9 and centre-back, while the futures of highearners such as Romelu Lukaku and Kepa Arrizabalaga need to be resolved.

Triumphant Ten Hag made to wait

■ United coach's future in the balance despite FA Cup triumph

Manchester United are taking their time over the future of Erik ten Hag with no decision expected on the manager this week.

The Old Trafford hierarchy are refusing to rush into a decision before determining whether to stick with Ten Hag, or sack their FA Cup winning manager.

United launched a season review this week and want to ensure they carry out a full assessment and work carefully through all considerations before making a judgement on Ten Hag.

There is recognition that United have a big decision to make either way and want to be sure they have left no stone unturned.

Speaking more generally in February in the wake of confirmation of his £1.3 billion for a 27.7 per cent stake in the club that saw him take complete control of football operations at Old Trafford, Sir Jim Ratcliffe stressed the importance of not rushing the big decisions they had to make going forward.

"We have to be careful we don't rush at it in a way," the Ineos owner said. "You don't want to run to the wrong solution rather than walk to the correct solution."

That mindset is now being applied to the ruling over Ten Hag's future. United had always maintained that a final decision on the Dutchman's future would not be made until they had been able to thoroughly assess the season.

Ten Hag flew on holiday on Sunday, the day after masterminding an impressive 2-1 victory over Premier League champions Manchester City in the Cup final at Wembley to deliver
