“Shameless Radicalizer” facing a lot of porridge

■ Anjem Choudary found guilty of masterminding violent Islamic group

Radical Islamist preacher Anjem Choudary is facing a long jail sentence after being found guilty of directing a terrorist organization.

Choudary was convicted of masterminding the al-Muhajiroun (ALM) group and drumming up cross-border support for the banned organization online.

After a trial at Woolwich crown court in south London on Tuesday, Choudary was convicted of having a “caretaker role” in directing ALM.

Prosecutors said Choudary directed the terrorist organization for a significant period of time from 2014 onwards and encouraged support for the group by addressing online meetings of the New York-based Islamic Thinkers Society (ITS).

household name

The 57-year-old, of Ilford in east London, gave lectures to ITS, which prosecutors said was “the same” as ALM.

Choudary came as close to becoming a household name as an extremist can get in the UK through his media appearances and controversial actions such as protesting at UK soldiers’ funerals. Security experts have claimed Choudary influenced dozens of British jihadists.

terror organization

The trained solicitor’s apparent ability to act just within the bounds of the law ended in 2016 when he was convicted of supporting Islamic State and he served half of a six-month prison sentence before being released on licence.

Choudary’s licence conditions expired in July 2021 and it was nearly a year later in June 2022 when he hosted his first online lecture for ITS. He went on to hold about 40 lectures or classes for the group until April 2023.

But unknown to Choudary, ITS was infiltrated by undercover law enforcement officers in the US, who were present at online lectures in 2022 and 2023, held over the Element encrypted messaging platform.

ALM was proscribed as a terror organization in the UK in 2010, though it was said in court that the group had continued to exist under various names.

‘tentacles’

The conviction followed investigations by the Metropolitan police, the New York police department (NYPD), and the Royal Canadian Mounted Anjem Choudary was described by police as a ‘shameless, prolific radicalizer’. He was convicted in South London this week and will be sentenced July 30

Police.

Cmdr Dominic Murphy, the head of the Metropolitan police’s counter-terrorism command, said: “There are individuals that have conducted terrorist attacks or travelled for terrorist purposes as a result of Anjem Choudary’s radicalising impact upon them.”

During a press conference, Murphy added: “ALM’s tentacles have spread across the world and have had a massive impact on public safety and security.”

Rebecca Weiner, an NYPD deputy commissioner, said it was a “historic case”, describing Choudary as a “shameless, prolific radicaliser”.

She added: “It is usually the foot soldiers, the individuals who are brought into the network who go on to commit the attacks who are brought to justice.

“And it’s rarely the leader, which is what makes this a particularly important moment.”

Omar Bakri Muhammad, who founded

ALM, was in prison in Lebanon between 2014 and March 2023, and Choudary stepped in and “filled the void”, the court heard.

Khaled Hussein, 29, who prosecutors said was a “follower and dedicated supporter” of Choudary, was also found guilty of membership of ALM.

Choudary was convicted of directing a terrorist organization and addressing meetings to encourage support for a proscribed organization. He and Hussein will be sentenced on 30 July.

Cleverly, Tugendhat and Jenrick make early going in Tory race

■ Bigger names expected to join soon in battle to replace Sunak

WITH the dust settling after their disastrous performance in the General Election earlier this month, leading Conservatives are now jostling for position to replace Rishi Sunak, with three candidates leading the early running.

Former Home Secretary James Cleverly announced his plan to run on Tuesday, a day before nominations actually opened, and he was quickly joined by Tom Tugendhat and Robert Jenrick.

Seen as a moderate within the Conservative ranks, Cleverly has said the Conservatives need to "re-establish our reputation as the party who, in government, helps grow the economy, helps people achieve their goals, their dream and their aspirations".

Alluding to the party's historic loss at the ballot box, he said: "We must ditch the self-indulgent infighting and be ready to deliver when the next chance comes."

Cleverly, who has a net favourability of -9 with the general public, held several ministerial jobs under Boris Johnson before being appointed as the education secretary at the end of the ex-PM's premiership.

He was foreign secretary for both Liz Truss and Sunak, and home secretary from November 2023 and July 2024.

'common sense'

Formerly the security minister, Tugendhat now shadows the same role on the other side of the House.

Although he launched his campaign with a bang by saying he would consider leaving the ECHR (European Convention on Human Rights), he is usually perceived as a moderate in the one nation wing of the party. He argued in an article for The Telegraph that he would prepared to leave the ECHR if institutions make it harder to control the country's borders, claiming this was a "common sense Conservative position" to take.

The former army officer suggested defence spending should be pulled up to 3% of GDP, and claimed he was running "to be the next Conservative prime minister".

He ran in the last leadership race in 2022, but was knocked out and chose to support Liz Truss instead.

He also chaired the foreign affairs select committee from 2017 to 2022.

And with a net favourability of -3, he is the most popular contender with the public so far - a sign of just how far the Conservatives have fallen in public esteem.

Further to the right of the party lies Robert Jenrick, the former immigration and health minister - and one-time housing secretary.

A former ally of Sunak, he dramatically resigned from his cabinet in December claiming the Rwanda plan to deport illegal asylum seekers was not a strong enough deterrent.

He is expected to try and appeal to Tory members more sympathetic to Reform UK.

His campaign manager, Tory MP Danny Kruger,

James Cleverly, Tom Tugendhat and Robert Jenrick are all in the running said Jenrick has the "energy, temperament and policy agenda to take on our rivals and lead us back to power in five years."

Others expected to announce in the coming days are shadow work and pensions secretary, Mel Stride, former home secretary Suella Braverman and her predecessor Priti Patel.

Kemi Badenoch, shadow housing, communities and local government secretary, may also join the race.

Eluned Morgan set to be named First Minister of Wales

Eluned Morgan has been named the new Welsh Labour leader and is poised to be the next first minister of Wales.

She said the Welsh government has not "made a good fist of things" recently, but that it was now "turning a new page"

Ms Morgan, 57, must wait for the Senedd to reconvene during its summer break to be officially confirmed as first minister.

Prime Minister Sir Keir Starmer congratulated her, saying she was "already making history"

Her appointment follows the resignation of Vaughan Gething, who announced his departure

Eluned Morgan is poised to replace Vaughan Gething, who stepped down earlier this month

last week, after just four months in the job

Ms Morgan is a former MEP and member of the House of Lords - her formal title is Baroness Morgan of Ely - was brought up in Cardiff, and has been MS for Mid and West Wales since 2016

Government to close Bibby Stockholm

The controversial Bibby Stockholm is to close, the Home Office has announced.

It will not renew the contract for the barge, which is being used to house asylum seekers at Portland Port while their claims are processed, when it ends in January.

Man charged over knife attack on army officer

■ Locals stunned by attack near Gillingham barracks

A man has appeared in court charged with the attempted murder of a lieutenant colonel who was stabbed repeatedly near a barracks in Kent.

Lt Col Mark Teeton is in a serious but stable condition after he was attacked while wearing his uniform on Tuesday evening. His wife was heard screaming for the attacker to leave him alone and then possibly saved his life by trying to pull her husband away.

Her screams of "get off him" were captured on nearby doorbell cameras as her husband, believed to be in his 40s, lay blood-soaked on the ground.

The serviceman was airlifted to hospital following the attack.

A witness who lives near the Brompton Medical Centre, close to the scene, described the officer's wife asking for medical help following the attack.

She said she heard the woman say: "My husband has been stabbed - is there a first aider?"

Anthony Esan, 24, was charged with attempted murder and possession of an offensive weapon in a public place.

He appeared at Medway Magistrates' Court on Thursday and was remanded in custody. He will next appear at Maidstone Crown Court on August 22.

"saddened"

Prosecutor Rajni Prashar said: "A member of the public called 999 to report a male had been stabbed."

"It was then reported that the victim was a soldier in uniform."

She told the court a man was seen "running up behind" the Army officer before he "pulled the soldier to the ground", stabbed him "repeatedly" and drove away on a moped.

Kent Police said Esan was arrested near his home address in Mooring Road, Rochester, around 6.30pm on Tuesday.

Defence Secretary John Healey and Home Secretary Yvette Cooper both expressed their shock at the attack.

Sir Roly, who is chief of the General Staff, said in a post on X he was "saddened" by the attack.

"Our armed forces make extraordinary sacrifices to defend our nation and deserve to be respected."

"My thoughts and best wishes are with him and his family. They have the full support of the chain of command as they recover from this horrendous incident."

On Wednesday, Prime Minister Sir Keir opened his first Prime Minister's Questions by telling MPs: "I know the whole House will be shocked by the news that a soldier has been attacked in Kent."

"Our thoughts are with him, his family and our armed forces who serve to keep us safe. We wish him a swift recovery."

An Army spokesperson said: "Our thoughts remain with the officer subjected to this savage and unprovoked attack, his family and friends and with those who witnessed the horrific events unfolding.

"We're extending all our support and best wishes to him as he fights the serious injuries he sustained in hospital, where his condition remains serious but stable.

"We will continue to work closely with Kent Police to understand what happened and support the investigation. Anyone who witnessed the attack or who has any relevant information should contact Kent Police."

Tabloid fight to blame for family rift - Harry

PRINCE HARRY has spoken out on his "destroyed" relationship with his family, blaming the rift on his legal battles with Britain's tabloid press.

"It's certainly a central piece to it," Harry told ITV for the documentary "Tabloids on Trial", which aired on Thursday night.

The Prince is currently suing Rupert Murdoch's UK newspaper arm, News Group Newspapers (NGN), and the publisher of the Daily Mail in two separate lawsuits, alleging unlawful activities by journalists and private investigators over several years.

Harry has previously referred to the lawsuits

Cambridge Dictionary gets 'the ick'

"The ick" is among 3,200 new words and phrases added to the Cambridge Dictionary so far this year.

Referring to the feeling of being overwhelmed by a sudden dislike or loss of attraction for somebody, "the ick" has had a rapid uptake across popular culture and internet chat.

It gained recent prominence after being used on Love Island, the ITV dating show, but the term is thought to have first been coined in 1990s comedy drama Ally McBeal.

The Cambridge Dictionary has decided "the ick" now deserves to have its place in the English language sealed and has included it on a list of new additions in its 2024 update.

Examples given by the dictionary of the phrase used in sentences include: "I used to like Kevin, but when I saw him in that suit it gave me the ick", and: "If you suddenly feel repulsed by someone you're dating, that's the ick talking."

Other terms made popular by texting and the world of the internet to have received the rubber stamp by the Cambridge Dictionary include "boop", "copypasta" and "TYKYK".

"TYKYK" is an abbreviation for "if you know you know", used to suggest shared knowledge or a private joke that others might not understand.

"Copypasta", referring to chunks of text shared many times on the internet, will also now grace the online pages of the Cambridge Dictionary.

It will join "boop", meaning a "gentle hit or touch on a person's or animal's nose or head", "porch piracy", the act of stealing parcels from outside people's houses, and "chef's kiss", which describes something perfect or excellent.

Tributes flow for Sir Kenneth Grange

■ Hugely influential designer was responsible for numerous British consumer classics

TRIBUTES flowed this week for Sir Kenneth Grange, one of Britain's most influential designers of the last 100 years, who has died at the age of 95.

Though not exactly a household name, Grange's ideas shaped the nation's landscape for decades, from its coin-operated parking meters to Kenwood food mixers, Kodak cameras and the sleekly aerodynamic silhouette of the InterCity 125 train.

Influenced chiefly by the look and democratic ideology of Modernism, Grange was, along with Terence Conran and the cutlery designer David Mellor, part of a generation of postwar designers who felt it was their duty to create affordable products which radically improved their users' lives.

Indeed, the Bauhaus's insistence on functionalism left an indelible mark on Grange's vast, hugely successful output. His Kodak cameras alone sold in their millions.

There was a time, at some point during the 1990s, when you could have lived a life almost entirely ensconced in a landscape of products designed by Sir Kenneth Grange. You might have been woken up by his Short & Mason alarm clock, had a shave using his Wilkinson razor, made tea in his Kenwood kettle and lit your first cigarette of the day using his Ronson lighter. And that was before you'd even got out of the house. From there you might have travelled on a Grange-designed train, or waited in a Grange-designed bus stop, or slotted a coin into his parking meter, then opened a door using one of his handles, hung your coat up on one of his hooks and signed a letter with his Parker Pen.

Grange's breakthrough product was the Kenwood Chef, the 1960s food mixer that brought tech to backward British kitchens - and would probably have been the only truly modern thing in the room. Stoves were cast-iron, big old boilers sat in the corner, curtains concealed a cupboard beneath an old Belfast sink with a wooden drainer, most kitchens remained largely Victorian.

"The mixer was a reflection of an American lifestyle," he says. "It became an icon of aspiration and status - the perfect wedding present which went with the trend towards 'fancy' cooking. And for me the money was immense, it really set me up."

His next biggest job was the InterCity 125 train, still a familiar sight on the railways after almost 50 years. It has a great tale of chutzpah. "I was commissioned to apply a livery to this new train. It was quite a good commission but I thought I could do better with the design. So we worked in a wind tunnel in Imperial College, I gave the technician a fiver to work overnight and we came up with this design. The livery was presented, alongside our design. And we got the whole job. I think it still holds the world speed record for a diesel electric train."

Grange died at the weekend just four days after his 95th birthday.

be doing for the greater good, but I'm doing this for my reasons," he told ITV.

"For me, the mission continues, but it has caused...part of a rift," he added.

Titanic builder struggles to keep head above water

THE VENERABLE Harland and Wolff shipyard in Belfast, where the Titanic was built back in 1911, is struggling to stay afloat amid mounting financial woes, and if it cannot secure a £200m loan, may well close its fabled gates.

The yard has suffered a series of financial setbacks in recent years and this week asked the government for a £200m loan guarantee - money which will be at risk if the commercial loan goes wrong.

H&W was once the world's biggest shipyard and central to the boom which built Belfast into a manufacturing behemoth of the early 20th century. The yard's massive yellow gantry cranes, Samson and Goliath, have become emblematic of Northern Ireland's capital. A marble statue of Edward Harland still stands outside Belfast city hall.

The sprawling yard at Queen's Island, a reclaimed area on the city's waterfront, tells the story not just of 20th-century Belfast but of Britain. From it came the aircraft-carriers, cruisers and tanks which helped defeat Nazi Germany. It built Sea Quest, the rig which discovered Britain's first North Sea oil; more recently it has assembled some of the giant wind turbines weaning the economy off that same oil.

But increased air travel, a shrinking British navy and cheaper foreign competition undermined it.

In 2019 the firm almost collapsed, only to be bought for £5.3m ($6.9m) log and remove those with no right to be here.'

Extending the use of the Bibby Stockholm would have cost more than £20 million next year, which was 'unacceptable' it said.

This week the Home Secretary set out more detail on the Government's plans to save billions of pounds by clearing the asylum backlog - where thousands remained permanently in taxpayer-funded accommodation.

Bibby:

the decision not to renew the contract for use of the Bibby Stockholm barge.

Ending the use of the Bibby Stockholm, it says, forms part of the expected £7.7 billion of savings in asylum costs over the next 10 years, as the Home Secretary pledges to take action to 'restart asylum case working, clear the back-

Towering over the landscape: H&W's famed gantry cranes, Samson and Goliath by InfraStrata, a London-based energy firm that promised a new start.

But where it once employed 35,000 people, there are now just a few hundred workers. But the 163-year-old company remains an institution whose significance to Belfast outweighs its size. Its own increasingly desperate struggle to stay afloat is of symbolic importance to the city and the wider shipbuilding industry.

Two leading Unions in Scotland - the GMB and Unite - who represent workers at the Harland and Wolff fabrication yards in Lewis and in Fife, are warning that nearly 400 Scottish jobs also look vulnerable.

GMB Scotland secretary Louise Gilmour has written to Scottish Secretary

Ian Murray, Deputy First Minister Kate Forbes and UK Industry Minister Sarah Jones to raise the plight of the Scottish yards.

"The recent history of the Scots yards has been one of squandered opportunities," she said.

"The workers are skilled, committed and blameless for the ongoing uncertainty around their yards."

The brightly colored artwork for Charli XCX's album set off a wave of memes on social media, and this week the Harris campaign adopted the theme 'Kamala IS brat': Harris campaign goes lime green to embrace the meme of the summer

■ Charli XCX's album has taken pop culture by storm. Now the vice-president is joining the party

Kamala Harris may have received a record-breaking, $100m-plus in donations this week, but to our British-centered minds the real story of the week is how she was endorsed by a British pop singer from Cambridge - and how Harris leaned into it.

The average age of a print newspaper reader is about 57 years old, according to reliable sources. And until this week most of us (certainly in our office) have been unaware of the British pop singer Charli XCX, a talented lass from Cambridge with an Indian mother and Scottish father, who has enjoyed decent success for more than a decade, before she finally broke through into global consciousness with a single tweet on Sunday.

Two weeks ago the 31-year-old announced the release of her sixth studio album via Instagram. Posting a photo of herself sitting on a dirty pavement, she held a kryptonite green vinyl cover in her hands with the word "brat" emblazoned on the front.

The archetypical brat, Charli explained on TikTok, is "just like that girl who is a little messy and likes to party and maybe says some dumb things sometimes, who feels herself, but then also maybe has a breakdown, but kind of parties through it".

But when the news broke that President Biden would not be running for re-election and moreover, endorsed Kamala Harris as his successor on Sunday, Charli she went one better.

"Kamala IS brat," opined the singer.

And the Harris team took note.

Charli had chosen a neon lime backdrop for her album cover, one that's sickeningly sweet, representing both the highs of a long night out and the impending crash of a hangover.

Soon after receiving Charli's apparent approval, the Harris campaign's official Twitter page (@kamalahq) changed its backdrop to brat green. Charli's song 365, an ode to "bumpin' that" - meaning beats, and club drugs - is also the featured soundtracks one of the Harris team's TikTok videos.

Gevin Reynolds, a former speechwriter for Harris, said he believes it's "extremely smart for her to lean into the meme".

"It shows a recognition of how critical young voters are to winning in November, and a commitment to meeting them where they are."

So far, there's been little Brat back-lash, though pundits over the age of 35 seem confused by the topic. CNN's Jake Tapper dedicated a roundtable to the topic, concluding that he "will aspire to be brat". Stephen Colbert took up a Brat-themed TikTok dance during The Late Show.

David Hogg, a survivor of the Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School shooting and gun control activist, wrote on X that "The amount [Charli's] single tweet may have just done for the youth vote is not insignificant."

Memes alone do not win elections, but Charli's tweet livened up a race that Harris's bid had already revived.

ARIES: Now is a good time to set your financial goals while Mars your boss is in your financial area. But beware his volatile influence could provoke you to a damaging temper outburst.

TAURUS: You are likely feeling confused about a decision pending currently. This is not to be taken lightly or in haste, so consider it well before you decide.

GEMINI: If possible do not make any major schedule changes this week ahead. It will be better by early next month. Be ready to take charge of some unfinished business by next weekend.

CANCER: You have some skills that you can use to help others; with that in mind it might be time to reach out to help someone. This is now your New Year. Go forward with confidence!

LEO: You are starting to feel more positive and ready to move forward in your life. However, take your time as mid-month is better for any action anywhere. Happy Birthday!

VIRGO: This week or so ahead you can expect delays in some areas. This is due to fiery Mars holding things up for a short time but the results could be positive so do not think negative thoughts!

LIBRA: You are nearer to completing some project than you think. With this in mind start preparing for the next one on your list. Mid-month ahead is looking good.

SCORPIO: Life is looking more positive and now you can come to terms with recent financial changes. Live more in the moment and expect better days with some lovely outcomes in several areas.

SAGITTARIUS: Your boss Jupiter is currently strolling in your opposite sign Gemini until the middle of 2025. It is to your overall benefit to be positive in thought and deed.

CAPRICORN: Time now to hold on to your purse strings until later next month. The recent full moon in your sign should have woken you up to what is not working for you!

AQUARIUS: Whatever does not sit well with you in life it is time to change. It's a good time to catch up on everyday tasks now and enjoy the current time relaxing. Next month will be busier.

PISCES: This is a time of change so start preparing to complete something long overdue. This can be in any area of your life. If you have been closed off in some area open your doors and move forward.

Hammers nail down Bayern's Mazraoui

West Ham have agreed a fee with Bayern Munich for Moroccan full-back Noussair Mazraoui.

Sources say if the deal goes through, the Hammers will play an initial £13.47m for the 26-year-old (pictured, right), with a potential further £2.95m in add-ons.

Talks over personal terms are continuing for a player who has been linked with a number of clubs this summer, including Manchester United.

Mazraoui was born in the Netherlands and joined Ajax as a youngster.

He joined Bayern on a free transfer in 2022 and made 29 appearances for the Bundesliga giants in all competitions last season.

Atletico Madrid are "extremely confident" of securing a deal to sign Chelsea and England midfielder Conor Gallagher, 24, say reports, while Crystal Palace are targeting a move for Marseille and Senegal winger Ismaila Sarr, 26.

And Trent Alexander-Arnold, 25, wants to stay with Liverpool despite the English full-back attracting what the tabloids describe as 'strong interest' from Spanish giants Real Madrid in the wake of Jurgen Klopp's departure.

adding to their 1-1 draw against Bournemouth on Saturday in a half-empty Levi's Stadium, home of the San Francisco 49ers.

It is the Welsh club's second consecutive US pre-season tour, capitalising on their popularity under co-owners, Hollywood actors Rob McElhenney and Ryan Reynolds, with Phil Parkinson's side preparing for third tier football for the first time since 2005.

Maresca was asked about conceding goals through his playing philosophy, which included more patient build-up from back to front.

"Hopefully, not too many. It is one of the risks that you have trying to build from behind."

And the 44-year-old former Leicester boss said he would "absolutely" continue his style, adding: "I have no doubt. I think you are going to concede in different ways, so you need to decide in which way you need to concede a goal."

"Sometimes teams that try to build from the back concede goals but I think you are going to score more than you concede."

"For sure, we did many things we can improve, but we started just two weeks ago. Tonight was important to start seeing the identity of the team and the identity is there."

Multiple gold medalist Dujardin out of Paris Games after whip vid

■ "Ashamed" dressage star also suspended by FEI

Charlotte Dujardin, Britain's joint-most decorated female Olympian, has been provisionally suspended by equestrian's governing body the FEI.

The dressage star had already pulled out of Paris 2024 after a video emerged which she said showed her "making an error of judgement".

The FEI said it had received footage showing three-time Olympic gold medallist Dujardin "engaging in conduct contrary to the principles of horse welfare - during a training session conducted at Ms Dujardin's private stable".

Dutch lawyer Stephan Wensing, who is representing the claimant who filed an official complaint against Dujardin to the FEI, said in an accompanying letter "the video shows Ms Dujardin beating a horse excessively with a whip".

The footage shows Dujardin hitting a horse with a long equestrian whip.

"My client is aware that this complaint could have far-reaching consequences for Ms Dujardin, including disciplinary sanctions," added Wensing. "My client had to think long and hard about whether to bring this to your attention this way."

Whips are used in all equestrian disciplines and when employed as a training aid should be utilised lightly to communicate with the horse.

"In dressage they use a long whip called a schooling whip to encourage the horse," Madeleine Hill, a former dressage reporter for magazine Horse & Hound, told the Today Programme.

"Generally you can't use the whip too harshly because horses are very sensitive and they'll react badly."

"In dressage I would say it's used as a training aid and quite cautiously."

The FEI said Dujardin confirmed she was the individual in the video which was "filmed several years ago" and "requested to be provisionally suspended pending the outcome of the investigations".

DUJARDIN: winner of six Olympic medals

The body initially announced a six-month suspension but later said the ban would "remain in place pending the outcome of the investigation/disciplinary proceedings".

Although the ban remains provisional while the FEI investigates, Dujardin, who has six Olympic medals in total, has said she will "withdraw from all competition while this process takes place".

"What happened was completely out of character and does not reflect how I train my horses or coach my pupils, however there is no excuse," she said in statement.

"I am deeply ashamed and should have set a better example in that moment."

Pope promises team will be 'ruthless' as England eye Windies whitewash

CRICKET: Ollie Pope says England's batters will be "ruthless" with their run-scoring as they eye a Test series whitewash against West Indies - and reckons they could even score 600 in a day.

England are 2-0 up after they followed up victory by an innings at Lord's with a comprehensive 241-run win at Trent Bridge last week.

The win in Nottingham was the first time England scored 400-plus in both innings of a Test match with totals of 416 and 425.

The third and final Test between England and West Indies starts on Friday at Edgbaston.

Vice-captain Pope promised their will be no let up with their approach even though England have already wrapped up the series and won back the Botham-Richards Trophy.

"There's a real hunger - there always is a hunger - but now there's an extra bit in that batting line-up," Pope said.

"We want to be as ruthless as we can as a batting unit, but still play the way we do because that's our natural game. Obviously being ruthless is being part of Test cricket as well."

Pope was one of three England centurions in the second Test alongside Joe Root and Harry Brook.

He acknowledged there are times England's batters will have to "manage the game a little bit more" but that their attacking approach has now become second nature.

The 26-year-old also feels England could smash the record for the number of runs scored in a day of Test cricket with the buccaneering 'Bazball' style fostered by coach Brendon McCullum and captain Ben Stokes

Sri Lanka's total of 509-9 against Bangladesh in July 2002 is the highest total made by a team in a day of Test cricket.

England fell just three runs short of eclipsing that against Pakistan in Rawalpindi back in December 2022, but Pope reckons they could go much bigger.

"I got asked on day one at Trent Bridge 'do you get told to play like that?'. No, we don't. It's just our natural games and the way we go about it," Pope added.

"Sometimes we might score 280 to 300 in a day but that's OK and probably because we're reading situations."

"There might also be a day where we go and get 500 to 600 at some point in the future as well. And that's a cool thing to have."

Murray: Paris will be my adieu

■ Scottish tennis legend set to retire after Olympics

Three-time Grand Slam champion Andy Murray announced he will retire from tennis after the Paris Olympics, bringing an end to his 19-year career.

Murray, 37, withdrew from the Wimbledon singles championship earlier this month after failing to recover in time from a spinal cyst procedure. However, he did manage to bid farewell to the All England Club with a doubles match alongside his brother, Jamie, before receiving an on-court tribute.

Murray had previously said he would not play this season's hard-court swing, meaning his final chance to play would come at Roland Garros at the Olympics. On Tuesday, he confirmed this will be his final appearance.

"Arrived in Paris for my last ever tennis tournament," Murray wrote on X. "Competing for Team GB has been by far the most memorable weeks of my career and I'm extremely proud to get to do it one final time!"

The draw for the tennis tournament will take place Thursday, when Murray will learn who his first opponent will be. He is scheduled to play in the men's singles tournament, as well as the doubles competition alongside Dan Evans.

David Haggerty, head of the International Tennis Federation, praised Murray for his contributions to the sport.

"Sir Andy has lived and breathed the values of tennis throughout his long career, championing equality and helping to send the message that our sport is for everyone," Haggerty said.

"We will of course remember his two Olympic golds; his Grand Slam wins and his never-say-die attitude on the court. We will also remember his Davis Cup victory with Great Britain in 2015, helping his team to the title for the first time since 1936.

"While this wonderful chapter of his career is now drawing to a close, we know that Sir Andy's love of tennis will see him continue to be involved in helping to grow and develop our sport globally."

Murray is a two-time Olympic gold medallist, having won back-to-back titles at London 2012 and Rio 2016, each bookending the most successful period of his career.

Murray's triumph at London 2012, where he won in the final with a straight-sets victory over Roger Federer, was his first major title. He followed it up by lifting his first Grand Slam title a month later, this time beating Novak Djokovic. He went on to win at his next appearance at the All England Club the following year before winning the title for a second time in 2016. Since then, Murray has faced a multitude of injury issues. He briefly retired in 2019 following two hip surgeries. His last ATP tournament victory came at Antwerp in October 2019.

HIS FINEST HOUR: Murray celebrates his Wimbledon win in 2012

Chelsea's Noni Madueke and Ben Chilwell after their unimpressive 2-2 draw with Wrexham in Santa Clara on Thursday

Blues boss: expect us to concede

Chelsea manager Enzo Maresca said his side "are going to concede goals this season playing out from the back" after two defensive errors in a 2-2 draw with Wrexham in his first game in charge.

Midfielder Lesley Ugochukwu scored an 82nd-minute equaliser in Santa Clara on Thursday, cancelling out two second-half strikes by the League One side.

A sharp finish in the penalty box from Christopher Nkunku opened the scoring in the 35th minute of Chelsea's opening friendly on their pre-season tour of the United States.

But Wrexham took a surprise lead after both teams made wholesale changes at half-time with Luke Bolton and Jack Marriott scoring following mistakes.

The defensive errors were part of a weak second-half performance as Chelsea adapt to Maresca's possession-based approach.
