TORY RACE: AND THEN THERE WERE TWO...

■ Jenrick and Badenoch in final round after surprise exit for Cleverly

Robert Jenrick and Kemi Badenoch are through to the final round of the Conservative leadership race after knocking out James Cleverly.

The shock result, announced in Parliament, was met with gasps from some who had expected Cleverly to get through to the last two, after he had delivered a well-received speech at the party's conference last week and topped the ballot of MPs in the third round on Tuesday.

However, in the fourth round he received 37 votes from his colleagues, falling behind Badenoch on 42 and Jenrick on 41.

The final two candidates will now be put to Conservative Party members with the result due on 2 November.

In a message posted on social media, Cleverly thanked his supporters for their backing adding: "Sadly it wasn't to be.

"We are all Conservatives, and it's important the Conservative Party unites to take on this catastrophic Labour government."

Following the result, both Badenoch and Jenrick praised Cleverly and hinted that they could give him positions in their shadow cabinet if they should win the overall race.

Badenoch said Cleverly's campaign had been "full of energy, ideas and optimism" and she looked forward to "continuing to work with him".

Jenrick praised a "brilliantly" fought campaign adding: "The Conservative Party needs you in its top team in the years ahead."

Jenrick said he was "so pleased" to be in the final two and promised to offer "professional, competent leadership" aimed at "regaining the trust of the British public".

He said his party needed to focus on the economy, the NHS and immigration rather than "going down rabbit holes".

Badenoch said she was "delighted" to have topped the MPs' poll and that it was "time to go bold".

She said Conservatives needed to "talk about ev-everything, we need to talk about the system, which I think is broken".

"I think Labour are having problems because they are working with a broken system."

Jenrick has made leaving the European Convention on Human Rights a key part of his campaign, but Badenoch said focusing too heavily on that topic would "shut down the conversation that we need to have with the entire country".

Badenoch, a former business secretary, and Jenrick, a former Home Office minister, had been seen as appealing to the right of the party with Cleverly representing those nearer to the centre-ground.

Badenoch is seen as articulating uncomfortable truths by her supporters; while Jenrick is praised by his backers for his stance on immigration, and his resignation from his ministerial job.

Speaking following the result announcement, one senior MP said: "It's not a result I expected.

"There may have been a degree of complacency in one camp. I did warn colleagues that if they try to game the system they need to be careful about possible problems.

"It seems Tom Tugendhat's votes went to Robert and Kemi. It's quite a surprising position."

Another said: "It was a genuine shock... the number of pledges made by MPs will have greatly exceeded 120, but that is perfectly understandable because our natural instinct is not to upset people."

The eventual winner of the contest will replace Rishi Sunak as leader of the Conservative Party.

Sunak announced his resignation after the party's general election defeat earlier this year.

Since September, Conservative MPs have been whittling down the candidate list in a series of votes.

PM's chief of staff quits

■ Another early setback for Starmer as Sue Gray leaves her post, claiming she had become a 'distraction' to the government's 'vital work'

Sue Gray has quit her role as Prime Minister Sir Keir Starmer's chief of staff, saying she "risked becoming a distraction".

Gray had been caught up in rows over pay, after it emerged revealed her salary was higher than Sir Keir's, and amid concern about donations from Lord Waheed Alli.

A Downing Street spokeswoman confirmed Ms Gray, who became a household name as the Partygate investigator, was taking up a new role as the prime minister's envoy for nations and regions.

'intense commentary'

Labour said Ms Gray would be replaced by Morgan McSweeney, who was previously chief adviser to the prime minister and masterminded Labour's general election campaign.

Ms Gray said it had been an honour to "play my part in the delivery of a Labour government" as Sir Keir's chief of staff, both in opposition and in No 10.

"However in recent weeks it has become clear to me that intense commentary around my position risked becoming a distraction to the government's vital work of change," she said.

"It is for that reason I have chosen to stand aside, and I look forward to continuing to support the prime minister in my new role."

Thanking Ms Gray for her work, Sir Keir said he was "delighted" she would stay by his side in her new role, and added the shake-up showed his "determination to deliver".

Defence Secretary John Healey told BBC Breakfast that Ms Gray herself said she had become a distraction to the government's work and "that's why she stepped aside".

dysfunction

He said it was not the first time the centre of government had become "the lightning conductor for wider criticism".

"In the end people understand government is hard. What they judge governments by is what they do and not what they say," Healey added.

Ms Gray had been subject to intense internal briefings and criticism in a government yet to reach its first 100 days in office.

It was that level of dysfunction that made it clear to Sir Keir that something needed to shift.

She skipped the Labour party conference last month, having been by Sir Keir's side throughout last year's.

But the event was overshadowed by controversy over clothing donations from Labour peer Lord Alli, for whom she had reportedly authorised a temporary Downing Street pass.

The level of anger towards her at the heart of government was indicated by high-level sources being willing to leak confidential details of her salary to the press.

One reason behind that was special advisers in the team being asked to take pay cuts, as well as unhappiness about a lack of contracts after the election victory.

Nevertheless, Ms Gray still commanded

EXIT THE DISTRACTION: Sue Gray, seen here with the PM, has been caught up in rows over pay and donations since Labour came to power the loyalty of many cabinet ministers.

Just a few weeks ago, Deputy Prime Minister Angela Rayner was defending Ms Gray's "exceptional" work and saying she was being "demonised" in the media without the ability to answer back, with other ministers expressing discomfort at the "gendered" flavour of the attacks.

Supporters made the case that, as a career civil servant, Ms Gray could stay detached from Labour's internal rows - but one government insider accused Labour's right wing of "grinding away at her" precisely because they were unhappy at a civil servant being in charge.

Now the prime minister has reshuffled his top team, not only by promoting Mr McSweeney, but also making four other appointments, most notably by hiring a strategic communications lead.

UK population rises to 68m - but increase is 'mainly due to immigration'

LONDON:- The United Kingdom's population grew by 1% in annual terms to 68.3 million as of mid-2023, mainly due to high immigration, official data showed on Tuesday.

Net international migration was the main contributor to population increase for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland - which together form the UK - in the year to mid-2023, Britain's Office for National Statistics said.

The natural change in population, which is the difference between births and deaths, fell by 16,300. Previous projections from the ONS suggested a negative reading would not occur until the mid-2030s.

Britain has seen high immigration in recent years from economic migrants and those who arrive via irregular crossings in small boats - a hot political topic because of stretched public services after years of under-investment.

Low birth rate

Record immigration caused the population of England and Wales to rise by 610,000 in mid-2023, the largest annual rise in 75 years. Net migration to Britain in 2015, the year before the Brexit referendum, was 329,000.

The birth rate in the UK fell to 1.67, the lowest rate on record, and not enough to sustain population stability, let alone provide for an increase.

The population grew faster in England and in Wales, both seeing a 1% rise, when compared to Scotland with 0.8% growth or Northern Ireland which posted a 0.5% increase, the ONS said on Tuesday.

While post-Brexit changes to visas saw a sharp drop in the number of European Union migrants to Britain, new work visa rules led to a surge in immigration from India, Nigeria and Pakistan, often to fill health and social care vacancies.

In August some far-right groups took to the streets to protest against migrants, an early challenge to the newly elected Labour government.

Prime Minister Keir Starmer, who scrapped the previous Conservative government's plan to deport asylum seekers to Rwanda since taking office in July, has said that his approach to illegal migration would be pragmatic and mark a change from the last leadership.

GP plotted to kill mother's partner with fake Covid jab

'Money-obsessed' doctor developed an "encyclopaedic knowledge" of poisons, Newcastle Crown Court told

A GP has admitted plotting to kill his mother's partner by disguising himself as a community nurse and poisoning him with a fake COVID booster jab.

Thomas Kwan, 53, was on trial at Newcastle Crown Court and had initially denied attempted murder, but changed his plea after he heard the prosecution open the case against him.

Police initially thought the married father-of-one used the chemical weapon ricin to try to kill 72-year-old Patrick O'Hara at his mother's home on 22 January, but an expert believed a pesticide was more likely.

Kwan sparked a major emergency services operation when police found lethal chemicals stored in the detached garage at his home in Ingleby Barwick, Teesside.

The Sunderland-based

GP had already pleaded guilty to administering a noxious substance, claiming he meant to cause no more than mild pain.

Prosecutors said he meant to kill his mother's partner of more than 20 years, who developed a rare flesh-eating disease as a result of the jab in his arm.

Part of Mr O'Hara's arm had to be cut away to stop the disease from spreading, and he spent several weeks in intensive care after the injection.

spyware

Opening the case on Thursday, prosecutor Peter Makepeace KC said Mr O'Hara "had done absolutely nothing to offend Mr Kwan in any way whatsoever".

The lawyer added: "He was, however, a potential impediment to Mr Kwan inheriting his mother's estate upon her death."

Jenny Leung, Kwan's mother, had named Mr O'Hara in her will to the effect that he could stay in her home in St Thomas Street, Newcastle, should she die before her partner.

This led to a strained relationship between Kwan and Ms Leung, the court heard. Police were later called to the property after he burst in uninvited in November 2022.

Prosecutors also described Kwan as "money-obsessed" and noted he installed spyware on his mother's laptop to monitor her finances.

The Hong Kong-born doctor had developed an "encyclopaedic knowledge" of poisons, the court heard, and police discovered he studied how to get away with murder after analysing his home computers.

In November 2023,

Thomas Kwan's disguise (left) was so effective it fooled both his mother and her partner. The doctor posed as a nurse to administer a potentially fatal dose of poison

Kwan wrote to Mr O'Hara posing as nurse Raj Patel, and offered a home visit to administer the booster jab, which Mr Makepeace said was a "pretext" to inject him with a dangerous poison.

"As, I suspect, would any of us, Mr O'Hara fell for it hook, line and sinker," the prosecutor said on Thursday. "He had not the slightest suspicion that this was anything other than a genuine NHS community care initiative which he warmly welcomed and was grateful for."

The court also heard the 53-year-old forged NHS documentation to set up the home visit, used false number plates for the journey to Newcastle and booked a city centre hotel using a false name.

When he attended the home, Kwan - wearing a long coat, flat cap, surgical gloves, a medical mask and tinted glasses - carried out a 45-minute examination on Mr O'Hara.

He also checked his mother's blood pressure when she asked, and told

Mr O'Hara he needed a COVID booster, despite him having had one only three months prior.

While administering the injection, Mr O'Hara shouted in pain. Kwan told him the reaction was not uncommon while speaking in broken English using an Asian accent, and left the home quickly.

A day after the fake COVID jab, Mr O'Hara's arm had become blistered and seriously discoloured as he developed necrotising fasciitis, a flesh-eating disease.

£100k own goal for Rebekah Vardy

FOOTBALLER'S wife Rebekah Vardy has scored a legal own goal after a judge ordered her to immediately pay arch-rival WAG Coleen Rooney a further £100,000.

Mrs Vardy, wife of Leicester striker Jamie, took to the High Court to dispute a £1.8million lawyers' bill claimed by Mrs Rooney after she won their high-profile "Wagatha Christie" court case in 2022.

That fight came after Coleen, wife of England legend Wayne, accused Rebekah of leaking her private information to journalists.

Rebekah, 42, was ordered to pay 90% of Coleen's fees, with an initial payment of £800,000.

But on Wednesday judge Andrew Gordon-Saker ordered Rebekah to pay a further £100,000 to mum-of-four Coleen, 38, within 21 days.

The three-day hearing, which neither woman attended, dealt with preliminary issues before a full "line-by-line" assessment of costs next year, which will decide the overall amount of money to be paid.

In 2019 Coleen claimed Rebekah's account was the source behind three stories in The Sun with fake details she had posted on her private Instagram profile - her travelling to Mexico for a "gender selection" procedure, her planning to return to TV and her basement flooding.

Rebekah sued for libel but Mrs Justice Steyn ruled in Coleen's favour, finding the post was "substantially true" and that it was "likely" Rebekah's agent, Caroline Watt, had passed information to The Sun. She added her client "knew of and condoned this behaviour".

At the latest hearing, Jamie Carpenter KC, representing Rebekah, said her opponent's claimed legal bill ran to £1,833,906.89, which was more than three times her "agreed costs budget of £540,779.07".

He said the bill was "drawn without sufficient care" and had "a kitchen sink approach", and included "over £120,000 of costs to which Mrs Rooney has no entitlement".

But Robin Dunne, for Coleen, said Mrs Vardy had shown "deplorable conduct" in the case and costs could have been lower if "she conducted this litigation appropriately".

Russia 'promoting mayhem on British streets'

■ MI5 boss gives rare warning, saying UK faced the 'most "complex and interconnected" threat it has ever seen

Russia's intelligence agency has been on a mission to generate "sustained mayhem on British and European streets", the head of MI5 has said.

In a rare public speech, Ken McCallum warned that the UK was facing the most "complex and interconnected" threat it has ever seen.

MI5 has also responded to 20 Iran-backed plots since 2022, the director general said.

He said the complex mix of terror-related threats and threats from nation states meant that MI5 had "one hell of a job on its hands".

A total of 43 late-stage plots to commit "mass murder" in the UK have been foiled since 2017, he said, involving firearms and explosives.

Mr McCallum said the security service's counter-terrorism work still mostly involved Islamic extremism, followed by "extreme right-wing terrorism".

But he added there was a "dizzying range of beliefs and ideologies" MI5 had to deal with.

"The first 20 years of my career here were crammed full of terrorist threats. We now face those alongside state-backed assassination and sabotage plots, against the backdrop of a major European land war," he said.

threat from Iran

In a briefing at MI5's counter-terrorism operations centre in London, Mr McCallum said in the past year, the number of state-threat investigations by MI5 had increased by 48%.

Mr McCallum accused Russia of "arson, sabotage and more dangerous actions" in the UK.

He said more than 750 Russian diplomats had been expelled from Europe since Russia's invasion of Ukraine, saying "a great majority of them" were spies.

This affected the Russian intelligence services' capability, McCallum explained, and added that diplomatic visas had been denied to those Britain and allies considered Russian spies.

Russian state actors turned to proxies, such as private intelligence operatives, to do "their dirty work", but this impacted the professionalism of their operations and made them easier to disrupt.

He also told the briefing that MI5 and police had responded to 20 Iran-backed plots since

DARK BRIEFING: Ken McCallum accused Russia of "arson, sabotage and more dangerous actions" in the UK.

2022, which presented "potentially lethal threats to British citizens and UK residents".

He said targeted counter-terrorism work remained split between "75% Islamist extremism, 25% extreme right-wing terrorism".

Mr McCallum expressed concern over the number of young people being drawn into online extremism.

About 13% of those investigated for involvement in terrorism were under 18 - a threefold increase in the last three years, he added.

He said other issues MI5 encountered were exacerbated by the internet, and a high proportion of the threat was made up by "lone individuals indoctrinated online".

"In dark corners of the internet, talk is cheap.

Sorting the real plotters from armchair extremists is an exacting task," he told reporters.

"Anonymous online connections are often inconsequential, but a minority lead to deadly, real world actions."

He spoke of the difficulty the security service faces while dealing with "volatile, would-be terrorists with only a tenuous grip of ideologies".

British Israeli hostage 'seems to have been forgotten'

■ On first anniversary of October 7th attack, the mother of Emily Damari begs government to do more

The mother of the only British-Israeli hostage still being held by Hamas in Gaza has asked why the UK is not "fighting every moment to secure her release".

Emily Damari, 28, was shot and taken from an Israeli kibbutz across the border into Gaza on 7 October.

Speaking at a London memorial event on Sunday marking the attacks a year ago, her mother Mandy Damari said her daughter's "plight seems to have been forgotten".

Prime Minister Sir Keir Starmer said in a statement the UK "must unequivocally stand with the Jewish community".

The dual national is among 97 hostages who remain unaccounted for.

Speaking at the Hyde

Park memorial event, her mother said: "[Emily] is a daughter of both countries, but no one here mentions the fact that there is still a female British hostage being held captive by Hamas for a year now, and I sometimes wonder if people even know there is a British woman there.

"Imagine, for a moment if Emily was your daughter. Try to picture what she is going through.

"Since 7 October last year, she has been held a hostage by Hamas terrorists in the Gaza terror tunnels, 20 metres or more underground, kept in captivity, tortured, isolated, unable to eat, speak or even move without someone else's permission."

The crowd heard how

Emily, who was born to her British mother in Israel and lived there, loved to visit the UK - her "second home across the sea". She loved watching Spurs play, going to the pub, shopping at Primark and had also watched Ed Sheeran in concert, her mother said.

Her mother pleaded with Britain and other countries to do more to secure the release of her daughter, and the other hostages.

"darkest day"

"How is it that she is still imprisoned there after one year? Why isn't the whole world, especially Britain, fighting every moment to secure her release? She's one of their own."

She said some of the women and children who were released in the hostage deal in November had told her Emily was alive then, and spoke about how she helped the other hostages try to stay positive, even in the worst of times.

"Every day is living hell not knowing what Emily is going through. I do know from the hostages that returned that they were starved, sexually abused and tortured. Every moment lost is another moment of unimaginable suffering or even death."

Other hostages with British relatives held include Eli Sharabi, Oded Lifschitz and Avinatan Or. British-Israeli Nadav Popplewell was also kidnapped on 7 October and his body was recovered by Israeli soldiers in Gaza in August.

Emily Damari, 28, is a keen Spurs fan

Families of Israeli hostages met Sir Keir and Foreign Secretary David Lammy on Monday, calling on them to "do more" to bring them home.

The prime minister agreed that the hostages must be freed and returned immediately, a subsequent press conference was told.

On Sunday, he said the country must "unequivocally" stand with the Jewish community and described 7 October as the "darkest day in Jewish history since the Holocaust".

48 years later, hopeful stunt woman has job application returned

“Late delivery by Staines Post Office. Found behind a draw [sic]. ‘Only about 50 years late.’”

A woman in Lincolnshire has had her application for her dream job as a stunt rider returned 48 years after applying for the role.

Tizi Hodson, 70, from Gedney Hill, opened the post to find a letter she had sent applying for to be a motorcycle stunt rider in January 1976, with a note explaining it had been stuck behind a post office drawer ever since.

“I always wondered why I never heard back about the job. Now I know why,” she said this week.

successful career

“How they found me when I’ve moved house 50-odd times, and even moved countries four or five times, is a mystery.”

Despite never hearing back about her dream job, she went on to have a successful career as an aerobatic pilot and flying instructor.

She did not know who returned the letter. It was posted with an anonymous handwritten note stating: “Late delivery by Staines Post Office. Found behind a draw [sic]. Only about 50 years late.”

“It means so much to me to get it back all this time later,” she said. “I remember very clearly sitting in my flat in London typing the letter.

“Every day I looked for my post but there was nothing there and I was so disappointed because I really, really wanted to be a stunt rider on a motorcycle.”

Hodson said she had carefully refrained from referring to her gender in the application, as she believed she may not get an interview if they knew she was female.

“I even stupidly told them I didn’t mind how many bones I might break as I was used to it,” she said. “If I could speak to my younger self, I would tell her to go and do everything I’ve done. I’ve had such a wonderful time in life, even if I have broken a few bones.”

Veteran DJ Johnnie Walker to hang up his headphones

The BBC radio presenter Johnnie Walker has announced he’s hanging up his headphones after a 58-year career because of ill health.

He will step down from presenting Sounds of the 70s and The Rock Show on BBC Radio 2 at the end of this month.

The 79-year-old made the announcement live on air on Sunday, telling listeners that he would make his final shows “as good as I possibly can”.

He will be replaced on Sounds of the 70s by Bob Harris, while Shaun Keaveny will be the new presenter of The Rock Show.

Walker has pulmonary fibrosis, which is scarring of the lungs. The condition makes breathing difficult.

During his show on Sunday, he read out a letter from a listener whose dad had loved the show, but had passed away in 2022 due to pulmonary fibrosis.

“Now, that leads me to be making a very sad announcement,” he said.

“The struggles I’ve had with doing the show and trying to sort of keep up a professional standard suitable for Radio 2 has been difficult, hence my little jokes about Puffing Billy, so I’ve had to make the decision that I need to bring my career to an end.”

Walker began his radio career in 1966 on Swinging Radio England, an offshore pirate station, before moving to Radio Caroline.

He joined BBC Radio

2 in 1969, and joined Radio 2 in 1997 where he has remained ever since.

Among those paying tribute to him was Helen Thomas, head of Radio 2, who called him a “broadcasting legend”.

“Everyone at Radio 2, and I’m sure his millions of listeners, would like to thank Johnnie for entertaining us for so many decades with his brilliantly crafted shows,” she said.

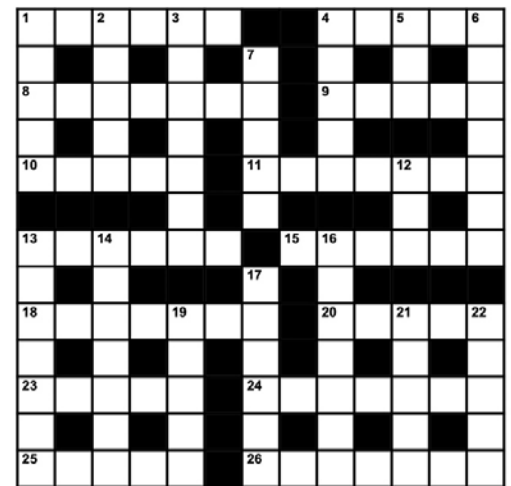

“He will be much missed on the airwaves and by his listeners, who have adored listening to his shows over the years.”

Walker’s last episode of The Rock Show will air on 25 October, and his final episode of Sounds of the 70s will air two days later.

Best of British on display in Ventura Harbor

Sunday 22 September was the 33rd English Car show hosted by the Central Coast British Car Club (centralcoastbritishcarclub.com) in Ventura Harbor. It was a grey day befitting the vehicles UK heritage, with a good crowd of enthusiasts and a great collection of about 120 cars.

An original AC Cobra, Aston Martins, an immaculate Elan coupe for sale, an S4 Esprit, an MG sprite, variety of Morris 100s, MGBs, MGB GTs, Morgans, Minis (old and new), Triumphs including a GT6 that could have been new, and some beautiful Jaguars.

SoCal is a great location for car enthusiasts with many local shows – for instance there is a cars and coffee event in Thousand Oaks twice a month, and the Queen's English show, held earlier in the year (queens-english.org), will announce their 2025 dates in November – Nick Haycocks

Trivia experts Quiz-zical Education (pic-tured, right) schooled ten rival teams to win the latest Brits in LA Pub Quiz at O'Briens in Santa Monica.

As usual there was fun and banter aplenty at the Tuesday night fixture, with team Quiz Queens (top) missing out on the top prize but still scooping a free dessert.

Other competitors included Abba, who performed gamely but who met their Waterloo in the final round.

Join the fun there next Tuesday - October 15 at 8 - when host Sandro Monetti returns with more brainteasers and banter with a British flavour.

ARIES: Now is a good time now to put your most important long term goals at the top of your to-do list. Do not procrastinate.
TAURUS: You are likely feeling concerned about your future finances this coming week. This is understandable considering how many expenses you have had of late. Take one day at a time.
GEMINI: Make time to get up and get going as soon as you can as Jupiter, the Santa Claus of the planets, is moving slowly through your house.
CANCER: Your moods can change quickly now due to powerful Mars; so it's good that you are mostly keeping your vibe low key. You have some unfinished business, which should be your priority.
LEO: You should be starting to process and understand things in your life from your distant past. It is becoming hopefully clear now you cannot change what has already happened.
VIRGO: Do not push too hard, let yourself breathe and relax. You are the biggest worrier of all the signs. Time to show your organized side to those that need your help.
LIBRA: You can expect to receive financial surprises these next few days. Mars is in your money house going forward and can bring some new opportunities. Happy Birthday!
SCORPIO: Remember to heed your intuition now. It has and continues to be your best friend. You are dealing with past situations and how you deal with them is important. Time to let go of it all!
SAGITTARIUS: It's not currently time to be self-indulgent or down-hearted. You are the free spirit of the signs. Your boss Jupiter is currently going backwards but something good will transpire soon.
CAPRICORN: It's time to lighten your outlook about any situation which has been on your mind. Your boss Saturn is in your money house for a while and so it is lucky for you financially. Nothing can stop with positive intentions.
AQUARIUS: Now is a good time to set your intentions and be ready to move on them as soon as you can. You are somewhat resistant to changes, so try to relax.
PISCES: Don't look backwards, just look up and at what you want to achieve most of all now. Expect news from your past, possibly a romantic renewal or gift.

First Test in Pakistan: England fill their boots in astounding run-fest

First Test, Multan
(day four of five)

Pakistan 556: Masood
151 & 152-6:

Atkinson 2-28

England 823-7 dec: Brook
317, Root 262

ENGLAND stood at the brink of a remarkable Test victory in Pakistan this week as Harry Brook became the first England batsman for 34 years to hit a triple-century in Test cricket on an astonishing fourth day against Pakistan in Multan.

Brook, Joe Root and England broke a host of records, then the visiting pace bowlers were irresistible in charging to what looks like certain victory in the first Test.

Brook's 317 is the sixth score in excess of 300 by an England man and his partnership of 454 with Root, who made 262, was the fourth-highest for any wicket in the history of the game.

A total of 823-7 declared is also the fourth-highest ever and England's largest since 1938.

It meant England took a lead of 267, a barely believable advantage considering Pakistan posted 556 in their first innings.

Despite the avalanche of runs on the flat pitch, Chris Woakes knocked out the off stump of Abdullah Shafique with the first ball of Pakistan's second innings.

England were rampant, Pakistan feeble. The hosts disintegrated after tea, spiralling towards a humiliating defeat on 152-6, still 115 short of making England bat again.

Never before has a team posted so many runs in the first innings of a Test, then gone on to lose by an innings.

England, who secured a historic 3-0 victory in Pakistan two years ago, looked certain add another memorable win at some point on Friday.

Brook became the sixth English batter to score a triple century and first since 1990. It was the second-fastest 300 of all time, reached in 310 deliveries.

The 454 that Root

HISTORY BOYS: Harry Brook and Joe Root shared a jaw-dropping partnership of 454 in the First Test in Multan and Brook added for the fourth-wicket is England's highest partnership for any wicket, the fourth-highest in all Test cricket and best for the fourth-wicket.

Root's double century was his sixth in Test cricket, only Wally Hammond, on seven, has more for England.

This was only the third instance in Test history that two batters passed 250 in the same innings and the first occasion for England.

By any measure, this was an incredible day of Test cricket, one that broke new ground and challenged other landmarks that have stood for decades.

Even on a pitch that has been abnormally flat for the best part of four days, and against a toothless Pakistan attack missing ill spinner Abrar Ahmed, the runs scored by Brook, Root and England were extraordinary.

The tourists gave themselves the advantage by moving to 492-3 on day three, when Root became England's all-time leading Test run-scorer.

Root had added 10 to his overnight 176 when he drilled Naseem Shah to mid-wicket, where Babar Azam shelled a simple catch. From there, cont. on page 19, col. 1

CRICKET:

Pakistan fell apart, England scored at will and the prospect of a rare triple-century quickly became a reality.

Brook, resuming on 141, went past his previous highest Test score of 186. A top-edge off Aamer Jamal just evaded the square leg fielder and, from the next ball, a Brook pull took the stand past England's previous best partnership of 411 between greats Colin Cowdrey and Peter May in 1957.

Root found another best in his record-laden career, beating his previous highest score of 254. After 10 hours at the crease, he was eventually beaten by an off-break that Salman Agha got to keep low.

Brook went on and on, toying with the bowling using both classical and unorthodox strokes: cover drives, ramps, flicks and use of the feet. Pakistan became a rabble, beset by misfields and overthrows, while six home bowlers conceded more than 100 runs.

Only eight overs were needed to add 79 with Jamie Smith. Brook went from 250 to 300 in just 29 balls, a holy grail of batting achievements reached thanks to a straight four off Saim Ayub.

It was the 32nd instance of a triple century in Test cricket, which Brook celebrated with a salute to the dressing room and a look to the sky.

The 25-year-old seemed set to challenge Sir Len Hutton's 364, the highest score by an England batter, until he top-edged a sweep off Ayub. He left owning the fifth-highest score by an Englishman.

Still England were not done, becoming the fourth team to pass 800 before captain Ollie Pope decided enough was enough just before tea.

HEROICS: Robbie Brady scored late to give the Irish a morale-boosting win

Brady brings late joy to the Irish

Robbie Brady fired home an 88th-minute winner as the Republic of Ireland picked up their first victory under Heimur Hallgrímsson with a 2-1 win in Finland on Thursday.

Finland were gifted a first-half opener when Irish captain Nathan Collins underhit a back pass, which allowed Joel Pohjanpalo to race through and slot past Caoimhin Kelleher.

However, it was a much-improved performance in the second half and Liam Scates headed home Brady's free-kick just shy of the hour mark to score the first goal of the Hallgrímsson era.

There was late drama to come when Brady was on hand to rifle Festy Ebosele's cross into the roof of the net to score a goal that could ignite Hallgrímsson's tenure as manager.

The win is only the third in their past 14 competitive matches, but it could be a crucial three points after two morale-damaging defeats to open their Nations League campaign.

There had been calls for players to step up and end the poor run of form, and Brady answered that call with an assist and superb winner in Helsinki.

Both sides had lost their opening Nations League matches without scoring a goal, and the early stages showcased two sides who are struggling for form and confidence.

Kelleher is set for an extended run in Liverpool's team following Alisson's recent injury, but the Irish goalkeeper was helpless to keep out the opener after Collins' error.

It was a self-inflicted blow for the Republic who, to their credit, almost mustered a stirring response for the win.

Southgate in no hurry to find work

Former England manager Gareth Southgate says he will not return to a coaching role for at least a year.

The 54-year-old resigned from the England job after the defeat by Spain in the Euro 2024 final in July.

Southgate was appointed as Three Lions boss in 2016 and guided England to back-to-back Euro finals, as well as a fourth-place finish at the 2018 World Cup.

He has been linked with Manchester United amid the uncertainty over the future of Erik ten Hag at Old Trafford.

However, speaking at the European Club Association general assembly in Athens on Thursday, Southgate ruled out an immediate return to management.

"I won't coach in the next year for sure, I'm certain of that," he said. "I need to give myself time to make good decisions. When you come out of a really big role you need to give your body time, you need to give your mind time."

"I'm enjoying my life, so there's no rush."

ENGLAND JUST DISMAL!

■ Novel line-up fails miserably as Greece provide classic banana skin for Carsley

England interim manager Lee Carsley's all-out attacking strategy backfired badly as they slumped to a 2-1 shock defeat by Greece in the Uefa Nations League at Wembley on Thursday.

Jude Bellingham's 87th-minute goal looked to have rescued a desperately disappointing England display after Vangelis Pavlidis gave Greece a deserved lead with a composed finish four minutes into the second half.

Greece responded to earn a deserved victory as Pavlidis struck again deep into stoppage time on a chastening night for England and interim boss Carsley.

In the absence of injured captain Harry Kane, Carsley went without a recognised striker by using Jude Bellingham in a false nine role and playing Phil Foden, Anthony Gordon, Bukayo Saka and Cole Palmer.

The result was a disjointed, confused mess, as Carsley's 100% record since succeeding Gareth Southgate was ended by a well-organised Greece side, who actually had the ball in the net five times only to see three ruled out for offside.

England were fortunate to survive until four minutes after the break, especially when keeper Jordan Pickford was stranded outside his area early on and had to be rescued by Levi Colwill's superb goalline clearance from Tasos Bakasetas, but it was no surprise when Pavlidis put Greece ahead with a fine finish. The Greek players interrupted their celebrations to lift a shirt bearing the name of George Baldock, their former international colleague, who died on Wednesday aged 31.

Carsley, seeing his tactical plan failing, sent on strike duo Ollie Watkins and Dominic Solanke, winning his second full cap seven years after his first.

England pushed for an unlikely victory after Bellingham fired high past Greece keeper Odysseas Vlachodimos, but the visitors were a threat all night and punished Carsley's side once more in a dramatic finale.

Carsley's ambitious game plan of packing his side with attacking talent such as Bellingham, Palmer, Cole, Saka and Foden looked exciting on paper - but was exposed within minutes.

Greece, more structured, took advantage of this imbalanced England throughout as attacking areas were overcrowded, defensive areas left undermanned and Declan Rice overrun in central midfield as he tried in vain to plug the gaps left around him.

England keeper Pickford, normally so reliable for his country, added to the nerves with a hectic, error-strewn opening, the tone set for a night when Greece were the more threatening side throughout, their supremacy only undermined by a habit of running offside in moments of over-excitement.

Carsley ignored the claims of Solanke and Watkins to start, giving the team a focal point in attack, instead leaving players packing into areas in a classic "too many cooks" scenario. England's front-loaded team left the defence vulnerable every time possession was turned over.

It was a cold shower for Carsley, who had made the ideal start with wins away to the Republic of Ireland and at home to Finland. This was his first misstep - but it was a big one.

The stakes have now been raised for Carsley and England before their next game, against Finland again, in Helsinki on Sunday.

There were emotional scenes when Pavlidis showed clever footwork to dance between England's defenders before driving low past Pickford for Greece's first ever Wembley goal.

He raced away to celebrate in front of the elated visiting fans, pointing at the black armband he was wearing in memory Baldock, best known for playing for Sheffield United, but who also made 12 appearances for Greece.

The Greek players were determined to honour Baldock as they

Vangelis Pavlidis gave Greece a deserved lead in the 49th minute then held up a shirt honoured their former which was a credit to emblazoned with his colleague with the man- them and brought a name - and they also ner of this performance, well-merited win.
